WAR SPREAD IN ORIENT IS FEARED HERE

Blockade of China Ports by Japan Is Seen.

GREAT STAND IS EXPECTED

Neutrals Would Have Difficulty Not to Take Sides.

(Associated Press.)

Genuine apprehension exists in Washington official circles that efforts to conciliate Japan and China have failed and that war on a large scale over Manchuria is inevitable.

Japan's withdrawal from the league is regarded by informed observers as a foregone conclusion. But even if Japan were not to withdraw, military observers believe the slow advance of Japanese troops toward Jehol will bring on a great Chinese resistance and major fighting.

China's famous nineteenth route army, which did such gallant fighting at Shanghai last winter, and pet organizations of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek are among the quarter of a million soldiers the Chinese have south of the Great Wall between the Peiping and Tientsin line.

Estimated at 100,000.

Japan's total military forces in Manchuria at the present are estimated at 100,000. These are widely scattered, but there has been considerable concentration of recent weeks along the railway between Shanhaikwan, where the great wall touches the sea, and Mukden.

Japan also has a large fleet patrolling the Manchurian coast northward from Shanhaikwan and guarding Chinwangtao and Huludao, the two ports of importance which would be used in case reinforcements are sent direct from Japan.

The drive of the Japanese into Jehol, which they insist they must make to protect Manchukuo against invasion from south of the wall, is not generally expected by military observers to begin until next month because of the cold weather. But the season has been unusually mild and recent movements have persuaded foreign military men that the Japanese have decided to act regardless of the weather.

Blockade Is Possible.

War has really existed between the two powers for sixteen months already, in spite of the fact that it has not been declared. But if the Japanese decide upon striking a decisive blow at China both on land and sea, many observers expect them to declare a blockade on Chinese ports. To do this they must declare war.

And such a blockade would affect international shipping and trade so seriously that neutral powers would have difficulty in avoiding entanglements.

China refuses to declare war and probably will not do so, in the opinion of international observers, who believe she will not risk the loss of League of Nations support in its Manchurian struggle by openly declaring hostilities against the power which has invaded Chinese territory.

U. S. Plan for Replacing Canadians Is Opposed

Ottawa, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—W. A. Gordon, minister of immigration and labor, said in the House of Commons this afternoon that the Canadian government does not intend to allow United States industrial concerns with branches in Canada to dismiss Canadian executives and replace them with American executives, brought from their plants in the United States.

Argentina to Pay Three Debt Services March 1

Buenos Aires, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—The treasury department today instructed the embassies at Washington, London and Madrid to pay foreign debt services due March 1 aggregating almost $2,200,000.

Included in these payments are considerable amounts owed to Baring Bros., of London, and the Harriman Co. of New York, on short-term loans.

Judge Allows Removal Of Insull Books Here

Chicago, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson today granted authority for the removal to Washington of some of the books and records of two bankrupt Insull holding companies, the Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and Corporation Securities Co.

The books were wanted by a Senate subcommittee investigating the Insull companies.

CHINA MAY RECALL MINISTER AT TOKYO

Soong Forecasts Move When Japanese Start Drive to Annex Jehol.

Peiping, China, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—If Japan starts a drive to annex the Province of Jehol to the state of Manchukuo, the Chinese Minister at Tokyo may be withdrawn.

This was implied today by T. V. Soong, finance minister of the Nationalist government, who arrived here Saturday night by airplane from Nanking.

"My personal opinion," the finance minister said, "is that I do not see the use of keeping a minister in Tokyo if there should be a drive on Jehol, as obviously diplomatic measures would be of no avail."

In reply to a question about whether China was likely to declare war on Japan, Mr. Soon said, "This is a matter of no consequence."

"Japan has not declared war upon China," he continued, "but to all intents and purposes is carrying on war against us. It is splitting hairs to say whether this undeclared war may or may not be considered warfare, but it is hardly reasonable to expect the aggrieved party to make such declaration."

Tokyo, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—A break between Japan and the League of Nations became imminent today as the result of a message to the league, in which the government declared itself adamant in maintaining the independence of the State of Manchukuo.

This message was approved by the cabinet and by the emperor himself. It was in reply to an inquiry from the league concerning Japan's attitude toward discontinuing the Manchukuo government.

The State of Manchukuo was set up with the assistance of the Japanese

Three Held in Cuba On Revolt Charges

Reports Troops Ordered Into Interior Denied by Government.

Havana, Cuba, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Police today arrested two lawyers and a lawyer's clerk on charges of engaging in subversive activities.

The men, Emilio Marill, Joaquin Martinez Saez and Ernesto Carcas, of the Lavedan law firm, were placed in Principe Prison at the disposition of President Machado. The interior department disclaimed official knowledge of the detentions.

Meanwhile, military headquarters denied emphatically reports that troops have been ordered into the interior, where recurrent rumors say revolutionary plots are being hatched.

Leffingwell Is Reported Due for Post in Mexico

(Associated Press.)

Latin-American circles here yesterday heard that Russell Cornell Leffingwell of New York, a former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, might be the Roosevelt appointee as Ambassador to Mexico. The report, from an authoritative source, was regarded with more than customary interest and credence.

Mr. Leffingwell, a partner in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., was Assistant Treasury Secretary in 1917-20, in the Wilson administration. He is a member of a New York law firm and has been associated with the Morgan organization since 1923.

PRESIDENTIAL POWER TO CUT FUNDS EXISTS

COOLIDGE EMPLOYED RIGHT TO ECONOMIZE

Conferees on Treasury-Post-office Bill Prepare for Agreement Task.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

In face of the House drive to give Franklin D. Roosevelt dictatorial powers to slash expenditures, it was learned last night in an official quarter that the President, if he chooses to exercise it, already has the power not only to curtail, but to impound funds appropriated by Congress.

This authority, although it does not extend to veterans' benefits, Federal compensation and sums specifically protected by statute, goes even further than the Bratton amendment to the Treasury-Postoffice bill, directing department heads to reduce expenditures 5 per cent. The Bratton amendment does not affect statute-protected funds.

The only difference, it was explained, is that the Bratton amendment directs the cuts. The authority to make them already rests with the Executive. If the Comptroller General is called on for an opinion in the matter, it was said he will have to so rule.

Conferees Organize.

Meanwhile House conferees on the Treasury-Postoffice bill, who will carry to conference the modified Garner proposal to give the President widespread jurisdiction over expenditures, held their first meeting yesterday.

Members did not discuss in formal meeting the Garner "dictatorship" proposal. The session was called merely to give the conferees an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the manifold and controversial provisions of the bill. This morning they will meet for the first time with Senate conferees in an attempt to work out an agreement.

Coolidge Precedent.

It is not anticipated any such vast authorization as that proposed in the Garner plan, which would give the President power to go beyond his present authority and curtail Federal and veterans' compensation, will come out of conference.

If it does, the expectation is it will be defeated, in view of the present division among Democrats. Recognizing this, the Garner forces now are concentrating on the special session of Congress, when they hope to have enough Democratic votes to put through any authorization.

Relative to the President's present powers to curtail expenditures, it was pointed out last night that a number of Presidents already have exercised the authority. The notable example given was in the Coolidge administration, when former Budget Director Lord, on the President's instructions, required all departments of Government to save 2 per cent of appropriations.

Disappearance of Girl Spurs Hunt for Slavers

New York, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Disappearance of a 15-year-old schoolgirl gave impetus today to a police drive on what officials said was a white slave ring operating in New York and northern New Jersey.

The missing girl is Clara Gold. Her father, Max, told police she left for school last Monday and failed to reach there or to return home.

Mail Sled Dogs Saved From Ice

Master of Team Swims to Shore From Floe, Says Alaskan Message.

Fairbanks, Alaska, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Despite heavy seas 10 miles offshore, a mail-carrying sled dogteam, marooned in Norton Sound a week ago, was rescued from an ice floe by a power boat and taken to Shaltolik, a message from Nulato said today.

Mitchell Charles, master of the team, swam ashore when the ice broke loose between Unalaklik and Shaltolik. The dogs, hitched to a sled heavily laden with mail, drifted toward the open sea.

The Malamutes and the mail were brought to Shaltolik Friday, the report said. The carrier Charles left Shaltolik Saturday for home.

Alterie Hunted in Kidnaping

Louis (Diamond Jack) Alterie, left, is being sought in connection with the kidnaping of Charles Boettcher 2d, Denver broker and friend of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Chicago Gangster Sought; Boettcher Kin Would Pay Demand.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Distraught relatives of Charles Boettcher 2d, kidnaped Denver broker, took the first steps today to comply with demands for payment of $60,000 ransom for his release, while police sought Louis (Diamond Jack) Alterie, former Chicago gangster, for questioning.

A few hours before Chief of Police A. T. Clark announced he was hunting Alterie and two unidentified men, Claude K. Boettcher, multimillion-aire father of the missing 31-year-old heir, inserted in Denver newspapers a personal advertisement stating, "Please write, I am ready to return. Mabel."

Boettcher, warm friend of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, was kidnaped last night by two men who accosted him and his wife as they drove into the driveway of the Boettcher's palatial home. Boettcher was forced into the kidnaper's car and whisked

HOUSE PASSES BILL AIMED AT KIDNAPERS

Boxing Measure Is Among 13 Given Approval on District Day.

In the most productive "District Day" this session, the House yesterday pushed to passage 13 local measures. A kidnaping bill, an amateur boxing bill, gas company merger legislation and a measure sanctioning quarterly payment of taxes on homes, were approved.

Four measures, including the Thatcher bill, tightening lax local kidnaping laws, already had passed the Senate. These go to the White House for signature.

Action on many of the measures, notably the Hartley amateur boxing bill and the gas merger project, had been despaired of this session. All of the measures went through without opposition.

Indorsed by the Amateur Athletic Union, the Hartley bill continues the present law against professional prize fighting, but sets up a boxing commission to regulate amateur boxing. The commission may issue licenses, formulate rules and assess fees to pay administrative costs. A penalty not exceeding $1,000, or a year's imprisonment, may be imposed for violations of the law.

The merger bill would allow the Washington Gas Light Co. and the

Thomas Sees Moscow Recognized by Roosevelt

New York, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Norman Thomas expressed a belief today that President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt will recognize Soviet Russia. The Socialist presidential candidate of the last election did not, however, amplify his remarks in his address before the Young People's Peace Conference.

"A nation that some years ago swallowed Mussolini," he said, "ought not to go gaga so much over Stalin."

DISTRICT TAX BOOST PLAN FACES ATTACK

Wood to Oppose Intangibles Move Today on Point of Order.

A counterattack on the House Appropriations Committee proposal to increase the District tax on intangibles 20 per cent will be started in the House today when debate closes on the badly butchered District appropriations bill.

Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), Indiana, former chairman of the Appropriations Committee, will make the point of order that the tax is legislation on an appropriation bill.

Although Chairman Clarence Cannon, of the House District Appropriations Committee, former parliamentarian of the House, will oppose the point, indications are it will be sustained.

Later, Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia (Republican), New York, is expected to move that $625,000 for District relief in the last six months of 1933, be reinserted in the bill.

Independent of either of these moves, plans were being made last night for introduction of an amendment sanctioning a cut in the present tax on real estate and tangible personal property, below the present $1.70

Gandhi Liberty Remote, Indian Secretary Says

London, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—There can be no consideration of the release from prison of Mahatma Gandhi, Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary for India, told the House of Commons today, until the government has convincing reasons to believe his release would not be followed by revival of the civil disobedience campaign.

The same policy applies to others of his followers imprisoned for participation in the mahatma's activities.

Charges Against Four Men In Massie Attack Quashed

Lack of Substantial Identification Frees Hawaiian, Chinese and Two Japanese; Wife of Naval Lieutenant Not Surprised at Move.

Honolulu, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Charges were quashed in Circuit Court today against four men of mixed blood accused of having criminally attacked Mrs. Thomas H. Massie, naval lieutenant's wife, near Honolulu September 9, 1931.

Public Prosecutor John C. Kelley recommended dismissal of the case and made public a report by a private detective agency on an investigation of the assault made at the instance of Gov. Lawrence M. Judd and Attorney General Harry Hewitt. The report said investigation had failed to substantiate Mrs. Massie's identification of the men as her assailants.

It also said no substantiation had been found for her identification of Joseph Kahahawai, fifth man accused. Kahahawai was shot and killed January 8, 1932, and Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, husband of the assault victim; her mother, Mrs. Grace Fortescue and two Navy enlisted men, were convicted of manslaughter. Their ten-year sentences were commuted to one hour by Gov. Judd. Lieut. Massie testified he shot Kahahawai.

The jury disagreed in the assault trial in November, 1931, and the men were freed on bond. The four against whom the charges were quashed today are Ben Ahakuelo, Hawaiian; Henry Chang, Chinese, and Horace Ida and David Tsakai, Japanese. The Territorial prison board is considering charges of a third sex crime against Chang to decide whether he shall serve the reainder of a 15-year sentence for criminal assault in 1929 from which he was paroled after serving six months.

Philadelphia, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Mrs. Thomas H. Massie said today she was not surprised at the quashing of the charges against the four men accused of having attacked her in Hawaii. She said she had expected this action for some time, and would have no further comment to make.

MALL WORKERS WIN RULING ON $11 DAILY WAGE

APPEAL IS PLANNED BY SUBCONTRACTORS

Truce Due Today if Notices of Slashes Are Taken From Buildings.

A truce in the dispute between union carpenters and subcontractors on six Mall building projects is in prospect for today, as a consequence of a ruling of the Treasury Department, issued yesterday, that $11 is the prevailing wage scale in the District.

The subcontractors, through their attorney, Fred J. Rice, today will lay the basis of an appeal to the Secretary of Labor against the Treasury Department decision of their claim that $8 is the prevailing pay scale for carpenters in the District.

The 200 carpenters will resume work today if the subcontractors will remove notices posted on the buildings that $8 is the prevailing scale, while the subcontractors are prepared to pay the $11 rate under protest, pending the appeal to the Secretary of Labor.

Subcontractors' Stand.

The subcontractors at a secret meeting last night, it is reliably reported, agreed to abide by the decision of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Ferry K. Heath, but would reserve all their rights to appeal to the Secretary of Labor.

Under the Bacon-Davis act, which requires that all labor on Federal projects shall be paid the prevailing scale in the community in which the Federal building is being erected, the contractors have the right to appeal from the Treasury Department ruling.

Such an appeal, however, Mr. Rice said, would have to be brought by the general contractor and not by the subcontractors. What may delay the filing of the petition for the rehearing of the case, is the advent of the new administration, which will bring a new Secretary of Labor. Ordinarily the law provides for a hearing within five days.

Wage Fraud Charged.

Meanwhile, Corporation Counsel William W. Bride received affidavits from four men employed as carpenters on the Kenilworth School, who

Coroner in North Carolina Finds Utility Magnate Shot Himself.

While the inquest was in progress, Mrs. Peterman was under guard in a hospital where she was taken shortly after her 47-year-old husband, vice president of the Southern Public Utilities Co., was found dead with a pistol wound in his head in their fashionable Myers Park residence.

Dr. E. J. Wannamaker, her physician, testified that, after a conversation with Mrs. Peterman at the hospital, he was convinced her husband killed himself.

It is a pleasure for me to address you upon the day when this club and our countrymen of all faiths throughout the land are paying tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln. We tonight also pay tribute to him as founder of the Republican party and the inspirer of its ideals. He, more than any other man, created the living, virile organization which has given responsible interpretation of those ideals to our people in each succeeding generation. The party has brought these ideals to realization in government and development of a great Nation. ## MACDONALD HINTS DEBTS CUT BARTER

Announcement Is Regarded as About-Face; Lindsay Off for U. S. Today.

London, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, packed his bags tonight preparatory to sailing back to the United States with "something tangible" to offer in preliminary discussions prior to the Anglo-American war debts conference next month.

The series of conferences with Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald and other high government leaders during his brief sojourn in London resulted in an intimation for the first time since the invitation to discuss debts was announced that Great Britain might be ready to give something in return for reduction of her war debt to America.

The intimation came from Premier MacDonald during a busy day before the House of Commons, where he was grilled by members on the war debts problem. His announcement was regarded as an about-face from the official attitude on war debts of no more than two weeks ago.

The MacDonald attitude included agreement, for one thing, to a sweeping discussion of the entire field of world economy and problems which he said could better be faced if America and Britain stood shoulder to shoulder on the economic front.

The premier was far more conciliatory than Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, was two weeks ago when he told a group of American correspondents at luncheon that Britain could not go to Washington for "a swapping deal" on war debts.

"The purpose of our delegation will be to get in close personal touch with the United States Government," MacDonald said, "so they may go on har-

'Kid' Lilly Caught After Bold Escape

Columbus, O., Police Take Man Sought for Murder in Alexandria.

William "Kid" Lilly, Negro desperado, wanted for the murder of Sergt. Charles R. McClary, of the Alexandria police department, on June 20, 1929, finally was captured yesterday by Columbus, Ohio, policemen, from whom he escaped, barefooted and hatless, Sunday under a hail of bullets.

Surrounded in his home, Lilly was subdued after a desperate fight with six policemen. The outlaw, also known as William Kidd and John Gaines, is alleged to have killed McClary when he, with Detective Edgar Sims, went to investigate a purported liquor establishment in Alexandria.

Lilly is also wanted in Wilson, N. C., for the murder of a policeman in 1922, but he will be returned to Alexandria to face trial for the murder of McClary.

Canadian Ship Ordered Released; Liquor Held

San Francisco, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Harold Louderback ordered the release of the Canadian liquor craft Kagome and her crew today at the same time calling for confiscation of the 507 cases of whisky and champagne with which she was loaded when seized off the Mendocino coast December 30.

The release was authorized by William D. Mitchell, United States Attorney General.

STABLE FUNDS CALLED VITAL

Gives Rallying Cry At G. O. P. Dinner in New York.

New York, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—A call to the world to reestablish itself upon the gold standard as the only means of avoiding an "incipient outbreak of economic war" was made tonight by President Hoover, coupled with a suggestion that a swap on war debts might be acceptable to gain this end.

Standing before the Lincoln Day gathering of the National Republican Club at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel to deliver probably the last address of his administration, the President gave also a rallying cry to his party to support the new administration in all constructive measures, while opposing "those which are harmful."

Although stating he wished to speak of matters upon which there should be no partisanship, the Chief Executive forecast that the Republican party "will be recalled to power by the American people."

15,000,000 Republican Votes.

He pointed to the 15,000,000 Republican votes cast in the last election despite "the reaction from the worst depression the world has ever seen" as testimony. He added that "one of the sure guarantees that this will be so" was the support given by the youth of the country. The party, he said, must look to them.

In his call for cooperation among nations against the depression, Mr. Hoover asserted flatly that the answer "can only be found quickly through the reestablishment of gold standards among important nations." He gave the following formula:

"Nor is it necessary from an international point of view that those nations who have been forced off the gold standard shall be again restored to former gold values. It will suffice if it is only fixed. From this source are the principal hopes for restoring world confidence and reversing the growing barriers to the movement of goods and making possible the security in trade which will again revive a demand for such goods.

Urges Silver Action.

"To do this it is necessary to have strong and courageous action on the part of the leading commercial nations. If some sort of international financial action is necessary to enable central banks to cooperate for the purpose of stabilizing currencies, nations should have no hesitation in joining in such an operation under proper safeguards.

"If some part of the debt payments to us could be set aside for temporary use for this purpose, we should not hesitate to do so. At the same time the world should endeavor to find a place for silver, at least in enlarged subsidiary coinage."

TEXT OF PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

tion from the worst depression the world has ever seen—is indeed testimony to the virility of the principles which Lincoln enunciated.

Those principles, the fiber and the determination of the party assure that it will be recalled to power by the American people. One of the sure guarantees that this will be so was the extraordinary support of the youth of the country in the last campaign. There has never been a time in the history of the party when it received such a large adherence of young men and women, when they exerted themselves with such capable organization, devotion and effort as they did in that campaign. It is to them that the party must look. It is in their idealism, their energy and their vitality that the Republican party can take assured hope for the future.

The people determined the election. Those of us who believe in the most basic principle insisted upon by Abraham Lincoln—the transcendent importance of popular government—have no complaint. We accept and, as Americans, will continue wholeheartedly to do our part in promoting the well-being of the country. Our party can truly feel that we have held the faith; that we shall do so in the future is our solemn responsibility.

It has ever been the party of constructive action. The Republican party will support the new administration in every measure which will promote public welfare. It must and will be vigilant in opposing those which are harmful.

My purpose is not to speak upon divided issues on this occasion, rather it is to discuss matters concerning which there should be no partisanship.

Foreign Influence In Domestic Problems.

Further steps toward economic recovery is the urgent problem before the entire world. Ceaseless effort must be directed to restoration of confidence, the vanquishing of fear and apprehension and, thus, the release of the recuperative spirit of the world.

It is therefore my purpose to discuss some of the broad measures which confront us in reaching further to the roots of this tragic disturbance, particularly in the field of foreign relations. While we have many concerns in the domestic field, we must realize that so long as we engage in the export and import of goods and in financial activities abroad our price levels and credit system, our employment and, above all, our fears will be greatly affected by foreign influences.

During the past two years the crash of one foreign nation after another under direct and indirect war inheritances has dominated our whole economic life. The time has now come when nations must accept, in self-interest no less than in altruism, the obligations to cooperate in achieving world stability so mankind may again resume the march of progress. Daily it becomes more certain that the next great constructive step in remedy of the illimitable human suffering from this depression lies in the international field. It is in that field where the tide of prices can be most surely and quickly turned and the tragic despair of unemployment, agriculture and business transformed to hope and confidence.

Economic degeneration is always a series of vicious cycles, of cause and effect. Whatever the causes may be, we must grasp these cycles at some segment and deal with them. Perhaps it would add clarity to the position I wish to make later if I should shortly follow through the cycle of financial failure which has at least in part taken place in countries abroad.

Artificial Barriers To Trade Abroad.

Many countries in addition to the other pressures of the depression were overburdened with debt and obligations from the World War or from excessive borrowing from abroad for rehabilitation or expansion. Many created or added to their difficulties through unbalanced budgets due to vast social programs or armament, finally reaching the point where collapse in governmental credit was inevitable. Foreigners in fear withdrew their deposits in such countries. Citizens in fright exported their capital. The result was a large movement of gold from such a country followed by the immediate undermining of confidence in its currency and its credit system. Runs on its banks ensued. Restrictions were imposed upon exchange to stop the flight of capital. Barriers were erected against the imports and commodities in endeavor to reduce the spending of her citizens for foreign goods and in an effort to establish equilibrium in exchange and retention of their gold reserves. Failure in such efforts resulted in abandonment of the gold standard.

Currency depreciation, stagnation in consumption of world goods, increase in their unemployment and further shrinkage in consumption of world goods, again and again affected all other nations. Depreciated currencies gave some nations the hope to manufacture goods more cheaply than their neighbors and thus to rehabilitate their financial position by invasion of the markets of other nations. Those nations in turn have sought to protect themselves by erecting barriers, until today as the result of such financial breakdown we are in the presence of an incipient outbreak of economic war in the world with the weapons of depreciated currencies, artificial barriers to trade by quotas, reciprocal trade agreements, discriminations, nationalistic campaigns to consume homemade goods, and a score of tactics each of which can be justified for the moment, but each of which adds to world confusion and dangers.

Out of the storm center of Europe this devastation has spread until, if we survey the world situation at the present moment, we find some 44 countries which have placed restrictions upon the movement of gold and exchange or are otherwise definitely off of the gold standard. In practically all of them these actions have within the past twelve months been accompanied by new restrictions upon imports in an endeavor to hold or attract gold or to give some stability to currencies.

These depreciations of currency and regulations of exchange and restrictions of imports originated as defense measures by nations to meet their domestic financial difficulties. But a new phase is now developing among these nations—that is, the rapid degeneration into economic war which threatens to engulf the world. The imperative call to the world today is to prevent this war.

Ever since the storm began in Europe the United States has held stanchly to the gold standard. In the present setting of depreciated currencies and in the light of differences in costs of production our tariffs are below those of most countries; we have held free from quotas, preferences, discriminations among nations. We have thereby maintained one Gibraltar of stability in the world and contributed to check the movement to chaos.

We are ourselves now confronted with an unnatural movement of goods from the lowered costs and standards of countries of depreciated currencies, which daily increase our unemployment and our difficulties. We are confronted with discriminatory actions and barriers stifling our agricultural and other markets. We will be ourselves forced to defensive action to protect ourselves unless this mad race is stopped. We must not be the major victim of it all.

In all this competition of degeneration, these beginnings of economic war between scores of nations, we see a gradual shrinkage in demand for international commodities throughout the world, and continuing fall of prices in terms of gold. From falling prices and unemployment we have at once the inability of debtors to meet their obligations to their creditors, the dispossession of people from their farms and homes and businesses.

Two Dominant Uses Of Gold Are Cited.

If the world is to secure economic peace, if it is to turn in the tide of degeneration, if it is to restore the functioning of the production and distribution systems of the world, it must start somewhere to break these vicious fiscal and financial circles. I am convinced that the first point of attack is to secure assured greater stability in the currencies of the important commercial nations. Without such stability the continued results of uncertainty, the destruction of confidence by currency fluctuations, exchange controls and artificial import restrictions can not be overcome, but will continue to increase. With effective stability of currencies these dangers can be at once relaxed. I am not unaware that currency instability is both a cause and an effect in the vicious cycle—but we must start somewhere.

This brings me to a phase which has gradually developed during the past months, and that is the reactions and relations of gold itself upon this situation. For, independent of other causes of degeneration, I am convinced that the circumstances which surround this commodity are contributing to drive nations to these interferences with free commerce and to other destructive artificialities.

Outside minor use in the arts there are two dominant uses of gold. First, the important commercial nations have builded their domestic currency and credit systems upon a foundation of convertibility into gold. Second, gold is the most acceptable of all commodities in international payments. Even the nations that have abandoned the gold standard must still depend upon gold for this purpose. It is true that nations must in the long run balance their international trade by goods, service or investments, but in the intermediate ebb and flow, balances must still be settled by the use of gold.

In all the welter of discussion over these problems we find some who are maintaining that the world has outgrown the use of gold as a basis of currency and exchange. We can all agree that gold as a commodity of universal exchange has not worked perfectly in the face of this great economic eruption. But we have to remember that it is a commodity the value of which is enshrined in human instincts for over 10,000 years. The time may come when the world can safely abandon its use altogether for these purposes, but it has not yet reached that point.

It may be that by theoretically managed currencies some form of stability may be found a score or two years hence, but we have no time to wait. They are subject to great human fallibilities. Sooner or later political pressure of special groups and interests will direct their use. But in any event it would take many years' demonstration to convince men that a nongold currency would certainly a year hence be worth what he paid for it today.

It is noticeable that most the nations off the gold standard are even today seeking to increase their gold reserves. In the view of many economists, these measures and the restrictions which have been placed on the movement of gold or exchange by two score of nations have created the same practical effect as if there were a scarcity of gold in the world. That while there has in the last few years been a very large increase in the quantity of visible gold in the possession of institutions and governments, the effect of all these regulatory actions by governments attempting to protect their gold reserves from runs and flights of capital and their attempts to increase their supply has been to divide the gold of the world into two score of pockets and in many of them to freeze it from full freedom of action. In other words, this view holds that we are today not dealing with a shortage of the commodity; we are dealing with its being partly immobilized in its functioning.

To add to the confusion, another phenomenon of the gold situation has increased disturbance and wrought havoc. That is the effect of waves of fear and apprehension. We have a parallel in nations to an unreasoning panic run on a bank. The fears and apprehensions directed in turn to the stability of first one nation and then another have caused the withdrawal of foreign balances from a particular nation, followed by flights of capital, through purchases of exchange by its own citizens seeking refuge and security for their property.

Domestic Currency And Credit System.

These movements are followed by large flows of gold to meet exchange demands, thus undermining the domestic currency and credit system of the victim nation and leading to an unnatural piling up of gold in some nation temporarily considered safe. These movements, themselves in large degree unwarranted, have forced some nations off the gold standard that could otherwise have maintained their position. We ourselves a year ago suffered from the effects of such a movement. Thus a mass of the gold dashing hither and yon from one nation to another, seeking maximum safety, has acted like a cannon loose on the deck of the world in a storm.

In the meantime the currencies of the world are fluctuating spasmodically. Countries off the gold standard are in reality suffering from their managed paper currencies by reason of the fact that men are unable to make contracts for the future with security, and that insecurity itself again dries up enterprise, business, employment, consumption of goods, and further causes reductions of prices. Other nations, to hold their own, are attempting to compete in destruction.

Broadly, the solution lies in the reestablishment of confidence. That confidence can not be reestablished by the abandonment of gold as a standard in the world. So far as the human race has yet developed and established its methods and systems of stable exchange, that solution can only be found now and found quickly through the reestablishment of gold standards among important nations. The huge gold reserves of the world can be made to function in relation to currencies, standards of value, and exchange. And I say with emphasis that I am not proposing this as a favor to the United States. It is the need of the whole world. The United States is so situated that it can protect itself better than almost any country on earth.

Nor is it necessary from an international point of view that those nations who have been forced off the gold standard shall be again restored to former gold values. It will suffice if it only is fixed. From this source are the principal hopes for restoring world confidence and reversing the growing barriers to the movement of goods, and making possible the security in trade which will again revive a demand for such goods. To do this it is necessary to have strong and courageous action on the part of the leading commercial nations. If some sort of international financial action is necessary to enable central banks to cooperate for the purpose of stabilizing currencies, nations should have no hesitation in joining in such an operation under proper safeguards. If some part of the debt payments to us could be set aside from temporary use for this purpose we should not hesitate to do so. At the same time the world should endeavor to find a place for silver, at least in enlarged subsidiary coinage.

If the major nations will enter the road leading to the early reestablishment of the gold standard, then and then only can the abnormal barriers to trade, the quotas, preferences, discriminatory agreements and tariffs which exceed the differences in costs of production between nations be removed, uniform trade privileges among all nations be reestablished and the threat of economic war averted.

A reasonable period of comparative stability in the world's currencies would repay the cost of such effort a hundred times over in the increase of consumption, the increase of employment, the lessening of the difficulties of debtors throughout the land, with the avoidance of millions of tragedies. The world would quickly see a renewed movement of goods and would have an immediate rise in prices everywhere, thereby bringing immediate relief to the whole economic system.

I do not underestimate the difficulties nor the vast fiscal and financial problems which lie behind the restoration of stability and economic peace. Bold action alone can succeed. The alternative to such constructive action is a condition too grave to be contemplated in passive acceptance.

America Soon to Be At Forks of 3 Roads.

The American people will soon be at the fork of three roads. The first is the highway of cooperation among nations, thereby to remove the obstructions to world consumption and rising prices. This road leads to real stability, to expanding standard of living, to a resumption of the march of progress by all peoples. It is today the immediate road to relief of agriculture and unemployment, not alone for us but the entire world.

The second road is to rely upon our high degree of national self-containment, to increase our tariffs, to create quotas and discriminations, and to engage in definite methods of curtailment of production of agricultural and other products, and thus to secure a larger measure of economic isolation from world influences. It would be a long road of readjustments into unknown and uncertain fields. But it may be necessary if the first way out is closed to us. Some measures may be necessary pending cooperative conclusions with other nations.

The third road is that we inflate our currency, consequently abandon the gold standard and, with our depreciated currency, attempt to enter a world economic war, with the certainty that it leads to complete destruction, both at home and abroad.

The first road can only be undertaken by cooperation among all important nations. Last April, in conjunction with the leaders of Europe, our Government developed the idea of a world economic conference to deal with these questions. It is unfortunate that the delay of events in Europe and the election in the United States necessarily postponed the convening of that conference. It has been further delayed by the change of our administrations.

The question naturally arises whether other nations will cooperate to restore world confidence, stability, and economic peace. In this connection, I trust the American people will not be misled or influenced by the ceaseless stream of foreign propaganda that cancellation of war debts would give this international relief and remedy. That is not true. These debts are but a segment of the problem. Their world trade importance is being exaggerated.

In this respect I stated some months ago, the American people can well contend that most of the debtor countries have the capacity to raise these annual amounts from their taxpayers, as witness the fact that in most cases the payments to us amount to less than one-third of the military expenditures of each country. But at the same time we can well realize that in some instances the transfer of these sums may gravely disturb their currency or international exchanges. But if we are asked for sacrifices because of such injury we should have assurances of cooperation that will positively result in monetary stability and the restoration of world prosperity. If we are asked for sacrifices because of incapacity to pay, we should have tangible compensations in restoration of our proportion of their agricultural and other imports.

The world should have relief from the sore burden of armaments. If they are unwilling to meet us in these fields, this Nation, whether you or I like it or not, will be driven by our own internal forces more and more to its own self-containment and isolation, as harmful to the world and as little satisfactory to us as this course may be.

But this is the counsel of despair. The full meed of prosperity among nations can not be builded upon mutual impoverishment. It is to the interest of the world to join in bold and courageous action which will bring about economic peace—in which the benefits to the rest of the world are as great as to us—and we should cooperate to the full. Any other course in the world today endangers civilization itself. Unless the world takes heed it will end that it has lost its standards of living and culture, not for a few years of depression but for generations.

Progress in World Cooperation Is Shown.

Despite many discouragements, the world has shown an increasing ability in establishment of effective agencies in the solution of many controversies which might have led to war. When we compare the attitude of nations toward each other which existed 20 years ago with that of today, we can say that there has been developed both the spirit and the method of cooperation in the prevention of war which gives profound hope of the future.

In its broad light the problem before the world today is to work together to prevent the dangers of developing economic conflict—to secure economic peace. That is a field in which the world can cooperate even more easily than in the field of prevention of war, because there is involved in it no background of century old controversies, injustices, or hates. The problems in that economic field contain less of the imponderable and more of the concrete. There is involved in it the most important and appealing self-interest of every nation. Through such cooperation the world can mitigate the forces which are destroying the systems of production and distribution upon the maintenance of which its gigantic population is dependent.

There is a driving force before the eyes of every statesman in the misery and suffering which have infected every nation. Throughout the world the pepole are distraught with unemployment; the decline of prices which has plunged farmers into despair; the loss of homes, of savings and provisions for old age. Therefore, just as there is an obligation among nations to engage in every possible step for the prevention of war itself, there is before us today the necessity for world cooperation to prevent economic warfare. And who can say but the greatest act in prevention of war is to allay economic friction.

On our side this problem is not to be solved by partisan action, but by national unity. Whatever our differences of view may be on domestic policies, the welfare of the American people rests upon solidarity before the world, not merely in resisting proposals which would weaken the United States and the world, but solidarity in cooperation with other nations in strengthening the whole economic fabric of the world. These problems are not insoluble. There is a latent, earnest and underlying purpose on the part of all nations to find their solution. Of our own determination there should be no question.

The problem before the world is to restore confidence and hope by the release of the strong, natural forces of recovery which are inherent in this civilization. Civilization is the history of surmounted difficulties. We of this world today are of the same strain as our fathers who builded this civilization. They passed through most terrible conflicts. They met many great depressions. They created a state of human well-being in normal times such as the world has never seen. The next forward step is as great as any in history. It is that we perpetuate the welfare of mankind through the immense objectives of world recovery and world peace.

away after one of the men thrust into Mrs. Boettcher's hand a note demanding $60,000 ransom.

Although authorities guarded the contents of the note, written on plain white paper, it was reported as stating:

"Don't notify police. Tell Claude Boettcher he had better get $60,000 ransom. Follow instructions. Remember the Lindbergh baby would still be alive if ransom had been paid. Notify us through a personal ad stating 'Please write, I am ready to return. Mabel.'"

Insertion of the advertisement was taken to mean the family intended to meet any demands of the kidnapers. Mrs. Millson McCormick, mother of the broker, said in Kansas City Boettcher's wife had informed her by telephone that she intended carrying out the kidnapers' instructions.

The elder Boettcher posted a $5,000 reward for the safe return of his son.

Chief Clark said Alterie and two unidentified men were seen together before Alterie was ordered to leave Colorado recently.

Alterie, who, police said, was a former lieutenant of the late Dion O'Bannion, slain Chicago gangster, was ordered from the State February 1 after he was convicted of assault with intent to murder in Glenwood Springs, Colo. He was given his choice of leaving the State February 1 or serving a prison sentence.

PARIS HOUSE VOTES BUDGET, 359 TO 235

Ends 37-Hour Session; New Taxes Facing Protest Mass Meetings.

Paris, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—The Chamber of Deputies voted the government's financial project 359 to 235 tonight after a session lasting 37 hours. The measure effects economies and new taxes totaling $210,480,000.

The government proposed a question of confidence on the final vote which the Chamber, surprisingly fresh after a day and a half of hectic debate, gave. The bill now goes to the Senate, which is likely to modify it, and a hot fight is expected to develop with the government in a difficult position between the two houses.

After the vote was taken the Chamber adjourned until Friday.

The Chamber had been in session since 9 a. m. Sunday.

Many of the deputies slept in their chairs, but almost all of them remained in the Chamber except for occasional trips out for food and drink. Premier Edouard Daladier took time off for a few hours of sleep.

The long session kept the Chamber barber busy. At one time 600 persons were waiting to get in the barber chair.

The "Hitler peril" was invoked by opponents of measures to decrease the national defense budget, but Premier Daladier vigorously defended the economies, which, he declared, would not imperil national safety. Reductions of $20,300,000 were voted.

The National Federation of Taxpayers announced that great mass meetings had been called throughout France March 19 to protest against increased taxes. The federation expects several hundred thousand to participate.

Supreme Court Refuses Review on Shuler Radio

The fight which the Trinity Methodist Church South and the Rev. Robert P. Shuler have been making to force the Federal Radio Commission to renew the license of broadcasting Station KGEF, at Los Angeles, ended in defeat yesterday when the Supreme Court refused to reconsider its recent action declining to review the case.

The station, owned by the church, was used by Shuler to broadcast addresses which aroused resentment because of attacks on the Roman Catholic Church and persons prominent in official and social life. Shuler was defeated in the recent election as a candidate for the United States Senate.

Senate Group Asks Debtor Legislation

Party Leaders Promise Early Action on Emergency Relief Bills.

(Associated Press.)

Emergency legislation designed to aid the individual and farm debtor classes by liberalization of the bankruptcy laws received the unanimous approval yesterday of the Senate Judiciary Committee, and party leaders promised early floor consideration.

In voting for a complete substitute for a bill recently passed by the House, the committee discarded provisions to assist the railroads and other corporations in speeding reorganization. Members said this was done to assure passage of the legislation at this session. Chairman Norris said if the corporate clauses were included it would have been "physically impossible" to pass the bill this session.

Under the bill approved by the Judiciary Committee an individual debtor might avoid bankruptcy by obtaining consent to a cash settlement or extension from a majority of his creditors and then get court approval of the agreement.

LINDBERGH THREAT CASE BAIL REDUCED

Hearing of 3 on Charges of Trying $50,000 Extortion Is Postponed.

Roanoke, Va., Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Winning a fight for reduction in the amount of bail demanded, three young defendants charged with attempting to extort $50,000 from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh by threats to kidnap his second son had their hearing before a United States Commissioner postponed today until Saturday.

The delay of the hearing, however, was made at request of Government counsel on the plea that more time be given for study of handwriting samples taken to Washington.

Even with the lowered bonds defense counsel said they were not hopeful of obtaining release of Joe Bryant, 19, for whom $5,000 bond is asked, or Norman Harvey, for whom $7,500 is demanded. A $5,000 surety previously posted for Elsie Harvey, Norman's wife, was denewed and she remained at liberty.

United States authorities vigorously objected to lowering the bonds below $10,000 especially for Harvey. Both previously had been held in jail on failure to raise $25,000 bonds set for each. The defense did not object to the continuance.

With continuance request granted, the Government hastened forward with the handwriting scrutiny it started Saturday. Tonight District Agent T. N. Stapleton was en route to Washington with all of the samples left here by John M. Keith, special investigator for the Department of Justice, who early Saturday morning put Bryant through a two-hour handwriting drill.

Meanwhile District Attorney Joseph C. Shaffer and his assistant, T. X. Parsons, plan to examine searchingly the statements given by the three defendants arrested Thursday after a two-months effort to trap the writers of extortion letters to Lindbergh.

"We still have several 'leads' we wish to check," Parsons said tonight. "We believe we have a good case, but we do not wish to rush into it."

army after the Chinese had been expelled from Manchuria. In all official quarters Japan's reply to the league was interpreted as marking the end of conciliation in the Manchurian dispute and putting Japan on the verge of withdrawal or excommunication from the league.

A foreign office spokesman, commenting on the settlement recommendations which have been drawn up in Geneva and which call for a commission of the powers, including the United States and Russia, to direct negotiations between China and Japan, asserted that he believed Tokyo's withdrawal from the league was a foregone conclusion.

The league crisis resulted in a heavy slump in the Tokyo Stock Exchange. The public was fearful that Japan was to be evicted from the Society of Nations.

The foreign office spokesman said he believed that a "secret understanding" had been arrived at by the United States, China and Soviet Russia.

"I am confident such an alliance (between China and Russia) will be sprung on the world sooner or later," he said, "and I would not be surprised if America had a secret understanding with the parties thereto."

moniously, facing big problems which have to be faced by both."

The premier added: "Our object would be to promote revival of world trade prosperity. While settlement of the war debts is an essential condition to such a revival, the government has already recognized that there are a number of factors, financial and economic, which must also be dealt with and we would be very glad to exchange views with the United States Government over the whole field."

MacDonald's admission that he was ready to go into matters other than those purely related to the debt was regarded as a victory for President-elect Roosevelt at the start of these delicate conversations to be held next month, after he enters the White House. However, credit also was given for the purportedly changed attitude here to Sir Ronald.

The ambassador in numerous conferences with the cabinet's war debt committee, including MacDonald and Chamberlain, laid down the facts as seen by the American people on the debt. He did his utmost realistically to show the cabinet the strong feeling in the United States Congress and in public opinion generally against reducing the debt without some compensation for their generosity.

Sir Ronald is to meet with the whole cabinet tomorrow, prior to sailing on the Majestic for America. He will be followed immediately by experts to prepare the program of economic subjects to be discussed in Washington, including tariffs.

T. K. Bewlay, assistant secretary of the treasury, plans to accompany the ambassador back to the United States tomorrow, as his "financial adviser."

BARUCH DEALS HARD BLOW TO INFLATION

Views Given at Senate Quiz Coincide With Those of Hoover.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

A remarkable crystallization of influential American opinion on the essentials of world economic restoration was demonstrated yesterday in two widely separated events bearing directly upon immediate international steps looking to business recovery.

Bernard M. Baruch, war-time dictator of American industry and one of America's foremost Democratic spokesmen on economic affairs, told the Harrison inquiry in the Senate that recovery must be based on sound money, a balanced budget and a general intensification of international economic collaboration.

On every fundamental point, Mr. Baruch's map of the road back coincided with the views presented last night by President Hoover in his valedictory, before the National Republican Club, in New York City.

Point-by-Point Accord.

The point-by-point agreement on basic policies as set forth in these two authoritative expositions of national policies was marked by leaders of both parties in the House and Senate last night. To many keen observers on Capitol Hill the almost unparalleled coincidence of yesterday's utterances by responsible spokesmen of both parties on the grave problems awaiting world consideration, assumed the proportions of an historic event.

Reduced to four broad points of policy, Mr. Baruch's carefully prepared statement before the Harrison committee urged the maintenance of sound currency as the keystone of any rehabilitation program. An honestly balanced national budget was listed as the second essential objective. World cooperation in the field of economics as well as on the pressing political questions of armaments and peace, were emphasized as the third immediate necessity. Fourth, there must be worked out promptly, some effective means of lightening the burden of debt, both public and private.

"Between our present status and disaster there is only a thin veil of popular complacency," Mr. Baruch told the committee at one point, "and there are projects before you now which might destroy that slender protection in one day. The most dangerous are the projects to inflate the currency."

Mere Discussion Harmful.

After repudiating the suggestion that inflation would bring higher prices to assuage the burden of private debt, Mr. Baruch warned the committee and Nation: "Confidence is the basis of higher prices. If there is no confidence, no amount of tinkering with the currency can raise the price level."

In this connection, he emphasized that frequently the mere discussion of inflationary proposals tends to undermine business confidence, and thus to delay industrial and commercial projects already planned.

President Hoover's New York address, which had been heralded as merely another Lincoln's Birthday tribute, developed to be a broad survey of the world situation in general, with particular emphasis upon the need for the maintenance of sound economic policies in the United States, and the urgent demand for international action to reopen the normal channels of foreign trade.

Many-Sided Picture.

Mr. Baruch presented a many-sided picture of the present world-wide economic dislocation, and cautioned repeatedly against the somewhat general tendency throughout the country to solve the situation with any one factor.

"I regard the situation of this country today as the most serious in its history," he said at one point. "It has been said to be like war. It is worse than war. In war there is a definite enemy. We know what and where he is and how to fight him. But this enemy of depression wears no uniform and takes no position on any front * * * If I did not know that there was nothing but destruction to be derived from the project of inflation, I would be the first to advocate its trial. But I am as certain as that we are sitting here that the path proposed is the road to ruin."

In dealing directly with inflation, President Hoover used these words:

"The third road is that we inflate our currency, consequently abandon the gold standard, and with our depreciated currency attempt to enter a world economic war, with the certainty that it leads to complete destruction at home and abroad."

Treaty of Versailles.

In his survey of the world politico-economic problems, Mr. Baruch said that many of today's difficulties flow directly from the inequalities and injustices of the Versailles Peace Treaty. His remark that "the peace of Versailles was a peace dictated at the point of a gun," recalled the statement of President Hoover in his acceptance address last August to the effect that "springs of poison are imbedded in the treaties which ended the World War." Both Baruch and Hoover were members of the American Peace Commission to Paris in 1919.

Roosevelt High Entertainment.

The third in the series of demonstrations and practice in games, stunts, story-telling, story dramatization, folk, tap and new forms of dancing, for leaders of city-wide recreational groups will be held tonight at Roosevelt High School, under supervision of the Community Center Department, with the cooperation of leading recreation agencies throughout the city.

OLD TRAGEDY LINKED TO JERSEY MYSTERY

Father of Youth Found Dead With Girl Sees Bradway Brown Connection.

Philadelphia, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Breaking a three-year silence, a father paved the way today for the reopening of the investigation of the deaths in Moorestown, N. J., of Horace Roberts, Jr., youthful social registerite, and Ruth Mowdray Wilson, a wealthy girl the young man hoped to wed.

Horace Roberts, sr., the parent, said he is convinced the deaths in 1929 of his son and Miss Wilson, found unconscious from bullet wounds in the young woman's bedroom, are in some way connected with the recent mysterious killing of Bradway Brown, who was a close friend of the young couple.

Brown was found dead in his Palmyra, N. J., home the night of January 16. The 26-year-old Philadelphia Printing Co. executive at first was thought to have killed himself, but police later agreed he had been slain. He was a witness three years ago at the coroner's inquest which resulted in a verdict that Roberts, his college chum, shot to death Miss Wilson, presumably because of lost love, and then ended his own life.

"Threats" Repeated.

At that time, Brown, then living across the street, testified Roberts had "jokingly" threatened to commit suicide because of Miss Wilson's cooling affections. He declared Roberts told him: "If she doesn't marry me, she won't marry anyone."

Testimony at the inquest showed that Roberts had been shot four times and Miss Wilson twice.

"I don't see how anyone can believe my boy fired four shots into his own head," the Senior Roberts said.

New Clews Found.

Roberts' father said he has several valuable new clews, but would not divulge the nature of them.

"At the time of the tragedy," he said, "we were all so broken up that we felt it best to let things be as quiet as possible. There didn't seem to be anything to be gained by stirring up trouble. I thought 'we'll just wait a while, and sooner or later there will be some real information to come to light someplace.'"

Roberts revealed that his son carried $51,000 in insurance. Of this amount, he said, $20,000 has been collected. The remainder has been unpaid because of suicide clauses in the policies. Should the case be reopened and Roberts be declared slain, the victim's parents could collect the balance.

MALL CARPENTERS FAVORED IN DECISION ON WAGE SLASH

claim they were hired as carpenters and were paid 40 cents an hour as common laborers instead of $1.37½ an hour, the wage for carpenters.

The affidavits also asserts that P. S. Dennis, job superintendent of the Industrial Engineering & Construction Co., instructed the men to testify at the hearing last week in the District Building that they were hired as laborers and not as carpenters.

This hearing was on charges that the company compelled workers to buy shares in a realty development in the Southeast section, the payment for which consumed more than half of their salary, before they could obtain employment. The company was ordered to rebate this money. About half of the employes have asked for the rebate and the others are willing to continue work under the same conditions.

The interpretation of the Davis-Bacon act, requested by the George A. Fuller Co., was handed down by Maj. Heath, who declared that a survey of public and commercial projects under construction in the District showed the prevailing scale to be $11 a day.

Heath Basis Questioned.

The objection to Maj. Heath's decision, as viewed by Mr. Rice, is that he based his judgment on the wage paid in both public and commercial projects, while Rice believes the law requires that the scale shall be adjusted on the basis of the scales of only private enterprises.

In support of his interpretation of the law he quotes William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who, before a congressional committee, testified that the wage should be gauged by that paid in private industry in the respective community.

Mr. Rice says the prevailing rate as shown by the Master Builders Association, which employs 75 per cent of the union carpenters in the District, is $8 a day. In addition, he said, other contractors who, with the Master Builders Association employ 85 per cent of union carpenters in the District, are paying not more than $8 a day in private industry, which he said, is the prevailing wage scale.

The opinion of union leaders last night was that the decision of Maj. Heath would be regarded as final.

One Agreement Signed.

The representatives of the George A. Fuller Co. could not be reached to ascertain whether an appeal would be made to the Labor Department. Union leaders pointed out that only the general contractors could bring such an appeal and the majority of these have made no move toward a reduction. With one exception, they said, all the slashing attempts have been made by subcontractors.

Henry W. Blumenberg, general representative of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters of America, ordered his agents to send their men back to work on condition that the subcontractors remove the notices they posted last week declaring the $8 rate to be the prevailing wage.

The Washington Steel Form Co., which is a subcontractor on the Department of Agriculture extension, is understood to have signed an agreement with the carpenters to pay the prevailing wage of $11. This is one of the companies which had posted notices of the reduction to $8.

The reason the union men are confident that most of the subcontractors will abide by the decision of Maj. Heath is that the general contractors, they say, are empowered by the contracts to order the resumption of work by the general contractors. If work is not continued within 48 hours, they pointed out, the general contractor may proceed with the work at the expense of the subcontractor.

Alexandria Council Today Gets Plan to Issue Scrip

The Alexandria Chamber of Commerce last night agreed to present to the city council today a proposition to adopt what is referred to as the "Hawarden Plan" for the issuance of scrip, which can be used only in making purchases from Alexandria merchants.

The approval of the city council to the plan is necessary. If that body approves, the scrip money would be issued by the city government, and each user would purchase a 3-cent stamp from the city government, to be attached to the scrip. When 98 stamps have been attached, bearing a face value of $1.08, the money is redeemed by the city for $1. The eight cents in excess of the face value will go for printing and other expenses incident to the use of the scrip.

The proposition will be placed before the council tonight by Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the Chamber of Commerce, and it is understood that if the council approves, the matter will be referred back to the trade body for further details. It will then be necessary for arrangements to be made with merchants and others for acceptance of the scrip.

DISTRICT TAX BOOST PLAN FACES ATTACK

rate, The Post was advised. This group will contend that the cut is logical, in view of the present huge surplus.

The House District Appropriations subcommittee made a futile effort yesterday to get a rule from the House Rules Committee making the proposed intangibles tax increase in order when the proposal comes up on the House floor. The subcommittee estimated it could raise $509,000 from this tax to finance local unemployment relief.

Although Chairman Cannon, Representative Blanton (Democrat), Texas; Representative Holaday (Republican), Illinois, and Representative Mapes (Republican), Michigan, argued hotly for the rule, the committee refused to grant it.

The rule was defeated by a margin of one vote, it was authoritatively learned. The meeting was attended by four Republicans and five Democrats, not counting the chairman. One Democrat, Representative Thomas S. McMillan, of South Carolina, voted with the four Republicans, to block the proposal.

Speaking against the proposed increase from $5 to $6 on every $1,000 of intangibles, Representative Wood and Representative Howard W. Smith (Democrat), Virginia, addressed the committee. Pointing out that only one-tenth of all intangibles are reached for taxation, Mr. Wood argued that the proposed increase will penalize those who are honest enough to pay it, and leave the other nine-tenths untouched.

Representative Smith intimated that the Appropriations Committee is usurping powers of the House District Committee, contending that the proposed tax, if found necessary after hearings before the latter body, should be spread over all of the people rather than apply to one class.

Trade Board Will Fight Higher Tax for District

Opposition of the Washington Board of Trade to an increase in local taxes, while a surplus to the credit of the District mounts in the Treasury, will take definite form this afternoon at a meeting of the municipal finance committee of the organization.

Civic leaders and representatives of various types of business throughout the city have been invited to the meeting to give thorough discussion to the problem. The meeting is scheduled for 3 p. m. The trade board terms as paradoxical the idea of raising additional revenues through taxation, and at the same time curtailing the expenditures of the District so as to set up a surplus of about $6,000,000.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

"Keep Your Face Toward the Sun and the Shadows Will Fall Behind."

STAMP collectors made a beaten path yesterday to the Philatelic Agency, City Postoffice, to get their supply of the new Oglethorpe 3-cent stamps. It was one of those customary rushes that mark the first-day sale of commemorative issues.

"Give me ten sheets without straight edges."

Two Georgetown University students stood at the window and ordered several dollars' worth.

A colored man handed a note through the window.

"Do you want Oglethorpe stamps?" asked Miss N. P. Bond, relief clerk.

"I guess so. The note will tell."

A man with his elbows poking through his overcoat peeled off several dollar bills and paid for his supply.

And so they came and went all day until closing time at 3:30 p. m.

Perhaps you've not been used to being thanked at a stamp window for patronage. You get thanks at the Philatelic Agency. For it is a growing business. But the window sales, totaling $2,189, were not all the demands for the Oglethorpe stamp. Six hundred letters, totaling $2,500, were received during the day from all over the world. They are being supplied as rapidly as the limited clerk staff can work.

AND while the same stamps can be had at other stamp windows, they just don't have the same selection. The center perforations and the other selected lots can be bought at the Philatelic Agency. The general run of stamps goes to the postmasters for the postage trade.

Stamps have the advantage of always retaining their face value. Even if they don't enhance they'll always be worth the purchase price.

Philatelic sales at the agency averaged $10,000 for the first complete quarter in 1932. Forty thousand mail order sales are being made now in a single year, and this business of selling stamps through the agency has grown to average $300,000 a year.

Incidentally, it is C. A. Huston who designed the Oglethorpe stamp. E. M. Hall and W. B. Wells, Bureau of Printing, are the engravers and John Eisler is the portrait engraver.

THE Elizabeth Somers Glee Club sang at the morning service of the Naval Hospital Sunday, February 5. The Glee Club consists of 30 girls, the most of whom live at the Elizabeth Somers. Every year in April the club gives a fine concert at Barker Hall in the Y. W. C. A. Building. This year the concert is to be unusually interesting. The president of the club is Miss Marjorie C. Swanson, who works in the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The Elizabeth Somers, Eleventh and M streets, is the residence home of the Y. W. C. A. Here a girl can find a real home and live for less than many other places in Washington. More than half the residents are Government workers.

Welcome, Mrs. Gladys W. Kidridge, Bureau of Public Roads, as entrant in the Federal Diary Spelling Bee, the evening of February 28, National Press Club. We wish you luck.

"A word for your spelling bee: "Chargoggagogmanchaugagogchaubunagungamaugg," writes a correspondent from Agriculture. "It is a lake at Webster, Mass. This is really a word and it is where Janina Vroklernok, War Department, lived.

RECENTLY we had the pleasure of meeting A. W. Hall, director, Bureau of Engraving and Printing; also his assistant, J. E. Swigart.

In the outer office were Miss E. L. Sible, Mr. Hall's secretary, and Miss C. E. Harbaugh, secretary to Mr. Swigart.

And if you know much about one of the leading products at Engraving, you also know that much of it is colored green. Greenbacks, green stamps. And both young women wore green dresses and about the same shade, blending well with the green trimming of the walls.

So green is not the popular shade for dresses at Commerce alone.

And doesn't the calendar say "St. Patrick's Day is just around the corner?"

Depression? At least in Forest Service we find everything just so. From Forest Service reports we notice these expressions:

"Lined up," "curved up," "figured up," "leveled up," "written up," "head up" and "washed up."

So everything must be looking "up."

And we might say that C. E. Randall, information office, in charge of educational cooperation, Forest Service, is one of the softest-spoken men we've ever heard. But he does a lot of worthwhile work and does it quietly, minus the bluster we might find in some offices.

YOUR INCOME TAX

NO. 13.

DEDUCTIONS FOR PROFESSIONAL EXPENSES.

A professional man may deduct all necessary expenses incurred in the pursuit of his profession. These include the cost of supplies used in his practice, expenses paid in the operation and repairs of an automobile used in making professional calls, office rent, cost of light, water, fuel, and telephone in his office, and the hire of office assistants.

Many physicians use their residences both as their offices and their homes. In such instance the physician may deduct as a business expense the rental value of the rooms occupied for office purposes if he actually pays rent, and also the cost of light and heat furnished these rooms. Also, he may deduct a portion of the wages paid domestic servants whose time is partly occupied in caring for these rooms. Membership dues in professional societies are deductible. Physicians and dentists who keep in their waiting rooms current magazines and newspapers for the benefit of their patients may deduct this item as a business expense. The cost of professional journals for the taxpayer's own use also is a deductible item.

The cost of technical books is not a deductible item, being a capital expenditure, but a proportionate amount for each year's depreciation of the books may be deducted. Insurance premiums on office or other professional equipment and liability insurance may be deducted. Automobile liability insurance may be deducted only when the automobile is used wholly in pursuit of the taxpayer's profession, and the cost of the entire upkeep may legitimately be claimed as a professional expense.

HIGH SCHOOL CENTER PLANNED BY BUDGET

Fairfax Board Would Cut Elementary Grades of Lee-Jackson.

Tentative plans outlined by the School Board of Fairfax County, Va., yesterday in drafting the proposed school budget for the next fiscal year, would establish the Lee-Jackson School on the Little River pike, just outside the city of Alexandria, as a high school center eliminating the elementary grades.

The plans discussed contemplate the erection of an additional six rooms and auditorium at the Groveton School on the Washington Richmond highway 3 miles south of Alexandria. This would establish a grade school center in Mount Vernon Magisterial District to take care of the children of Cameron, New Alexandria, Belle Haven and the territory along the Potomac River from Accotink to Cameron. School bus transportation will be provided to take the pupils to the school centers.

Congestion Is Acute.

The tentative plans were discussed as a means of relieving the congestion in the Lee-Jackson School which has become acute in the last two years and is in agreement with the board's policy of consolidation by discontinuing the smaller schools and the establishment of modern school centers. The grade pupils attending the Lee-Jackson School from the south and west sections of Falls Church District will be transported to Baileys Cross Roads School, as will pupils from Wakefield. A detailed bus system to transport the pupils to the various schools was outlined by Superintendent W. T. Woodson.

It was also decided to close the Colchester School in Mount Vernon District and transport the pupils to the Lorton School. There the bus would pick up all high school pupils, those now going to high school in Prince William County and those coming by railroad to Lee-Jackson at a cost of $40 a month each and take them to the new high school center at Lee-Jackson. The Snowden School would also be closed by the consolidation at Groveton.

Big Savings Forecast.

The new high school center at Lee-Jackson would take care of high school students living in Mount Vernon and Lee Districts, the major portion of Falls Church District and possibly part of Providence District. It is believed by the board members that such a plan of consolidation would save the county several thousand dollars annually by utilization of empty classrooms at Baileys Cross Roads, and eliminating the necessity of immediate enlargement of the present school building at Annandale and Lee-Jackson.

Letters were received by the board yesterday from the Herndon Chamber of Commerce and the Pioneer Grange of Masonville, protesting against a reduction in teachers' salaries for next years as a tax relief measure.

Child as Individual Called Court Issue

Judge Waxter Says Offense Must Be Subordinated to Youth's Reform.

Consideration of the child brought before the Juvenile Court as an individual, rather than in connection with the offense for which he is charged, was urged yesterday by speakers before the Council of Social Agencies, meeting in the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets northwest.

"A Modern Juvenile Court in Action" was discussed by Judge C. J. S. Waxter, of the Juvenile Court of Baltimore. The functions of the Juvenile Court, he pointed out, should be to study and plan for the individual child and to act as a sounding board for interesting the public in child welfare by focusing attention of the public upon this work.

Speaking on "The Juvenile Court of Tomorrow," Edgar M. Gerlach, assistant supervisor of the United States probation system of the Department of Justice, pictured the court as a child welfare agency.

He declared that the criminal may be reformed in youth easier than in later life, but the juvenile court, as constituted at present, has taken on so many problems that it can not adequately handle the problem of reformation among children.

A New Yorker at Large

By MARK BARRON.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—One of the more unusual professions is that of "Bunny," a pretty and clever debutante who discovered that shenanigans in Wall street had practically wrecked her monthly allowance.

Taking stock of herself, she decided that her only equipment to earn her own living was a finishing school education and a flair for memorizing the lyrics to all popular songs.

Would there be a market for this? Of course. In the late hours of New York nights there are scores of merrymakers who get the "Sweet Adeline" complex, but rarely can anyone recall the lyrics.

Now, they merely call "Bunny," she sings them the lyrics over the telephone, and next day they send along to her a check for $1. Business is quite brisk, and picking up.

Rent Problem Solved.

Another instance of a poor little rich boy combating the depression concerns a young stripling who once boasted a swanky apartment in town as well as a place in the country. A dent in his income compelled him to give up the country place, and later, when he failed to get the necessary scratch on the line for rent, he was evicted from his apartment.

Now each night when he is ready to retire he calls up one of his friends of his more affluent days and asks if he can bunk there for the night. His excuse usually is that he has missed the last train to his country house and he doesn't like to stay in a hotel. The next morning he borrows a clean shirt from his host and emerges into the morning confident that he has at last solved the problem of how to live in New York without paying rent.

Only three actresses have occupied the star dressing room in the Ethel Barrymore Theater. Besides Miss Barrymore, they are Billie Burke and Lynn Fontanne.

2 ALEXANDRIA MEN HURT IN BUS CRASH

Grand Jury Returns Murder Indictments in 2 Cases; Dr. Delaney Buried.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,

Phone Alexandria 523.

The Alexandria Rotary Club will pay tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln today at its regular meeting in the George Mason Hotel. Col. Clarence M. Deems, jr., is chairman of the committee on arrangements for the celebration and has as his aids Jack Tulloch, Harold Martin and Julian Chauncey. Mrs. E. C. Hostetler, a well-known soprano, will sing. President Francis H. Fannon will occupy the chair.

The Alexandria Rotary Club is making arrangements for an intercity meeting in Alexandria April 18, which will be attended by representatives of the clubs of Warrenton, Leesburg, Fairfax and Arlington.

Alvin Gillum, of 421 Queen street, Alexandria, is in a serious condition in the Alexandria Hospital as the result of injuries received Sunday while a passenger in an automobile said to have been driven by Joseph Sprouse, of the same address, which collided with a bus of the Richmond Greyhound Line on a bridge 20 miles south of Alexandria on the Richmond-Washington highway. Sprouse was also injured, but after receiving first-aid treatment at the Marine Base Hospital at Quantico was able to go to his home. Gillum was brought to Alexandria Hospital yesterday.

The bus, said to have been driven by P. T. Smith, of Richmond, was so badly damaged that its six passengers, none of whom was hurt, were transferred to another bus.

Gillum is manager of the Sanitary Grocery Co. store in the 600 block of King street.

A grand jury in the Alexandria Corporation Court, Judge William P. Woolls presiding, yesterday returned indictments for murder in two cases, both colored men. They are Warren Jones, charged with the murder on December 16 of George Christian, and Daniel Jackson, charged with the murder of William Pollard, on January 30.

Mayor Edmund F. Ticer was foreman of the jury.

Funeral services for Dr. Martin D. Delaney, prominent Alexandria surgeon, who died Friday at his home, 131 North Washington street, were conducted yesterday in St. Mary's Catholic Church. The mass was celebrated by the Rev. M. J. Cannon, of Manassas, and the eulogy delivered by the Rev. Hugh J. McFadden, assistant pastor of St. Mary's. Other priests in the sanctuary included the Rev. Coleman Neville, president of Georgetown University; the Very Rev. Thomas A. Rankin, pastor of St. Mary's Church; the Rev. J. A. Curran, of Clarendon; the Rev. Joseph Kelley, pastor of St. Joseph's Church; the Rev. Joseph M. Jurgens, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Church, and the Rev. Leonard J. Foster, of St. Rita's Church, Mount Ida.

Members of the medical profession in Alexandria attended in a body, as did representatives of the various organizations of which Dr. Delaney was a member.

The honorary pallbearers were Representative Howard Worth Smith, Judge William P. Woolls, Judge Louis C. Barley, C. C. Carlin, J. Owen Lynch, George E. Warfield, Carroll Pierce, Harry R. Burke, Clyde C. Lamond, W. H. P. Kelly, Dr. Thomas B. Cochran, William Hulfish, Judge Robinson Moncure, Leo F. Harlow, Robert M. Colvin and R. E. McCahey. Active pallbearers were members of the Alexandria Medical Society.

Gown Rent

Proposed to Cut Costs of Graduation Expenses of Students.

Renting of graduation caps and gowns was proposed to the Board of Education yesterday in a communication from a Chicago firm which specializes in the renting of such garments.

The proposal is expected to be given some attention by the board at its meeting tomorrow afternoon in view of recent complaints over the expense of graduation. The Chicago firm shows that the garments may be rented at a minimum cost to the graduates.

U. S. WINS APPEAL IN DARBY DECISION

Supreme Court Grants Plea After Indictment Against Banker Is Quashed.

(Associated Press.)

The appeal of the United States from the decision of the Federal District Court for Maryland dismissing the indictment against John G. Darby, charging him with making false entries in the books of the Montgomery County National Bank of Rockville, Md., was granted yesterday by the Supreme Court and will be decided on its merits.

There were sixteen counts to the indictment, which charged the entries were made with intent to injure and defraud the bank and to deceive the officers of the bank as well as the Comptroller of the Currency. The Government contended Darby had entered in the discount register the name of Mrs. Bessie D. Darby as comaker or indorser, when he knew the signature of her name on the notes was a forgery.

The Federal District Court for Maryland quashed the indictment, holding if Darby had committed the offense charged against him in the indictment it would have amounted to a misapplication of the funds of the bank, for which he had not been indicted, and would not, as the Government charged, have constituted the offense of making a false entry, for which he was indicted.

In appealing to the highest court, the Government insisted the trial court had placed a wrong construction on the law and that the offense alleged to have been committed did constitute, under the law, the making of a false entry.

Permit for Three-Story ConventBuilding Sought

The Rev. Thomas G. Smyth, Church of the Blessed Sacrament, filed application with the office of District Building Inspector Oehmann yesterday for a permit to construct a three-story brick and stone convent building at 5839 Chevy Chase parkway. The building which will be located on a large lot bounded by Chevy Chase parkway, Western avenue and Quesada street, will contain 29 rooms and have a cubical content of 93,720 feet.

R. P. Whitty Co. is listed in the application as the builder of the projected structure and Maginnis & Walsh, the architects. The building will have a width of 32½ feet and a depth of approximately 80 feet. The estimated cost of the building is $30,150.

Queen Contest Includes 2 Weeks' Stay in Chicago

Cash Awards of $10,500 and World Acclaim in Addition Await 51 Girls Chosen as Queen and Her Court for Inaugural of Chicago Fair.

A splendid journey to Chicago, where every entertainment available will be enjoyed during a period of two weeks as the guests of The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune, is alone a worth-while prize to warrant competition in the queen contest now being conducted by The Washington Post by exclusive arrangement with the Century of Progress International Exposition. In addition, however, cash awards of $10,500 and world-wide acclaim await the 51 girls who will be chosen as queen and her court of honor to inaugurate the great world's fair at Chicago on June 1.

The Washington Post and its affiliated newspapers have been intrusted with the duty of finding the 51 most charming girls in the world to add a touch of colorful beauty to the opening ceremonies of the great exposition, and selections will be made entirely upon the basis of photographs. Every unmarried girl, wherever she may live, is invited to submit her photograph to the "Queen Contest Editor, The Washington Post," or it may be entered by any relative or friend. Elsewhere in this paper today a "transmittal coupon" will be found which should be properly filled out and pasted to the back of the photograph. However, the same information may be written upon any sheet of paper and similarly attached if desired. The coupon is merely published as a matter of convenience. Only employes of The Washington Post or members of their families and professionals such as stage girls and artists' models are barred from competing.

There are no entrance fees nor any other cost or obligation involved, but photographs must be at least 6 by 8 inches in size and made within the past 12 months. Enlargements from snapshots are as acceptable as studio portraits. The Washington Post will make every effort to return all photographs at the conclusion of the contest, if they are accompanied by return postage, but does not hold itself responsible for loss or damage.

During the progress of the search for 51 charming girls, the photographs of 10 entrants will be reproduced in the rotogravure section of each Sunday edition of The Washington Post and $5 will be paid to each girl so represented. The choice of a photograph for publication, however, has absolutely no bearing upon the final judgment of all photographs.

The queen and her first and second ladies-in-waiting will be selected from the group of 51 at Chicago immediately preceding the opening of the exposition and these three girls will receive cash awards of $5,000, $3,000 and $2,000, respectively. The expenses of the entire group, including their transportation, hotel expenses, entertainment and apparel, will be paid by The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune.

SCHOOL AND ROAD PROGRAMS VOTED

Montgomery Civic Federation Indorses 1931 Plans in Hard Fight.

Continuation of the 1931 school and road programs for Montgomery County despite the need for issuance of more bonds was approved last night by a vote of 85-33 in the road program and with but one dissenting vote in the school program at the meeting of the Montgomery County Civic Federation held in the Bethesda School.

The meeting was one of the best attended both by delegates and onlookers since the formation of the body.

The delegates fought tooth and nail over the proposal to indorse continuance of the road program with a resultant bond issue of $800,000, and at times the debate took on almost a personal character. Maj. E. Brookes Lee, Democratic administration leader of the county, took the lead with proponents of the measure approved by the roads committee over the protest of its chairman, Richard H. Akers, who voted against his own resolution.

After the results of the road bond fight had been announced by W. B. Armstrong, secretary, most of the delegates and spectators rose to leave. A few remained when President Frederick P. Lee reminded them that the school bond issue yet was to be fought.

There was hardly any contest when Robert E. Bondy, chairman, presented the school construction continuance report.

The school resolution moved that the federation indorse continuance of school construction necessary to meet classroom needs for 1933 to 1938, inclusive, totaling $700,000, and that additional funds of $100,000 be made available to complete this program. There was but one dissenting vote.

Resolutions opposing the Cabin John Park Volunteer Fire Department taxing area bill; for repeal of blue laws; favoring formation of a cadet corps in the county high schools, and favoring making the county commissioners a zoning commission for areas not served by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission were introduced and referred to committees. The meeting recessed at midnight to meet again within a few days to complete the important unfinished business crowded out by the debate on the school and road programs.

Reece Voluntarily Goes To Face Theft Charge

Joseph I. Reece, former commissioner of insurance and banking of Tennessee and brother of B. Carroll Reece, representative-elect from Nashville, who was arrested here Saturday in connection with the theft of $100,000 worth of negotiable securities from the Tennessee insurance department, returned to the Tennessee capital yesterday afternoon to answer charges of larceny and breach of trust.

No trouble was experienced in the transfer of Reece to Nashville as he repeatedly expressed the desire to return and face the charges which he claimed were a mistake.

Parley to Be Held By Presbyterians

Evangelical Conditions in Europe to Be Aired Beginning Today.

A thorough review of evangelical conditions in Europe will be presented for the consideration of the Presbyterian Alliance of Reformed Churches, which has its annual meeting at New York Avenue Presbyterian Church today and tomorrow.

The review is contained in the report of Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, who says: "Unlike our European brethren, who are daily brought face to face with the relentless propaganda from Moscow, our American Christian public disregards as irrelevant and remote the dark clouds gathering in the eastern sky."

A very hopeful development in European religious life, he said, has been the dawn of religious liberty in Spain.

Chamber Will Discuss New Budget of Fairfax

The Chamber of Commerce of Fairfax County, Va., will hold its regular monthly meeting this evening in the courthouse at Fairfax. The proposed county budget for the next fiscal year on which the taxes are based for payment this fall will be discussed.

The chamber has gone on record as favoring a reduction in county taxes for this year and will make suggestion to the county board of supervisors as to economies that can be effected to bring about the reduction.

HOUSE PASSES BILL FOR AMATEUR BOUTS

Georgetown Gas Light Co. to consolidate and cut down their bonded indebtedness and effect improvements by new issues of stock. The measure is still pending before the Senate District Committee. It hit a Senate snag when Senator Howell (Republican), Nebraska, insisted that "going concern" be eliminated from any valuation of the companies' property.

Under the present District kidnaping laws, no penalties attach to the abduction and holding for ransom of any District residents, except in the case of children.

Broadening the scope of the law to include holding for ransom or any other unlawful purpose, the kidnaping bill passed yesterday and sent to the President fixes the penalty as imprisonment for life or for such term as the court in its discretion may determine. The jury may add to its verdict, if it be "guilty," the words, "with the death penalty."

The quarterly tax payment bill provides for installment tax payments on those dwelling occupied by their owners. In addition, 30 days' notice must be given the owner in every case of sale for delinquent taxes. A minor amendment, by Representative Patman (Democrat), Texas, provides that detailed tax statements be furnished only on application.

SENATE DUE TO OPEN REPEAL FIGHT TODAY

Wets to Press for Action at This Session, but Success Seems Doubtful.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

The fight for repeal of the prohibition amendment popped off in the Senate yesterday, but the opening gun was only a pop because a recess was taken immediately after Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, moved to have his so-called repeal resolution taken up for consideration.

The battle is to be begun in earnest today. The Blaine motion is pending and the drys have served notice that they shall not only try to beat the repeal resolution but also try to beat the motion to take it up.

Antiprohibitionists are determined to force a repeal measure through the Senate this session. It is doubtful if they will be able to do so. Even if they do it probably will not mean very much, except to serve the purpose of putting the various members of the Senate once more on record on the question. Speaker John N. Garner and other Democratic leaders in the House have flatly declared their purpose to oppose another repeal vote in the House this session unless the Senate passes a measure which conforms to the pledge in the Democratic platform. That pledge was for straight-out repeal, which is something the Blaine repeal measure does not do.

But what might happen to a qualified repeal resolution in the House is a hurdle the Senate measure may never have to take. Senator Morris Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas, who is proud of his characterization as the father of prohibition, is as determinedly dry as he ever was and he has joined with Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, and other drys in giving the antiprohibitionists fair warning that their every move will be met with determined opposition.

RITCHIE UNDECIDED ON NEW TAX FORMS

Economies Insufficient to Balance Budget, He Says; 3 Levies Considered.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 13.—Saying cuts in the State budget are not likely to be large enough to make new taxes unnecessary, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, in a statement issued here tonight, called on the people of Maryland to decide what form the new levy shall take.

He expressed his opposition to the income tax, the luxury tax, or the sales tax which have been suggested, but pointed out that one of them must be chosen. Gov. Ritchie also intimated that he would not recommend any of the suggested levies until the budget-cutting is concluded and he knows how much additional revenue will be needed.

He points out strongly that the new taxes are not needed to balance the budget on the proposed lower tax rate, but are needed to take care of Baltimore's unemployed and to give tax relief in the counties. The objections to all three levies are set forth by the governor, who says there are inequalities in the sales tax as well as practical difficulties in collecting it. Incomes have been reduced and are already heavily taxed by the Federal Government, he said anent income taxes. The luxury tax, he goes on, might be called discriminatory.

Reluctant to Take Issue.

While reluctant to take issue with the governor, the senators most energetic in budget-cutting still claimed that their reductions would afford relief to the counties. A special tax, such as an increased levy on race tracks, the entire proceeds to go to Baltimore, was suggested by these senators to take care of the city situation.

Seen as aimed at H. C. (Curly) Byrd, director of athletics at the University of Maryland, an order was introduced in the Senate tonight calling on the president of the university to make a statement of the salary received by all employes from any source. Because Mr. Byrd is listed as receiving three salaries from the university, he was the target of some criticism last week.

Smoke Screen Penalties.

Delegate Charles C. Marbury, of Prince Georges County, offered a House bill increasing the penalty for use of a smoke screen to a minimum sentence of one yaer in the penitentiary. The maximum sentence is set at three years, while a fine of from $100 to $500 is authorized. A favorable report on the bill strengthening the powers of Mount Rainier police was adopted by the House.

Other House bills offered would compel constables and others taking an official oath to affirm their belief in God, but would provide that witnesses shall not have to hold such a belief.

A bill imposing sale tax of $3 on the first $1,000 of sales in Allegany County, instead of the present traders' license fee, also was received by the House.

An amendment to the black bass bill exempting Charles and several other counties from the prohibition against commercial fishing for bass was lost by a vote of 41 to 65. Another amendment, to limit the prohibition to two years was lost 36 to 70, while a third amendment requiring commercial fishers to obtain licenses was lost by a viva voce vote. A fourth amendment, to prohibit all fishing for bass, was withdrawn when it was declared out of order. The fight on this bill, which was continued from last week until tonight has been the most heated of the session.

Wife-Beaters' Lashing Portrayed at Annapolis

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 13.—A thin, cruel, black leather lash used to whip wife beaters in Maryland was flourished in the House of Delegates tonight as the bill to repeal the whipping post law came up for its second reading and was passed to the third reading file without amendment.

The cat-o'nine-tails was exhibited by Delegate Francis Michel, of Baltimore, who said Delegate Frank Joseph Hirt, father of the bill, had offered himself a martyr to show how it was used. Mr. Hirt had changed his mind about allowing himself to be whipped, but later posed for photographers with the lash being applied lightly to his back.

The pictures were taken in the House retiring room after Speaker T. Barton Harrington had whispered to Hirt: "Don't do that in here—we've had enough tonight." He was referring to the gallery applause and general levity attending the black bass bill debate earlier.

BATTLE OVER TARIFF WON BY DEMOCRATS

House Vote Stops Chance of Raising Duty on Depreciated Money Nations.

(Associated Press.)

House Democrats scored a smashing victory over administration Republicans yesterday in an old-fashioned tariff fight that ended for the lame duck session any chance of raising the duties on imports from depreciated currency countries.

The issue was forced by the Republicans after a series of White House statements, but the Democrats bound themselves in caucus against the plan and killed it by a 212-to-174 vote.

"Every man who votes for this is not only voting for an embargo against all the world, but is indorsing the Hawley-Smoot tariff," Chairman Collier, of the Ways and Means Committee, said just before the ballot. "The American people repudiated this law in the last election."

"Depreciated currencies have brought about a condition in this country that the Democrats do not dare to try to develop by keeping their promises of reducing tariff rates which they made in the last campaign," retorted Representative Crowther, New York Republican.

"The Democrats never won a campaign in this country directly on the tariff issue. It was by capitalizing the misery of the unemployed."

Only 20 minutes of debate preceded the ballot. It came on a motion by Representative Schafer (Republican), Wisconsin, to take the Crowther bill away from the Ways and Means Committee, which had rejected it, 13 to 11. The vote was forced by a discharge petition signed by 145 members.

The Republicans who voted with the Democrats were:

Amlie, Christgau, Gilchrist, Guyer, Hoch, Hope, Morton D. Hull, LaGuardia, Lambertson, McGugin, Nelson of Wisconsin, Peavey, Schneider, Sparks and Stafford.

HOMELESS YOUTHS GET SENATE HELP

Chamber Votes $22,000,000 to Open C. M. T. C. to Unemployed.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday dipped into Uncle Sam's purse and voted an appropriation of $22,000,000 to throw open the citizens' military training camps to the thousands of youths roaming the land in search of work and a place to sleep.

After voting the money, added to the $370,000,000 Army appropriation bill, the Senate passed the supply measure and sent it to the House for action on amendments.

The camp proposal, approved without a dissenting voice, was suggested by Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, and accepted by Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, who offered it as a substitute for his original amendment to the War Department supply bill which would have taken the transients into regular Army posts.

Another amendment put through by Couzens would make $5,000,000 of the fund immediately available, the remainder to be spent in the next fiscal year.

Under the plan agreed upon, which must receive the approval of the House and the President before becoming law, any youth between 15 and 21 who has been out of a job six months could apply for entry into a Citizens' Military Camp, but to gain admittance he must be an American citizen and be of sound mind and body. He would be trained the same as other boys in the summer camps.

Reed said the War Department had estimated under the $22,000,000 it could care for 88,000 of the jobless youths, an average of $250 each a year.

CUT IN WAR FUNDS SEEN RUINING NAVY

Slash Attacked by Vinson; Says He Will Sponsor Replacement Program.

(Associated Press.)

Alarm for the safety of the Nation, voiced in both branches of Congress, last night led to a fight for exemption of the military services from the 5 per cent cut below appropriations decree in the pending economy bill.

The proposal that all department heads return to the Treasury 5 per cent of the money appropriated for next year is now involved in the conference between Senate and House on the Treasury-Postoffice bill, which carries the economy measure as a rider.

Chairman Vinson (Democrat), of Georgia, of the House Naval Committee, said the reduction would sink the country to a third-class naval power, while in the Senate Robinson (Republican), of Indiana, said it would "make it absolutely impossible" to maintain an adequate defense.

Vinson said he had discussed naval plans with President-elect Roosevelt, a former Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and felt sure the incoming Executive would give serious consideration to the future of the Navy.

The Georgian announced he would sponsor in the new Congress a 10-year replacement program to cost $56,000,000 yearly as "cheap insurance for a country like ours," adding that unless replacements are made, the whole Navy will be obsolescent by 1936.

Robinson quoted Secretary Hurley and other War Department officials as saying the reduction would "seriously endanger" national defense and expressed the hope conferees on the economy program would eliminate the provision.

ILLUSION:

Right before your very eyes the man of magic draws rabbits, vegetables, flowers, fruits—even babies—all from an empty tub! What an astonishing fellow he is!

EXPLANATION:

The assorted rabbits, babies, carrots, cabbages, ribbons, and other magical "props" are not created by magic. The tub has a false bottom that is conveniently displaced, and numberless wonderful things spring to life in the magician's nimble fingers. They do literally "spring" because they are made to compress into the bottom of the tub, taking their natural shape as the magician lifts them out.

DEBTS AND WAR CLOUDS.

In his New York address President Hoover deals with the world economic situation and offers suggestions for mending the sorry state of affairs. A worldwide economic war is threatened, in his opinion, because of the derangement of exchange, depreciation of currencies, and trade restrictions. Many nations are unable to keep their currencies convertible into gold. In their distress they are trying to accumulate gold by manipulating trade arrangements to their advantage, while trade everywhere is paralyzed because of the fluctuations of values.

The stabilization of foreign currencies on a gold basis is necessary, in Mr. Hoover's opinion. He does not deem it necessary that these currencies should be restored to their former gold values. Fixedness and certainty are the requisites, in order that trade may know what value is to be received for goods.

Mr. Hoover suggests that the United States should not hesitate to join in an international movement to stabilize currencies, through the agency of central banks. "If some part of the debt payments to us could be set aside for temporary use for this purpose," he remarks, "we should not hesitate to do so."

Thus, in effect, the outgoing President suggests that the United States shall use British debt payments to underwrite British credit, so that Britain can return to the gold standard. Prime Minister MacDonald's announcement that economic problems will be thrown open for discussion at the forthcoming debt conference may indicate that he has high hopes that Mr. Hoover's suggestion will be adopted by President-elect Roosevelt.

The United States, through the Federal Reserve bank of New York, went to the help of Great Britain in 1925, and enabled it to peg the pound sterling at its usual gold value. But the pound sterling is not worth $4.88, and it proved impossible to hold sufficient gold to stabilize the pound at that figure. When Britain was unable to obtain sufficient credit from Paris and New York in 1931 she was forced to abandon the attempt to keep the pound convertible into gold. The value of the pound sank to about $3.50, and has since fluctuated, greatly to the distress of business everywhere as a result of the uncertainty of all commercial transactions involving the pound. With depreciated currency Britain was enabled to sell more cheaply abroad, although Japan has been far more successful in dumping depreciated-currency goods upon other markets.

It ought to be obvious that the pound sterling can not be stabilized at its old value. France found that it could stand on the gold standard with the franc at 4 cents instead of 20 cents. If tradition and sentiment could be thrust aside and the gold value of the pound fixed at its true worth, there would be no occasion to fear that Britain could not remain on the gold standard. Then prices would be certain, and commerce would be encouraged to go forward. Trade barriers set up as expedients to discourage imports could be knocked down, and it would be unnecessary for the United States to take defensive steps against British goods produced at depreciated-currency wages.

Japan would remain the chief danger to American manufacturers. The Far Eastern empire apparently does not intend to return to the gold standard. It seems to be aiming at economic war, using as its chief weapon the labor of millions paid in depreciated currency. Thus, while it might be possible to stabilize the currencies of European war debtors by crediting them with debt payments, there would remain a great gap in the American wall through which Japanese goods would pour in an increasing flood.

Much is hoped from the world economic conference; but events in the Far East are developing in such fashion as to make it improbable that Japan will participate in the conference.

Europe is held together by treaties. If treaties are to be torn up, the map of Europe will be remade by another war. The safety of many nations depends upon their united insistence upon the integrity of treaties. They must oppose Japan or run the risk of an explosion in Europe.

As the Far East unfolds its mighty drama it becomes apparent that economic adjustments in all countries may have to wait upon the denouement in Asia. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. MacDonald may have something more important than war debts to confer upon.

FINANCIAL STABILITY.

It is significant that the first witness in the Senate finance committee's investigation into causes and cures for the depression should plead for a balanced budget. Bernard M. Baruch, internationally known financier, placed balancing of the budget as the fulcrum on which all basic efforts toward recovery must turn. Congress has known this for nearly three years. Every sound analysis of existing conditions leads to that conclusion. But Congress has not had the courage to face the facts.

Mr. Baruch's testimony was impressive. He did not mince words. In the following paragraph he epitomized his advice to Congress:

> There is one essential thing—to get people back to work. To do that, we must make money work. To make money work, we must balance the budget. That should be accomplished first by reducing expenses. If we can bring the expenditures in our national budget under $3,000,000,000, that in itself would result in a return of confidence and therefore an increase in business and employment. That increase in business would bring the budget into full balance without further taxation. A balanced budget and a sound money policy go hand in hand. If these two things are done, there would be more sound money flowing into activity than all the unsound money our inflationist friends propose to coin.

Mr. Baruch thinks the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has not been as successful as it should have been because enormous deficits have absorbed credit and undermined confidence. It is absurd to expect business to go forward so long as the Government continues to accumulate huge debts and Congress threatens to inflate the currency and reduce the value of the dollar. A balanced budget would be a new guarantee of strength. It would make the United States the safest place in the world for the investment of money. The normal processes of buying, selling, working and producing could then go forward on a sound basis.

A large portion of Mr. Baruch's testimony was devoted to inflation cures. It is doubtful whether he said anything that has not been said before. But he made the dangers of inflation emphatic. In boom times, he said, people prefer things to money because the price of things rises while the value of money does not. In hard times the opposite is true. Every one wishes to sell things for money because the relative value of money increases. Confidence in money is still strong while confidence in things is weak. The inflationists propose to cure this situation by destroying confidence in money as well as in things. Their argument is for 100 per cent chaos, instead of 50 per cent.

The advice of Mr. Baruch will probably be repeated by others before the committee finishes its hearings. The problem before Congress is a return to sound finance. In no other way can confidence in the future stability of American enterprise be restored. Until that is done it is futile to talk of relieving the farmer, restoring trade or mobilizing credit for the stimulation of business. If the inquiry stimulates Congress to do its duty in this regard, it will render a great service to the American people.

A NEW TRIPLE ENTENTE?

French reaction to the elevation of Hitler to the chancellorship is somewhat overshadowed by the general discussion of the possibility that a secret treaty has been made, or at least an understanding reached, between Germany, Italy and Hungary. Paris newspapers and the Geneva correspondents are at last writing openly of the rumors which have been current for some time and which were brought suddenly into prominence by the recent shipment of rifles from Italy to Hungary, via Austria. These arms, variously estimated at from 60,000 to three times that number, with several hundred machine guns, were consigned to the Hirtenberg cartridge factory near Vienna, supposedly for transshipment to Hungary.

Just what has become of the arms grows more and more mysterious. After several explanations from Vienna the matter apparently was dropped, but due to the persistence of the nations of the Little Entente the matter has again been taken up and new notes have been presented to the Austrian government by both the British and French ministers at Vienna, asking whether the arms have been returned to Italy, whether they are still in Austria, or whether they have been delivered in Hungary. Despite denials from both the Italian and Hungarian governments of all knowledge of the shipment, the investigation is being pressed. The Austrian government was advised that in case the arms had not been returned to Italy that must be done or the weapons destroyed, under the provisions of the Versailles treaty.

The fact that no progress is made in the resumption of more friendly relations between Italy and France is cited by various observers as having a bearing on the reported new relations between Rome and the Central powers. When Henry de Jouvenal went to Rome as French Ambassador it was felt that he was the ideal envoy to reestablish more cordial intercourse, but so far he has not even been received by Mussolini, and it is being questioned now whether he will even meet lesser lights in the foreign office. Paris opinion, while it concedes that Hitler as chancellor is employing more moderate language, sees little evidence of any real change of policy on his part with regard to rearmament and treaty revisions relating to lost territory.

In Brussels, too, leading journals consider with concern the absence of cordial relations between France and Italy, and there, also, the Belgian press even goes so far as to intimate that there are evidences of secret negotiations between Italy and Germany with Austria and Hungary as probable associates. One of the first objects of such an understanding is held to be the return to Germany of the Polish Corridor. The further suggestion is heard in Europe that if Germany does not secure concessions with regard to armament and other demands which will be made at the forthcoming conference, it will be the signal for leaving both the conference and the league by all the nations mentioned in connection with the reported new alliance.

TAX THREAT FAILS.

The House rules committee has checked the outrageous movement to impose new taxes on the District while at the same time piling up a $5,000,000 surplus. Its refusal to grant a special rule allowing the interpolation of this tax measure in the District appropriation bill will frustrate the group in the House which is trying to penalize Washington taxpayers.

No other action could have been taken by the rules committee within the bounds of reason. Under ordinary circumstances taxpayers of the District have no voice in the levying of taxes. They are privileged only to register their protest when tax measures come up for hearing before the District committee. But the House subcommittee would deny them even that right. The attempt to foist new taxes upon Washington residents in the form of a rider to an appropriation bill is such an outrageous violation of legislative practice that it could not be upheld.

Only one explanation can be given for this attempt to add higher taxes to a $5,000,000 surplus. If a special tax were imposed to take care of the unemployed, the entire fund for that purpose would come out of Washington taxpayers' pockets. If part of the surplus should be used for that purpose, unemployment relief will be a draft upon the Federal contribution as well as local taxes. In other words, the House subcommittee was attempting to compel District taxpayers to pay the entire cost of supporting Government employes who may be thrown out of work by curtailment of the Federal service.

The menace of higher taxes seems to have been swept away. But the appropriation bill is still calculated to accumulate a large surplus in a year of extreme hard times. Either one of two courses must be taken in fairness to the taxpayers of the National Capital. Restrictions upon projects that are needed and can be paid for out of the ordinary revenue should be removed, or taxes should be reduced.

A great deal is heard upon Capitol Hill of Washington as an example to municipalities throughout the country. Apparently the House committee has slashed the District appropriation bill to encourage municipal economy. Why then should not Congress reduce District taxes, in conformity with the smaller outlay? The idea of building up a large surplus at a time like this is intolerable. Let the benefits of lower expenditures be distributed among Washington homeowners and other taxpayers who are in distress.

Financial genius on Capitol Hill is manifested by the attempt to swell the $5,000,000 District surplus with new taxes while allowing the $2,000,000,000 Federal deficit to expand without any effort to raise more revenue.

---

Britain is now ready to make concessions in return for reduction of the war debts, says Prime Minister MacDonald. Maybe he contemplates offering Uncle Sam an opportunity to stabilize the pound.

---

Barney Baruch's lecture on balanced budgets, coming just before March 4, is pretty tough medicine for lame ducks.

---

Willy Farner tried to glide over the Alps, but he doesn't have anything on Congress.

This is a bad time to cut down the Navy, but it is always reduced just before it is needed.

POST HASTE

As a swan singer, the President propounds principles that will live long after depression panaceas have been buried by prosperity.

Having learned to balance on his crutch, Lame Duck Brookhart announces that his last kick with one good foot will be aimed at repeal.

Sam Seabury declines a President's salary for having conducted the New York court inquiry. It may at least make him governor.

We tremble for fear somebody high or low will begin trying to forecast political events in 1936.

With the fledglings who will replace the lame ducks in the next Congress already proposing group action, the seniors will think twice about giving them the freshman rush.

Speaker Garner can hardly consider it a crowning glory of his long service to acknowledge that Congress is impotent when it comes to controlling log-rolling minorities.

About the various and sundry attitudes of Senator Couzens? Well, the only explanation is that he is trying to lift the you-never-can-tell championship from Senator Borah.

If the inflationists got any satisfaction out of Barney Baruch's ideas of expanding economy they are welcome to it.

The rest of the world may feel resentful over Manchuria, but if Japan and Russia want to fight over it, just keep the hostilities over there.

Twenty-six per cent of present taxes are due to the World War. That's a string around our mind-your-own-business finger.

A Hollywood plot to kidnap a star failed when he turned out to be a shooting star.

For the umpsteenth time it is announced that "Japan's withdrawal from the league is deemed certain." We have been reconciled for some time.

The best assurance the rest of the world has against Japanese imperialism is the high cost of subduing a comparatively defenseless neighboring province.

Chairman Farley chartered a freight car and took "the list" to New York for fear it would scare the big chief back to sea.

Congress knows as well as Speaker Garner what it can't do about economizing, but it also hates to delegate authority to anybody else to bore holes in the pork barrel.

ST. VALENTINE.

The wise Charles Lamb once penned a line
Of praise to Bishop Valentine.
"In all the calendar," said he,
"No mitred father's like to thee!
Thy choristers from near and far
The happy, singing Cupids are!

"This day which has been christened thine
Has given us the valentine,
By which the lover in his daze
Sends forth some sweet and pretty phrase,
Engraved on arrowed heart or bell,

Old Bishop Valentine, you chose
A diocese which larger grows.
No loss, nor hurt, nor troubled day
Drive your parishoners away.
Whatever shocks at men are hurled,
Love will contrive to run the world.

The Hanging of Hamen Was Brutal, But Hamen Himself Built the High Scaffold.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

SOME days ago the newspapers printed a short story concerning a 14-year-old boy who shot and killed his father to avenge a beating.

Such a crime seems inexpressibly horrible to adults. It is probable that all who read the story condemned the boy in their hearts. Yet I would befriend him, as I would be a friend to any boy as friendless as this one.

He will not be tried by his peers, for that would require a jury of 14-year-old boys. He will be tried by adults, and want of understanding will make their verdict harsh.

Can you remember when you were a boy of 14?

You were no longer a child. If you were the loose-knit, awkward kind destined to be a six-footer, you were almost grown.

You had a girl, and your much-ridiculed calf-love was the purest, finest and most enduring love you ever would know. You shared your dreams with her and planned your future together.

You felt yourself a man. You were proud of your strength. Secretly you wished to be the kind of person now called a he-man, but even more secretly you longed to be that noblest and rarest of all God's creatures—a gentleman.

You dreamed of going away to conquer the world and returning—perhaps at the head of a procession—to show the astonished neighborhood how little it had understood your true worth.

You were an idealist, then, and your character was soft clay awaiting the hand of the potter. If your father understood and began to treat you as a comrade and an equal, your love and gratitude made him the ideal of manhood. If he ridiculed you and ruled you by threats of violence, he became an enemy and your first ambition was to get away from him.

There is a natural, atavistic antagonism between father and son—an instinct that none but the wise and gentle can overcome.

A father who depends on the rod to maintain discipline sets an example. He says he is doing his duty, but would he attempt to do it if his children were strong enough to fight back on equal terms? He whips them because he is stronger, and his sons rebel in their hearts and say: "He wouldn't dare if we were grown."

The use of force inevitably invites the use of force. And a weapon makes the weak strong. Then the day comes when example and pain and rage and the smart of injustice combine to make a foolish and misguided boy seem the worst of criminals.

Pity the vessel wrongly shaped by the hand of the potter.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Reorganization by Decree.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

It would be an unprecedented step in American Government to clothe the President with dictatorial powers to reorganize administrative departments without a final check by Congress. In this light, one can not deny the propriety of Mr. Bertrand Snell's criticism of the Democratic plan to make Mr. Roosevelt a Mussolini for administrative revision purposes. But simply to say we have never given a President such powers before is not to prove that it is an unwise step.

The problem of reorganization is primarily one of political courage. It should not be difficult to determine what functions can be abandoned, what consolidated, and what left alone. That is a matter of technical knowledge of government administration. But when the matter of reorganization is left to the legislature, the invariable result is frustration of the plan.

If the Senate Had Been Wiser.

Boston Transcript.

What would have happened had the United States Senate not picked up the statement of Sergeant at Arms David S. Barry, that there are "not many" representatives or senators who sell their votes for money? It may be interesting to compare what did happen with what, as we conceive it, would have occurred had not a spasm of virtue seized that badgered body and dragged it forth into the limelight. As a matter of fact, no newspaper, to our knowledge, had reprinted the Barry article in the New Outlook or any part of it. Consequently the charge of petty venality would have reached only the readers of that excellent magazine.

The Cleanup.

Buffalo Courier-Express.

How About Bromo?

Ohio State Journal.

Members of Congress consumed 800 aspirin tablets last year which were paid out of taxes. What the solons really needed was nerve and bone liniment.

Give Everybody a Job.

Christian Science Monitor.

Federal jobs listed by the Civil Service Commission as open after March 4 total between 135,000 and 150,000, but one hopes the Democrats can find several times that many openings for members of all parties during the next administration.

A Look-in for the Senate.

Minneapolis Journal.

Instead of carrying on personal, private or wholly diplomatic parleys with the war debt envoys from Europe, the President-elect now announces that he will keep congressional leaders constantly informed of progress, by frequent reports on his conversations on the debts and other economic matters.

The announcement should reassure doubters apprehensive lest Mr. Roosevelt, the initiative lost to the foreign powers might be caught in the snares they were sure the Europeans would lay for him. It was such apprehension, perhaps, rather than partisan prejudice, that recently prompted senatorial warnings—for these warnings came not only from the Republican Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, but from the Democratic Senator Lewis, of Illinois.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Rev. Dr. Ryan Exposes Three Evils in Unemployment Situation in the District.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Three features of the unemployment relief situation in the District of Columbia deserve this characterization. The first is the entire lack of provision for unemployed and destitute unmarried men. They have applied in vain for assistance to the private charitable agencies and to the Emergency Relief Division and they have been refused shelter in a vacant and suitable public building.

The second notorious evil is the allowance of $3.65 per week per family by the Emergency Relief Division. The blame for this starvation allotment falls, of course, upon Congress, which refused to make an adequate appropriation of the District money for relief purposes. However, Congress has now under consideration a bill which would empower the District of Columbia to borrow money for the relief of the unemployed up to the sum of $2,500,000. If this money were made available, needy families could obtain more than $3.65 per week and destitute single men could be provided with decent food and shelter.

This brings me to the third and in some respects the worst of the relief situation scandals. A few days ago the Federation of Citizens' Associations of the District of Columbia passed a resolution condemning the proposal to borrow $2,500,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The apparent ground of the federation's opposition is unwillingness to meet the increase in taxes which the loan would entail. This is an astonishing, almost incredible, exhibition of inhumanity and greed. Rather than have their taxes slightly increased, these men would condemn their fellow citizens to indefinite continuation of living conditions—or starving conditions—which are a shame and a disgrace to the community.

It is too bad that the members of the Federation of Citizens' Associations in the District of Columbia who voted for this resolution could not be compelled to change places for at least one week with either the families who are being kept alive on $3.65 a week or the homeless men who are without even that meager assurance. From this experience they might obtain a new insight into the meaning of the Golden Rule.

Why Not a Tavern at the Zoo? Visitors Need a Warm Retreat in Winter.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If I have not already done so often enough, I hope you will let me again suggest that it would add considerably to the popularity of our National Zoological Park if a large rest house were erected there. My idea would be a big log bungalow where one could get in out of the cold and wet and be served with hot meals, lunches and other refreshments in a room made cheerful and attractive with old colonial furnishings.

To any one who is not afraid of a little cold and dampness the Zoo Park is very enjoyable in the winter, especially if the trees are festooned with snow or bejeweled by icycles. But to insure full enjoyment, a warm rest room should be nearby. I enjoy an occasional winter walk through the Zoo very much. Winding it up with a meal eaten in the warm and cozy Zoo dining room I have in mind would be something to write to your country cousins about.

Hopes All High School Cadets Can March in Inaugural Parade.

To the Editor of The Washington Post—Dear Sir: The decision of the committee in charge of the inaugural parade, to permit only a few companies of the Washington High School cadets to take part in the parade means a great disappointment to this fine body of young men, their parents and friends. It would be better to have no representation than to discriminate in this manner.

This is the one opportunity for the people of Washington to see their cadet regiment as a whole, and when so many boys who should be in the cadets, remain out because of parental indifference, the sight of a full regiment would do much to increase the numbers of cadets.

The position of the high school regiment is different from that of visiting military bodies. This is their home town. They appear without expense to anyone, and surely the few minutes needed for them to pass in review would be time well taken.

I hope the committee may reconsider this decision. J. W. CRANFORD.

Poor Tail Lights on Trucks Lead to Terrible Accidents.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As one reads of the accidents and death toll in our daily newspapers, one is appalled at the proportion of accidents caused by motorists crashing into trucks on the highway and meeting with serious accidents or death.

The tail lights of the average truck are such a dim and poorly lighted arrangement that potential death awaits those who are not eternally alert and watchful. The large body of the average truck helps to prevent its silhouette or outline from being projected into the driver's direct line of vision under certain conditions. This fact, together with the dim and weak bulbs generally used as tail lights, creates a condition where accidents easily occur.

Inasmuch as impression depends largely on intensity, it is this lack of stronger and brighter tail light that helps to cause many accidents. At the present time these lights are apparently more for ornamental purposes, shining like little glowworms, and are of little practical value.

Offers S O S to Those Who Have Forgotten That This Is Valentine Day . . . It Is Not Too Late to Arrange for Valentine Greetings.

"Good Heavens!" That good old exclamation—or something that suits you better—may have been your dismayed expression this morning as you looked at your desk calendar. Valentine Day! Nothing yet done about it! Be soothed, distracted one, the Meanderer holds forth hope for you, even though you must be all day at your desk and busy even after 6 o'clock.

Right through the telephone you may choose flowers for the one you want to remember. They'll be delivered with your card, just as though you had had plenty of forethought about the matter. And the Meanderer tried to find a place selling flowers that didn't ask too much for them. I'm offering you, if you'll call The Washington Post to learn where they are . . . gardenias at 49 cents each! Or an alluringly sophisticated little arrangement of three gardenias for evening wear, properly fastened together ready to pin on the exquisite evening dress she'll wear to the dance tonight—for only $2! In this same flower-selling place there are perfect orchids selling for $1.25 each. And, of course, there are violets, daffodils, snapdragons, tulips, roses and freesias . . . and the lovely Scotch heather with its gray-lavender hues so pretty in mixed bouquets. So if flowers are your preference, and you're anxious to arrange the matter immediately, follow directions in the last paragraph in this column and you'll be properly cared for in the matter of prompt delivery, satisfaction and the full affection of the beloved ones.

Fifteen, tempting candies, assorted to your order in the proper red heart boxes are selling tonight until 11 o'clock in one of the nicest candy places in the heart of Washington. This shop neighbors a theater, so that if your valentine needs to be a bit late it may be presented as you go to the theater. The late selling hours of this place are not the only recommendation the Meanderer can give it. Prices there are miraculously low for the delicious candy offered . . . as fresh, creamy and rich as any in the Capital . . . for 45 cents a pound . . . and 45 varieties from which to choose. For a little girl you might want to remember there is the small heart box that may be filled with candy not too rich for just 35 cents. And of course for the big girl the 3-pound box of candy, no matter how rich . . . for $1.35 is about right. This candy formerly sold for 60 cents a pound and its quality was not lowered with its price.

If you live near Dupont Circle, there is a brand-new home-made candy selling thereabouts that you may want to try for a valentine. It is indeed worth investigating. The address of this Dupont Circle is yours if you'll call the Meanderer as directed below.

A popular candy store on Twelfth street will take your order for a large or small box of candy, heart shaped and red-ribboned, and deliver it for you if your order is in before 1 o'clock.

Valentine cookies covered with red sugar may be what you'd like to take home to the children, rather than candy. Ask for them in bake shops in prominent locations on Fourteenth street and on F street, and you'll find them for only 18 cents a dozen. In these popular bake shops there are also heart-shaped tea cakes, iced with red, that will be a festive treat for the day, not too late to see about. They are just 50 cents a dozen.

And again, a tip on Valentine cake: One bake shop, at least, will bring a delectable Valentine cake right to your door, if you'll find out just how to arrange for it, as explained just below.

Telephone questions about items in The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 19, to know how the arrangements to care for your last minute Valentine offerings may be made.

KING OF THE JUNGLE

by CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

When Kaspa, the lion-man, found as a child in the African jungle by a lioness and raised with her own cubs, is brought to Canada by Martin Sefton, he finds himself heir to $4,000,000 left by his grandfather, Denison Starke. Lucian and Sheila Marley, step-children of Mrs. Johnston Marley, Starke's sister, and Sheila's husband, Harland Reeves, resent the intrusion of Kaspa because they were in line for the heritage. Madeline Moore, beautiful companion of Mrs. Marley, falls in love with Kaspa, and her love is reciprocated. However, because he learns that Sefton is also in love with Madeline and because he is fed up with civilization, Kaspa returns to the jungle. Lucian, being in need of money, wants to go to Africa to learn of Kaspa's fate. Madeline wants to find Kaspa because she loves him. An expedition, composed of Lucian, Sheila, Reeves, Madeline and Sefton, leave for Africa to search for Kaspa.

CHAPTER XXIV.

At the Tanganyika port the party was held up for a week awaiting the arrival of the coaster that would take them to Chola, but after what was to Madeline a lengthy period of sweltering discomfort, she at last found herself nearing the mecca of her pilgrimage. With the red sunset behind her she looked out over the huge expanse of green bush and distant purple mountains where her lover had his kingdom among the mysterious solitudes, apart from any life of which she could conceive.

It had been impossible in Toronto to visualize the life of a wild African lion, but here, faced with the frightening immensity of the unknown, she could at least estimate the extent of her ignorance. The quiet, watchful natives with straight, handsome features and an air of dignified reserve, which Sefton pointed out to be the peculiar attribute of the nomadic tribes of the interior, were so different from the plump-faced, jovial Negroes of the coast that she was obliged to think that when she left the busy highways of commerce and the friendly ocean she would enter into a land as aloof and vaguely disquieting as the people it bred.

In Canada Kaspa had been a stranger, and she had met him upon her own ground, secure in the confidence of familiarity; now positions were to be reversed, and she felt frightened. Would she recognize in the wild man who had sunk back into the condition of savagery from which he had been rescued, the polite, and by no means uncultured, man she had known at Honeydale? Well, she had come this far to speak with him, she would carry out her intention, but as it became increasingly apparent that the interview must take place between a naked, natural creature and a city-bred society girl, in a primeval forest, surrounded by the fierce and predatory beasts of the wilderness, she felt the absurdity of her hopes. If Kaspa could not be held by her charm in its most appropriate setting, it seemed foolish to suppose he would be influenced where everything combined to show her unsuitability as his comrade. She felt inefficient and depressed.

Something of these ideas had occurred to Sefton also, but with his greater knowledge he was more confident. He knew that nowhere did the softer side of life have greater appeal than among the austerities of the wilderness. He hoped that by this time Kaspa had worked off his revolt against the artificialities of civilization and begun to appreciate some of its advantages. After all, it was not to be expected that a man who enjoyed the pleasures of friendship, literature, music and all the comforts and conveniences of wealth and position should be entirely satisfied with the life of a brute, however splendid.

Martin hoped to confront Kaspa with all that he had so rashly abandoned in the presence of Madeline Moore. He had reason to suppose she would prove irresistible. Buoyed up with these hopes, he was the most cheerful and optimistic of the party, for the others had their own troubles to keep from enjoying their holiday to the full.

Sheila was inclined to be disgruntled and fault-finding, for this had not turned out to be the pleasure trip she had anticipated. Since Dares-Salaam she had been hot and bored, and indifferently catered to. The coasting steamer was uncomfortable and the passengers uninteresting. To make matters worse Harlan behaved like a man with something on his mind. His customary insouciant gayety had given place to a pensive, almost sulky reserve, highly uncomplimetnary to his young and attractive wife. The stockbroker's depression was by no means unwarranted, had she known the reflections that caused it.

Reeves had started out cheerfully to renew his dispute with Kaspa, or to assure himself of the lion-man's death. It seemed to him ridiculous that Lucian and himself should be kept from the enjoyment of a fortune by a person who, far from administering that fortune for his own benefit, preferred to abandon it to the care of stewards and solicitors and to live the life of a wild animal at no expense whatever. If the fellow wished to be a lion, he must be treated as a lion, and Reeves had no intention of allowing himself to be done out of $2,000,000 by a lion! Harland Reeves had fought in France during the war; he had seen too much useless slaughter to place an exaggerated value upon the sanctity of human life. Look at it how you liked, Kaspa deserved no mercy. He led the life of a beast, and was the associate of beasts inimical to man.

He had, during a period of famine, led his starving followers against the natives and been the death of them—he admitted to having killed one man himself for the possession of a sheath-knife. Those crimes had been excused upon the score of the perpetrator's ignorance, but that excuse no longer held good. Kaspa, a civilized man with a certain amount of education, had returned to live with the very creatures who had slain natives in the past, and might be expected to do so again the moment it was to their advantage. That put him beyond the pale; he was not entitled to the protection of the law. Added to these iniquities, he was keeping others out of money which he himself could not enjoy. Place four million dollars on the head of any man, and make him free game, and how long would it be before some one shot him? Reeves asked himself that question and had no doubt of the answer.

He owed Kaspa no consideration. The wild man had done his best to kill him, and, but for a fortunate accident, would have done so. It was war to the death between them. To give the stockbroker his due, he had no intention of trying to accomplish his enemy's downfall by unfair means. It has occurred to him that were he to encounter Kaspa in the wilderness the lion-man would attempt to carry out the purpose from which he had been restrained upon the shores of Lake Scugog by Madeline's timely intervention. Reeves wished nothing better, for this time he would be armed with a magazine rifle, with which he would be entitled to protect is life against the onslaught of a wild animal. He looked to Loudon Grant, the official in charge of the territory, to uphold him in any action he was forced to take, and intended to "sweeten" Grant accordingly.

This was all plain sailing to his vigorous mind; but what was causing his usually happy temperament to be overcast was the discovery that Madeline Moore was still enamored of this impossible savage. At Port Perry he had thought it a passing attraction, but if it were indeed something stronger and more deeply rooted, there was going to be an unpleasant sequel to the little shooting affray he intended to stage in the jungle. To make matters worse, he was convinced that Madeline had saved his life when Kaspa had him helpless in his grasp, and Reeves had a curious code whereby he recognized an obligation to the girl who had done him this good turn. He found it very difficult to decide upon his course of action, and the more he pondered it the more difficult it became. It was no wonder that his demeanor was moody and abstracted.

Lucian was too perturbed in his own mind to notice the behavior of his brother-in-law. Reeves, in an unwise moment, had confided to him the contents of Grant's letter, and ever since dark and terrible thoughts had obsessed the young man's mind. His interview with Solomon, the money lender, had been unpleasant. Solomon had granted him the respite necessary to journey to Africa to find his wealthy relative, but he had conclusively stated his intention of prosecuting Lucian for obtaining money under false pretenses if the $100,000 was not forthcoming within three months. Lucian's mind was filled with misgivings. It seemed to him most unlikely that Kaspa would lend him the sum he required and, even if he did so, Lucian was in no better position than he had been before his unfortunate speculation; he was a young man with expensive tastes and without the means to gratify them.

If Kaspa could be removed, all would be well and, though he told himself that such a thought could never be acted upon, he knew in the back of his mind that, once in conversation with Loudon Grant, the affair would be discussed. It would rise between them like a guilty secret between plotters, for Grant, who was not afraid to put his insinuations upon paper, would be little likely to balk at stating them verbally, and Lucian knew that he had hopes of that and would be unable to resist the voice of the tempter. Two million dollars was a lot of money, and men yielded up their lives every day for a less sum. The law of the jungle was, "Kill or be killed"—Kaska should understand that—and civilized society was more cruel than the jungle. There was no room for altruism in Lucian's pampered mind, and yet he shrank from the thought of bloodshed. He was like the man who profits by the deaths of his fellows in warfare, and yet would not have the courage to sign a single execution warrant.

Influenced by these mixed and conflicting emotions, the party disembarked at Chola and betook themselves to the small and Goan-managed hotel. It was hot, filthy, and the playground of several varieties of noxious insects, among which scorpions were the most frightening and fleas the most obtrusive. Sefton made all speed to arrange transport to Nyoka. He found Jan Cloete and engaged his services and that of his two lorries. Armed with the credentials given him by Horton in Toronto, he had no difficulty in procuring the necessary permission and licenses for their safari. The resident commissioner was helpful and sympathetic with these people who had come so far to search for their missing relative. Within a few days the two lorries pulled out on the road to Nyoak, with Cloete in charge.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Organdy and pique! Pronounced "pee-kay," of course. And worth more than a look for this summer. Paris murmurs these materials over almost every summer frock; yes, I said almost every!

Organdy in profusion and loveliness. And the lovely lady remembers two things about organdy—one, that it is crushable and perishable, the other that under no circumstances is she seen in crushed or the least bit worn organdy.

This season we see flowers of organdy, different colors and more than one color on a frock. There's more to tell you about flowers later! Then we see those lovely lots of organdy—for evening and afternoon wear. Didn't we used to have the same thing and call it something else—or our grandmothers did. Well, and then there are capelets of organdy—one in three different shades, orange, yellow and burnt orange, is the despair of every Parisienne who hasn't the coloring to wear it. Another of navy and medium blue, just two layers, this. Separate capes, my dear, apparently replacing the scarf or at least giving it something to think about.

Then pique. In dresses and on them. Mostly in blouses and vestees, although sometimes as collars and cuffs. And, of course, as whole frocks—and jackets and even three-quarter coats.

One must not forget evening frocks of pique, for strictly summer resort wear, of course. And hats of both pique and organdy—but not the big picture variety that you instantly conjure up—oh no! Small, very tailored and muchly hand-made hats of organdy that would not stand either a stiff breeze or a gentle shower—let alone train dust or salt water spray!

Au revoir.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

GIVING BABY A START.

Nearly 20 years ago Dr. Truby King told America that New Zealand had a baby death rate as low as 50. This gave us a mark to shoot at. Having delivered his message, he went on to Great Britain to stir that nation up on the same subject. In the intervening years we have reached the New Zealand standard of that period. Meanwhile, the momentum of the South Pacific Islanders has carried them to a still better level.

The great problem remaining is the baby and mother in childbirth and for several months before and one month after that event. For several years Dr. S. Maurer and other men working in this field have advocated some changes in the diet of pregnant women as a measure for protecting the health of parturient women and babies a month old and less. The Illinois health department ventured a short distance in this field two years ago.

Drs. M. I. Balfour and S. K. Talpade, on the basis of practical clinical work in India, support the point of view. Anything that can dent the infant welfare problem in India should be equal to putting America and New Zealand on easy street. They have been feeding wheat germ to mothers during the last half of pregnancy and during the lactation and giving it to bottle-fed babies with their milk.

Wheat germ is rich in proteins and a part of the contention is that we have not been feeding pregnant women enough meat, milk and other proteins. It is also rich in those vitamins that have to do with bearing virile children.

Another suggestion, made by Dr. A. L. Mudalsan, also of India, is that one way to prevent puerperal sepsis is to give women who are soon to become mothers more fish liver oils and more foods rich in vitamins D and A. They need foods of this type just before and just after bringing children into the world.

Culbertson on Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON

HIS FIVE MISTAKES.

There is a Bridge player who plays a great deal of Duplicate in the New York clubs who is very fond of the unusual and freakish in the way of distribution. Recently, in playing his favorite game, when he sat down at the first table to deal the cards, he suggested to his tablemates that the cards be dealt in one board in such a way as to bring about an unusual distribution; so, instead of shuffling and distributing the deck in the ordinary manner, he counted them into packs of thirteen, without shuffling. The result, a typical goulash, was as follows, with the lover of goulashes sitting South:

West, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

Sitting West, as Dealer, was Miss Florence Fitch, who has recently become a convert to the idea of passing strong hands First and Second hand, "depending upon her partned to protect her passes."

The bidding on the hand proceeded as follows: (Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pass | Pass | Pass | 1♡(1) |
| 3♣(2) | Pass | Pass | 3◇(3) |
| 3♡ | Dbl. | 3♠(4) | Pass |
| 6♣ | Pass | Pass | Dbl.(5) |
| Pass | Pass | Pass | |

1—The second mistake. The first, of course, was in the freak deal. South, with barely 2½ honor-tricks, should not have been so obliging, even in Duplicate, as to open the bidding with such a weak hand.

2—Not the proper Overcall, as partner may pass, as in fact, did happen.

3—The third mistake. South can still permit the hand to play at a score short of game, which, with a partner who has twice passed, should have been a highly satisfactory outcome.

4—East reluctantly responded to his parner's Force.

5—The fourth mistake. West had stated that there were no losers in the heart suit. Hence, on the bidding, the best that South could hope for was a possible defeat of the contract, provided the King of diamonds and the Ace of spades were both winners.

In the play of the hand, North, quite naturally, opened the Queen of hearts, upon which the King was played from Dummy. South played the Ace, and West ruffed. A small club was then led, the Dummy re-entered, and the Ten of hearts led, upon which West discarded the spade 7. North winning with the Knave. North now contributed to the comedy of errors by leading a diamond, and the defeat of North and South was complete. While South did not play the King, this extra diamond lead furnished the Declarer with the time advantage, which permitted the making of the contract. The Dummy was re-entered by the second lead of clubs, and the 9 of hearts permitted the discard of the last losing spade. The diamond finesse was then again taken, and the contract of six rather rashly undertaken, was fulfilled.

While it is probable that North, after the 2 discard of the spade, should have shifted to that suit, his contribution to the making of an opposing Slam was small, indeed, in comparison with that of South.

This hand should not be taken as an example of the "fine" strategy of passing a big hand for a swing, as it will be noted that it required the active cooperation of both opponents to secure the desired result.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

SO THIS IS RENO

Letters of a Capital Society Divorcee to Her Mother

Dearest Mother—Two weeks ago this morning I arrived. One third of the time gone. Ethel writes reducing it to hours. "It won't be long now." I was going up in the elevator with a girl who had her divorce and her ticket home in her hand. A nice-looking man, who is also at this hotel and was in the elevator with us, said with a very broad smile: "Well, it looks as if your six weeks are over. Congratulations and excuse me for speaking to you. I just couldn't help it. That ticket home looked so good." Since then I have heard his story. Which reminds me, even though one is as silent as a church, a little leaks out about every one, such as one's maiden name, husband's name, real cause for divorce, proposed complaint (these vary considerably), age, reputation at home, name of future husband, exact cause of his divorce (if any), date of next wedding, incomes of all concerned, etc. Of course, each person thinks that he or she is the one exception, about whom nothing whatever is known. But to get back to the man in the elevator. He is serving the six weeks term for his wife, who, by giving power of attorney to her lawyer here and bringing a counter suit, will get a Reno divorce without ever appearing at all until the day set. How she can part with a husband as amiable as that!

I look forward to Monday, when we will all go to court again and hear the cases in open court. Nothing will ever be as funny as the one last week. I think I wrote you about it—the huge giant of an Army officer who complained that his wife had threatened his life and struck him, making his so nervous that he had to retire from the Army. All this with a straight face and the whole court room sniggering. The judge, taking it very gravely, asked him if he intended to make Reno his permanent home (his train left in a few hours) and saying "divorce granted." The cases take about three minutes.

The only witness you need is someone to swear he has seen you in Reno for forty-two consecutive days. I have a copy of the Reno Divorce Law which reads, "In the State of Nevada either party is a competent witness, and, unless there is a contest, or unless there is some inherent improbability in the plaintiff's case, the testimony of the plaintiff is sufficient."

There are eight grounds for divorce in the state, elastic enough to fit the case of any one who has ever had the train fare to get to Reno. After assiduous inquiry I have yet to hear of one failure, except in the rare cases where both parties have arrived at the same time, when even big-hearted Reno can't give the divorce to both of them. The grounds are:

1. Impotency.
2. Adultery.
3. Wilful desertion.
4. Habitual gross drunkenness.
5. Extreme cruelty.
6. Conviction of a felony or infamous crime.
7. Neglect of the husband, for the period of one year, to provide the common necessaries of life.
8. Insanity, existing for two years prior to the commencement of the action. (This clause was added to the other seven in 1927 at the same session of the "Assembly of the sovereign State of Nevada" when the six months were substituted by three. The account I am copying from goes on to describe the session as follows:

"The Rev. John L. Harvey, chaplain, opened the session with prayer, in which he asked for the 'liberation of the oppressed,' et cetera."

They say the lawyers here were nearly swept off their feet by the storming of their clients the next morning; that the gold rush had nothing on this rush. ELIZABETH.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

The ounce of prevention outlined in yesterday's column will prove more than the proverbial pound of cure. During the windy season, protection in the form of a finishing cream as a base and a generous coating of powder will go a long way toward preserving the fine, smooth texture of your skin, will obviate coarseness, roughness and chapping.

So much for prevention. Now let us cope with the very human tendency of negligence to the point where cure is very important and necessary.

If exposure has caused your skin to become unduly dry, if it is chapped to the point of pain, if powder flakes and forms rings and patches—here's what to do:

First, avoid using soap and water immediately before or immediately after venturing outdoors.

Did you know that cleansing cream makes a splendid skin softener? Wring a pad of cotton out of clear, lukewarm water and scoop up a little cream on it. Go over face and neck several times. Remove with soft tissues. Then apply a second coating and leave on for about 10 minutes. Your skin should be infinitely softer and smoother after a single treatment.

"AQUARIUS."

If FEBRUARY 14 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:15 a. m., from 2:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:30 a. m. to 11 a. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m.

Influences operating on this February 14 will make you feel very relaxed. It should prove a comfortable day, comparatively free of the usually anticipated petty annoyances. Men and women will be more keenly alert to the attentions of those of the other sex than is ordinarily the case. The marriage contract hastily entered into on this day may well prove itself of short duration.

The child born on this February 14 will no doubt get his full share of worldly goods. Alert, and quick to make the most of any situation, he will not be above taking advantage of others. Selfish and inconsiderate of others, the child will be devoted and loving to his parents. Most likely not the student type.

SPERRY IS REELECTED BY WASHINGTON GAS

Great Northern Railway Asks Extension of Bonds Under New Plan.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The board of directors of Washington Gas Light Co. and its subsidiaries held a meeting of organization for the new fiscal year yesterday and reelected all of the company's officers. They are the following: Marcy L. Sperry, president; Robert D. Weaver, vice president; Everett J. Boothby, vice president and general manager; George B. Fraser, vice president; Edward T. Stafford, secretary; Hazel G. Thompson, assistant secretary; Robert C. Owens, treasurer; A. Gray Dawson, Frank R. Holt, assistant treasurers; Richard A. Ennis, comptroller; Wilton J. Lambert, counsel; William E. Horton, assistant counsel.

The board of managers of the Mutual Fire Insurance Co., of the District of Columbia, also held its meeting of organization yesterday and reelected all officers as follows: Charles Kattelmann, president; L. Pierce Botelер, secretary; Henry E. Bittinger, treasurer; E. C. Brandenburg, general counsel; William Reed Macgill, assistant secretary.

Mr. Botelер is now serving his thirty-sixth year as an officer of the company, and on February 1 began his thirty-eighth year in its employ. This is the seventy-eighth year in which the company has been in business, being chartered by Congress in 1855. Mr. Kattelmann, the president, has had 24 years in its service and for more than 8 years was its treasurer. He was elected to the presidency in 1931, succeeding the late W. A. H. Church.

Attend Sales Session.

C. L. McCrea, manager of the refrigeration department of the National Electrical Supply Co., distributors here for General Electric refrigerators, ranges, dishwashers and other electrical home appliances, and A. M. Pickett, assistant to the manager, will leave today for Cleveland where they will attend the seventh annual sales convention of the General Electric refrigeration department and the first meeting of the specialty appliance sales department of the company, recently organized.

Plans for the annual spring sales and advertising campaign will be outlined at the convention, Mr. McCrea said and new policies of the General Electric Co. will be announced.

"In view of the formation of the new specialty appliance department," Mr. McCrea declared, "and the advantages to be derived from a new and larger newspaper advertising campaign resulting, we are confident that 1933 will see more than an ordinary increase in sales of electric appliances for the home over last year."

The Washington agency of the Equitable Life Insurance Co. of Iowa, was tendered a "victory banquet" in the Hotel Mayflower last night.

The local agency of which Joseph E. Rice is manager, lead the entire country in sales during the past year. Those present included H. E. Aldrich, vice president and secretary of agencies and Stephen A. Swisher, assistant secretary of agencies. The affair was arranged by George F. Stevens. The Rev. George L. Farnham spoke.

Bonds Extension Sought.

William P. Kenney, president of the Great Northern Railway Co., in a letter to holders of its first and refunding mortgage 4¼ per cent gold bonds, points out that on July 1, 1933, there will mature $41,963,000 St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba consolidated mortgage bonds which are prior with respect to the mileage on which they are a lien to the company's first and refunding mortgage, now closed, and its subsequently created general mortgage.

Under the general mortgage, bonds are reserved to retire the consolidated bonds and other underlying debt, but the company also is authorized to extend such underlying debt at maturity. Such extension, however, is not permitted under the first and refunding mortgage.

Due to conditions in the railway securities market, the railway company therefore asks holders of its first and refunding bonds to deposit these bonds for stamping under a plan and agreement assenting to the extension of the principal of the maturing consolidated bonds for not more than 15 years and on terms as to rate of interest, redemption, &c., to be approved by a committee which has been constituted to act for the first and refunding bondholders.

This committee, consisting of James H. Perkins, chairman; Lewis Gawtry, Henry S. Morgan, Henry S. Sturgis and Frederick W. Walker, has approved the plan and become a party to the agreement. The committee will serve without compensation and no charges will be made against depositing bondholders, the company assuming all expenses incidental to the plan.

The First National Bank of the City of New York has been designated depositary, and the First National Bank of St. Paul, St. Paul, Minn., and Old Colony Trust Co., Boston, subdepositaries. In order that the company may be assured that the plan can be declared operative promptly, it has agreed to pay in advance interest due July 1, 1933, on all bonds deposited on or before April 1, 1933.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—The country's financial markets, with few exceptions, observed Lincoln's birthday with a holiday today. All markets and banks in New York were closed, while over the country business on the exchanges was generally suspended. The New Orleans Cotton Exchange was open.

Important dividend meetings scheduled for this week include United Fruit, American Telephone & Telegraph and International Harvester. Others are Texas Gulf Sulphur, Armour of Delaware (for action on preferred stock), Commercial Investment Trust and Penick & Ford.

Wall street looks forward eagerly to the national transportation committee's report, expected soon. The committee, formed last fall under chairmanship of the late Calvin Coolidge, held extensive hearings on phases of the transportation industry, especially the railroads.

FINANCE AND TRADE OUTLOOK BRIGHTENS

Securities and Commodities Take On New Life; Auto Output Gains.

New York, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—The past week has brought a series of heartening developments and statistics in finance and business.

Some reports showed distinct improvement compared to a year previously for the first time in one to more than three years.

Commodity markets were spurred by the cold weather, and for the first time since the first week of January, gains exceeded declines in the principal raw staples. Wheat showed gains of about 1½ cents a bushel for the week, cotton about $1 a bale, and hog prices were up substantially.

The stock market this week likewise made the best progress since the first week of January, and bonds were moderately strong. The ordering of a number of regular quarterly dividends by such companies as General Motors Corporation, Union Pacific Railroad, Eastman Kodak Co., and Socony-Vacuum Corporation, tended to offset adverse dividend news of the previous week.

Auto Output Gains.

Automobile production, as reported for January by the National Auotmobile Chamber of Commerce, showed a gain of 5 per cent over January of last year, the first gain over the like month of the preceding year to be reported since August of 1931.

General Motors Corporation reported January sales above a year previously, the first such favorable comparisons since July, 1931.

Commercial insolvencies, as reported for January, were substantially less than in that month either a year ago or two years ago. R. G. Dun & Co.'s tabulation showed 2,919, against 3,458 in January of 1932 and 3,316 in January of 1931. Liabilities involved were 15 per cent under those in the first month of last year.

Railway Incomes Gain.

Aggregate net operating revenues of all class 1 railroads, as reported for December of the Bureau of Railway Economics, showed a gain over a year previously for the first time since July, 1929. The aggregate was $32,856,895, against $27,618,392 in December a year previously. This increase in net was accomplished despite a decrease in gross of nearly 15 per cent.

Total bank clearings, as reported for the first week of February, showed a gain over the like week of last year for the first time in more than two years. Bank clearings, as showing the volume of commercial payments by check, are widely used as a measure of business, and while the favorable comparison with last year was somewhat distorted by the fact that this year's figures included February 1 payments, while they did not in the corresponding week of last year, the showing was regarded as encouraging.

The gain occurred principally in New York City. R. G. Dun & Co. reported a total for all leading cities of $4,716,383,000, up 2.6 per cent compared to 1932.

Industries Press Program Of Preparing for Future

Pittsburgh, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Efforts and expenditures by industries to prepare for the progress of tomorrow have gone ahead rapidly in spite of economic conditions, the American Ceramic Society was told today.

Addressing the society's thirty-fifth annual convention, Dr. William Spraragen, of New York, secretary of the division of engineering and industrial research of the National Research Council, declared scientific research is forging ahead.

He said 70 leading trade associations are financing such work with annual expenditures of from a few thousand dollars to more than $100,000.

"Translated in percentage of sales, the figures become still more startling as fully 91 per cent of the companies made no change or increased their percentages of sales devoted to research, as compared with 9 per cent that decreased such expenditures," Dr. Spraragen said. "It is surprising that relatively the effectiveness of the smaller company in the research battle was as great as the larger companies."

Discussing research as a factor in competition, the speaker held that modern competition is between different industries as distinguished from competition among several firms of the same industry.

He urged that cooperative research be furthered as a means of eliminating unnecessary duplication, reducing the cost of investigational work, and combining the experience and knowledge of a number of scientists.

Chemical Company Receivership Asked

Davison Firm, of Baltimore, Sued by Stockholder and Creditor.

Baltimore, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—The Federal court here was asked today to appoint receivers for the Davison Chemical Co., of Baltimore. The bill was filed on behalf of the Pyrites Co., Inc., a creditor, and Lulu F. Meyer, a holder of 50 shares of the chemical company's stock. Both complainants are from Delaware. The petition alleges the company is heavily indebted to various persons and firms and is unable to meet the obligations now due.

According to the annual report issued for the fiscal year ended last June 30, the chemical company's total assets were listed as $35,486,479 and its capital stock, $19,930,893. A deficit of $180,438 appeared in its working capital as of June 30.

British Trade Increase Halted as Year Starts

London, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—A halt in the improvement recorded during the concluding months of 1932 in Great Britain's overseas trade is shown by board of trade returns for January, both imports and exports being down substantially.

U. S. Foreign Trade Importance Urged

Volume Is Found Greater Than Home Industries Estimate.

New York, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—The popular conception that foreign trade represents only about 10 per cent of the United States business is apt to be misleading, says Ernest & Ernest, in a survey of foreign trade figures, showing that producers of such lines as cotton, petroleum and machinery have a more vital interest in maintaining export markets.

The survey, based on latest data from the Department of Commerce, showed that of our domestic production in 1932, 50 per cent American production of cotton went into exports, 30 per cent of lubricating oils, 27 per cent of leaf tobacco, 24 per cent of lard, 15 per cent of wheat, 13 per cent of lumber, 11½ per cent of automobiles, 9 per cent of apples, 9 per cent of motor fuel, and 6½ per cent of canned salmon.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading on the stock exchange started the week quietly. Moderate buying hardened gilt-edged securities and German bonds while oil shares improved on the American prediction of an early advance in crude oil prices. Other issues moved very little and the closing tone was dull.

Paris—Prices were steady on the bourse, trading being limited pending the outcome of the budgetary debate. The closing was sustained.

Berlin—Trading was quiet but cheerful and gathered strength and the closing was sustained.

Wall Street Watches Canada In Pound-Dollar Struggle

Ties in America Studied as Money Deflation Is Advocated.

New York, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Whether Canada eventually will push her currency down with the British pound sterling, or try to keep it up somewhere near the United States dollar, is a question in which Wall street has become keenly interested.

Agitation in the dominion for inflation, for reducing the value of the Canadian dollar, has been strongly opposed in important Canadian banking quarters, but the course of other British dominions, more recently South Africa, in bringing their currencies down with sterling, has made Wall street wonder if Canana's ties to London would eventually prove stronger than her ties to New York.

Canada's financial links to New York have become strong, for most of her external borrowing for several years has been in this market. The dominion has large payments to make in American dollars, and if she reduces her currency further in relation to the American dollar, it will make these payments more difficult. Service charges on her debt in this country for 1933 are estimated at well over $250,000,000.

Furthermore, the United States has very important interests in Canada. The dominion is our second best foreign customer, taking more than 15 per cent of our 1932 exports, which was exceeded only by the United Kingdom, taking more than 18 per cent. England's purchasing power in our markets already has been sharply reduced by the drop in the pound, and a further drop in the Canadian dollar would tend to reduce further the dominion's takings of our goods.

Thus far, since England went off the gold standard, Canada evidently has been trying to keep her currency about halfway between the dollar and the pound sterling, and until recently a little closer to the dollar. While sterling had depreciated in terms of the dollar about 30 per cent, the Canadian dollar was kept for some time at about 88 cents in terms of the American dollar, or only about 12 per cent below the dollar. The Canadian unit took a dip late in January, however, perhaps partly under the influence of bear selling in the foreign exchange markets, and touched a low of 81½ cents on February 1. Since then it has recovered somewhat and has been hovering lately between 83 and 84 cents.

To Holders of
GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY
FIRST AND REFUNDING 4¼% GOLD BONDS:

On July 1, 1933, $41,963,000 St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Consolidated Mortgage Bonds, assumed by Great Northern Railway Company, will mature. These Bonds are secured by a first mortgage on 2542.18 miles of railway in Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, including the Company's main lines in those States between St. Paul and Winnipeg and St. Paul and the Pacific Coast, and are prior with respect to such mileage to the Company's First and Refunding Mortgage (now closed) and its subsequently created General Mortgage.

Under the General Mortgage, Bonds are reserved to retire the Consolidated Bonds and other underlying debt, but the Company is also authorized to extend such underlying debt at maturity. Such extension is not, however, permitted under the First and Refunding Mortgage.

Under these circumstances, and in view of conditions in the railway securities market which are too well known to require restatement, the Company has determined to request from the First and Refunding Bondholders cooperative action assenting to an extension of the principal of the maturing Consolidated Bonds, without impairment of lien, for not more than fifteen years, on terms as to rate or rates of interest, redemption and otherwise, to be approved by the below-mentioned Committee.

Holders of First and Refunding Bonds are, therefore, asked to indicate such assent by depositing their Bonds with the Depositary or one of the sub-depositaries below-mentioned, for stamping under a Plan and Agreement, copies of which are available at the offices of the Depositary and sub-depositaries.

A Committee, consisting of James H. Perkins, Chairman, Lewis Gawtry, Henry S. Morgan, Henry S. Sturgis and Frederick W. Walker, has been constituted to act for the First and Refunding Bondholders and has approved the Plan and become a party to the Agreement. The Committee has agreed to serve without compensation. Holders of a large amount of First and Refunding Bonds have indicated their approval of the Plan.

First and Refunding Bondholders are requested promptly to deposit their Bonds, with July 1, 1933 and subsequent coupons, with The First National Bank of the City of New York, 52 Wall Street, New York, N. Y., Depositary, or with The First National Bank of St. Paul, Fourth and Robert Streets, St. Paul, Minn., or Old Colony Trust Company, 17 Court Street, Boston, Mass., sub-depositaries, to be stamped in evidence of the subjection thereof to the Plan and Agreement.

Bonds deposited will be returned promptly when so stamped. No charges of any kind will be made against Depositing Bondholders, as the Company has agreed to pay all expenses incidental to the Plan. The Company will also reimburse Bondholders, upon request, for the ordinary expense of transmission of Bonds to and from the place of deposit, including cost of insurance.

In order that the Company may be assured at an early date that the Plan can be declared operative promptly, the Company will pay, in advance, with the return of the stamped Bonds, the interest due July 1, 1933 on all Bonds deposited on or before April 1, 1933 accompanied by any necessary Federal Income Tax certificates with respect to such interest.

Twenty Year 5½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, Series A

To the Holders of Twenty Year 5½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, Series A, Cigar Stores Realty Holdings, Inc.:

Holders of the above Debentures are again reminded that under the Bankruptcy Law individual proofs of claim in the bankruptcy proceedings of both Cigar Stores Realty Holdings, Inc. and United Cigar Stores Company of America, the guarantor of the principal and interest of the Debentures, should be filed on or before February 28, 1933.

The Committee can serve Debentureholders who deposit with it by furnishing blank forms for proofs of claim and attending to the proper filing of such proofs. The Committee understands that the Referee requires Debentures to be filed with proofs of claim, and gives only an informal receipt for such Debentures, whereas the Committee issues transferable Certificates of Deposit to its Depositors and will arrange for filing of deposited Debentures with the Referee when required. The Committee therefore strongly recommends that all Debentureholders deposit their Debentures and execute and return promptly the blank forms of proofs of claim which are forwarded to them.

Debentures should be deposited with Guaranty Trust Company of New York, as Depositary, at its Corporate Trust Department, 140 Broadway, New York, N. Y., and must be in negotiable form and accompanied by all interest coupons maturing on and after January 1, 1933.

THE THEATER LAST NIGHT

"THE GREEN PASTURES." Laurence Rivers, Inc., presents a fable by Marc Connelly in 2 acts and 18 scenes, featuring Richard B. Harrison, Charles H. Moore, Doe Doe Green, Daniel L. Haynes, Thomas Russell, Edna M. Harris, James Fuller, Tutt Whitney, Susie Sutton, Alonzo Fenderson, McKinley Reeves, George Randol and scores more, with Hall Johnson Celestial Choir. Play suggested by Roark Bradford's Southern Sketches of "Ol' Man Adam an' His Chillun." Directed by Mr. Connelly. Settings by Robert Edmond Jones.

BY NELSON B. BELL.

Pursuing a course of cumulative vigor, intensity and profound solemnity, this infinitely moving play presents a unique feat in dramaturgy.

It translates to the variegated and diverting uses of the stage, in the only manner it could be done without an offensive and oppressive sense of sacrilege, sacred subject matter that has never before been utilized as a basis of theatrical entertainment. It successfully dares the impudent undertaking of making the Lord God Jehovah the central figure in a drama that reduces the scriptural teachings of the first Books of the Old Testament to their lowest terms; it interprets these passages of the Bible in symbols of a primitive simplicity, so naive and so ingenuous as to magnify rather than vitiate their impressiveness.

Marc Connelly, not without occasional touches of crass theatricalism and the employment of devices that have become the hallmarks of "good theater," has shrewdly contrived to transcribe Holy Writ into the vivid symbolism of a living religion that is at once realistic and amusing, yet both reverent and profound.

He has linked the problems of "de Lawd" and the tribulations of His children on earth in a series of animated tableaux that encompass a tremendous scope within the running time of the average play, and in so doing has fairly approximated de Lawd's own sublime achievement in "rarin' back and passin' a miracle."

The structural form of "The Green Pastures" is as familiar as it is easy of quick and complete comprehension. The revelation of the scriptural story is put in motion by the Sunday school lessons of the good Mr. Deshee, teaching a class of juvenile seekers after truth in a little church of the Deep South. As he expounds the profundities of the first chapters of the Gospel of Moses, the scenes merge into the visual activities of the Jehovah as he administers his omnipotent duties both from a rolltop desk in his Heavenly office and as he walks the earth among his people, with whom he is ill pleased.

We see first, the fish fry in Heaven, where de Lawd "rar's back and passes his first miracle" by causing the creation of more firmament for the custard that has been given him to drink. So much firmament is forthcoming that it is necessary to "rar back and pass another miracle" in order that there may be some place "to dreen the chillun dry." Thus does the earth come into being.

Adam is created, and Eve, and then is the Garden of Eden, until sin enters the world. Then come the tragedy of Cain and Abel, the Flood, the restocking and repeopling of the earth, the deliverance of the Children of Israel from their years of bondage in Egypt, their entry into Canaan, the Promised Land, the fall of Jericho, the defense of the City of Jerusalem by Hezdrel and the Lord God Jehovah's vision of the Crucifixion and redemption of the world through suffering.

Here is the strange anomaly of a concrete and complete religion, trimmed with jazz and embellished by a strictly twentieth century verbiage and vernacular. The peculiarly staccato effect that might reasonably be expected to result from so rapid a succession of scenes and episodes as comprise both of the two acts is skillfully avoided by welding them smoothly together by the beautifully sung spirituals which Hall Johnson's Celestial Choir weaves into an eloquent vocal background for the action, under the direction of Ulysses Chambre. This was one of the most applauded features of last night's long-awaited first performance of the play in Washington.

A huge cast of colored actors and singers is required for this extraordinary production and it is another of the marvels of the theater that last night's should have been the identical one that has appeared throughout the three years' record run of "The Green Pastures," with the single exception of Mr. Doe Doe Green, a comedian of parts, who now appears in the role of Gabriel, twice vacated by death.

The outstanding performance of all, of course, is contributed by Richard B. Harrison in the role of de Lawd, a part which he played last evening for the 1200th time without ever having missed a performance. His deft gradation from a God of wrath to a God of mercy is an intelligent, sensitive and forceful bit of thoughtful and reverent pretending. Once the temper and the tempo of his interpretation are established, not a false note is struck.

Other fine impersonations, among a number so great all may not be mention, are offered by Daniel L. Haynes, who appears both as Adam and Hezdrel; Charles H. Moore, as Mr. Deshee; Edna M. Harris, as Zeta, the "celestial flapper;" Tutt Whitney and Susie Sutton as Noah and his wife; George Randol, as Pharaoh, and Alonzo Fenderson as Moses.

In the closing scenes of the last act—and the entire 18 scenes of both acts represent a purely primitive concept of the glory and pageantry of the Bible—where de Lawd rewards Moses for a lifetime of faithful service, learns from Hezdrel and Hosea the great lessons of mercy and suffering, and foresees the cross and Calvary, Mr. Connelly has captured something of the divine spark that has immortalized the Passion Play. The mere fact that he has adorned it in less regal trappings in no way lessens its power or dims it brilliance.

COLUMBIA

"TRAILING THE KILLER." World Wide picturization of a story by Jack London Zeidman, featuring Caesar, the wolf dog. Directed by Herman C. Raymaker. Reviewed Monday evening by W. A. Whitney.

In all the motion pictures with dogs in the stellar roles, there has not, perhaps, been as exciting and consistently thrilling a melodrama of canine sagacity as here revealed in "Trailing the Killer."

From the opening scenes, showing the capture of mountain lion kittens, to the climactic battle-royal between this son (so it is said) of the great Rin-Tin-Tin and a giant, cadaverous and gaunt mountain lioness, there is not a single dull moment. The development of this study in natural history, when it is not concerned with trailing the killer, is devoted to the "private life" of Mr. and Mrs. Lobo and their family of cute puppies.

There is a thread of narrative involving Lobo's being mistaken for a sheep-and-man-killer. Hence, by the law of the sheep-herder, his life is forfeit. Apparently possessed of a life no less charmed than Macbeth's, Lobo manages to evade traps, nooses, and gunfire. At the critical moment, one of the trailers is caught in a noose and is about to be pounced upon by a mountain lion when Lobo comes to the rescue, thereby making an eternal friend of an erstwhile sworn enemy.

That's all there is to it—except a demonstration of the sleek Caesar's uncanny intuition and consummate stratagems. And, believe it or not, that dog has everything, although at times his "acting" smacks of too much training at human hands. But even that slight flaw pales before his magnificent display of strategy in his battle with a rattlesnake. Staged it may have been, but the "directing" was Caesar's own idea! The two mountain lion fights, too, are things to write home about.

Rounding out the entertaining program are a "Flip the Frog" cartoon, "Funny Face;" Hal Roach's Taxi Boys in "Strange Innertube," and the Paramount Sound News.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

HAVING fostered and put behind it all of the vigorous support of its organization, Nationwide in influence, if not actual physical extent, the Theatrical Press Representatives of America, Inc., through its official organ, The Quill, now has launched a campaign to establish a National Theater Producing Company, with a 10 per cent rebate from the U. S. Government's amusement ticket nuisance tax as the nucleus of an endowment of $500,000.

It is pointed out in the February issue of The Quill that if this subsidy can be established by the means indicated, 50 new productions could be opened in New York and on the road, theatergoing might be doubled and the Government be surprised with a $5,000,000 increase in revenue; producers, bankers and receivers could smile again, and A. H. Woods get his wish for a revival of a string of popular-priced playhouses like the old Stair & Havlin Circuit, on which his ten-twent-thirt productions used to flourish; press agents, stage hands and actors would be in demand, with some real relief for unemployment in the theater.

Not only that, it may be added, but with its dreams of revenue from the theater tax only coming 40 per cent true, Congress ought to perceive the merit of the plan as a device for saving its own face, if nothing more. The suggestion of the T. P. R. O. A. already has enlisted the support of many influential lovers of the theater.

Walter Prichard Eaton, one of the brighter minds always interested in bringing back the stage, writes The Quill:

"Of course, the theater tax is class legislation. It is a kind of luxury tax which legislators think will yield easy revenue because people are reluctant to give up being amused.

"It never occurs to the solons that they won't give it up because it is really a necessity, rather than a luxury. The mind of a legislator being the vacuum it is, this idea will never penetrate.

"So I should be heartily in favor of advocating, with you, a rebate on this tax, to serve as a national subsidy, and to be employed in the production and touring of plays.

"I say I should be; but that means if the machinery for such production were satisfactory. * * *

"* * * The only other solution I can think of is to divide Noel Coward and George Kaufman into 20 pieces."

And boxed on the first page of the same issue of The Quill is the indorsement of that eminent bon vivant, scourge of the flouters of the law and former incumbent of this desk, old Skipper Frank P. Morse.

In view of the fact that returns from the ticket tax—which has driven unnumbered patrons away from the boxoffice—is reputedly 60 per cent under congressional estimates of $3,500,000 per month, the gentlemen on The Hill should have learned by this time that "socking the theater" occasionally passes its dividends!

In view of this situation it may not be too visionary to suspect that they would be willing to listen to reason and maybe slip a sotto voce and subterranean tip quietly up the Avenue from the Capitol to the Treasury Department—which, after all, is where it would do the most good.

At any rate, I hereby cast one vote in favor of the movement.

Largely fulfilling the wishes, if not the positive expectations of those most intimately concerned, telephone confirmation of the appointment of Lou Brown to the post of Publicity Director of the Loew interests in Washington was received from the New York office of Loew's, Inc., by City Manager Carter Barron yesterday morning.

Lou, formerly a member of the staff of this trustworthy family journal, was not so long ago in charge of advertising and publicity for the Fox Theater. When Loew assumed control of the Fox property, Mr. Brown allied himself with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as itinerant publicist with the more opulent of its road shows, subsequently being rewarded for meritorious service by appointment to the resident publicity job in Baltimore. Being a native son, he now returns home, after about a year of wandering, familiar with his new duties, well acquainted with the people with whom he will be officially associated and altogether enjoying the agreeable sensations of what a picturesque and pungent vernacular describes as "sittin' pretty." Mr. Brown will assume his new duties on Friday of the current week.

Congratulations all around.

And that reminds me. Evidently one of the first things Eddie Gilmore, whom Mr. Brown succeeds as Loew's city cymbal-whanger, did upon arriving in Atlanta was sit himself down and write back to all his friends in Washington.

Something of what Mr. Gilmore found awaiting his managerial acumen upon his arrival back in his old home town may be gathered from a portion of his note, dated February 11, and reading as follows:

"Already I have arrived in Atlanta (yes, it can be done in a Ford!). I find here one of the most beautiful theaters an architect ever gave thought to or a showman ever dreamed about. It is what good old Fox had reference to when they used to use that 'Last Word' business in all their copy."

It is, of course, Loew's Grand Theater in Atlanta to which Mr. Gilmore refers—the house which will constitute the major object of his managerial pride in his new post.

One gathers from a little honest sentiment comprising another and purely personal part of his letter that Eddie left Washington with a deep-seated and genuine reluctance. He is the sort of lad who inspires reciprocal feelings of friendship and regret that his tour of duty in the Capital was not of longer duration.

Oldtimers happening into the lobby of the National early last evening were carried back a few years by the smiling countenance of Clarence Jacobsen visible through the box office grill.

Many a ticket Clarence passed over that ledge back in those remote days when he was treasurer of the Rapley temple of the arts. Neither of us boasted quite such an ample waistline back in that earlier incarnation. Which, of course, prompted a smart-cracking bystander to remark that Clarence and I, lined up side by side, made a fair imitation of a male quartet—by poundage, not soundage!

And the back of my hand to you, sir!

Managing rector Rodney Collier, of the Rialto, reports in high glee that a print of Paul Whiteman's "King of Jazz" has at last been received from the West Coast and that this most engaging of all the screen revues will, accordingly, be revived on Ninth street in due course.

There can be no doubt of Mr. Collier's determination to show this subject at the earliest possible moment. Although the print came to him direct from Carl Laemmle, sr., out on the West Coast, it came collect and he had to dig up $14 for transportation charges before he could get possession of the precious footage.

Now he's got to run it to get his money back!

Two inquiries have been made of this department relative to the numbers included in Phil Lampkin's "St. Valentine" medley overture at Loew's Fox. At a great expenditure of time and effort, but not much money, we have unearthed information leading to the belief that the potpourri opens with the introduction to "No, No, Nanette" and then proceeds with "What Is This Thing Called Love?" "Ninety-nine Out of a Hundred Want to Be Loved," "A Boy and a Girl Were Dancing," "Tea for Two," "I Can't Give You Anything but Love, Baby," "Sweethearts," from "Maytime," and "Good-night, Sweetheart."

Even without the research, I could probably have told you all this, because I have a very fine ear for music.

I can hear it as far as anybody!

ARE YOU PAYING $14.00 too much for car insurance?

WOULD you act now to reduce the cost of your car insurance as indicated below, if you were confident you would get unquestionable financial protection and were certain that your accident claims would be settled promptly and fairly?

Liberty Mutual is the largest company of its kind in America. It has Assets of $23,154,675; Reserves for Liabilities of $17,973,652; Reserve for Contingencies of $1,241,384; and a Surplus of $3,939,639 (June 30, 1932). Of even greater importance, Liberty has earned and paid its regular 20% dividend to every policyholder and has increased its resources and surplus every year, right through the depression.

Here is convincing evidence of financial stability and low net cost, both resulting from Liberty's direct-writing mutual plan, whereby the profits earned by careful management are returned to policyholders, after setting aside ample reserves and adding to surplus each year.

Liberty's profits are large and savings to policyholders over standard rates have always been at least 20% of every annual premium paid by every policyholder because:—

Liberty sells direct through full-time, salaried representatives. This reduces selling expense by two-thirds.

Liberty will not sell insurance to irresponsible, reckless-driving car-owners. This reduces accident losses.

In non-mutual companies these profits would be paid to a few stockholders but Liberty is owned and managed by its policyholders and its profits are returned to them in the form of cash dividends as their policies expire.

And, Liberty settles accident claims promptly, fairly, courteously. The best evidence of how policyholders are kept out of court and saved from annoyance and expense is that 100,000 leading business and professional men renew their policies with Liberty, year after year.

Send the coupon below for your copy of the free booklet. It contains many facts of vital interest to responsible car-owners. Find out without obligation, how you could have safely reduced the cost of your automobile insurance. Or, better still 'phone or visit our office.

CONSIDER THESE SAVINGS made by car-owners in Washington last year on complete automobile insurance which includes Personal Injury $5,000—$10,000 limits; $5,000 Property Damage limits; and Fire and Theft insurance. Your saving would have depended upon the kind of car you owned, the city or town in which you garaged your car and the kind and amount of insurance you carried. If higher limits or Collision coverage were carried, savings were proportionately greater.

SCHAAF, WORSE, UNDERGOES OPERATION ON BRAIN

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

CABLES bearing the news that the French Tennis Federation considers quite naughty the decision of the United States Lawn Tennis Association to permit open competition between amateurs and professionals comes as no surprise to the followers of big league tennis, particularly French tennis.

The French, in all probability, will not permit their amateur players to partake of any competition with the pros, according to Paris dispatches. It is against the rules in France, and the fact that America is permitting such intermingling of professionals and amateurs will not make any difference to the French, who can't see eye to eye with the U. S. L. T. A. on the proposition for a very good reason.

The very good reason is the fact that in France all professional sports are subject to a 40 per cent government tax and tennis, under the control of the French Tennis Federation, escapes the tax under the rules of an amateur sport. Thus any open tennis tournament in France would not be worth the troubles of promotion, in view of the huge government levy, while any mixed competition between amateurs and pros might very easily prove the opening wedge toward classifying the game as more professional than amateur, with the tax resulting.

Definition of Amateur Difficult.

The cynics have always held the belief that if you scratch an amateur's simon-pure coating you will find a professional and, as a matter of fact, the wordage required to define the distinctions between amateurs and pros is so lengthy as to cast some doubt on the reality of the difference after it has been established. Perhaps, like poetry, amateurism can't be defined to complete satisfaction.

Two short but sometimes applicable definitions of the difference between amateurs and pros have always appealed to this department. The first simply states that amateurs can't sue for back pay. The second is even more brief, noting as it does that the difference between an amateur and a pro is that the amateur must not be paid by check.

The U. S. L. T. A., however, in its decision to sponsor an open tournament is doing more to bring out into the open the question of amateurism than any other agency. The open tournament will provide a definite line of demarcation between the amateurs and the pros for the first time, with each type of player permitted to choose his own course.

Hard to Reconcile Divergent Theories.

For several decades amateur tennis has regarded amateur golf with a holier-than-thou attitude in its ban against mixed competition which was permitted in golf virtually from the date that players became proficient enough to set themselves up as professionals.

Wherein is it a sin against amateurism for amateur tennis players to meet pro netmen when there is no trespass against the amateur code for simon-pure golfers to meet performers from the paid golf ranks? This department has never been able to reconcile these two widely divergent theories unless I admit that the amateurism of amateur tennis players is more inviolate than the amateurism of amateur golfers. And if so, echo answers "Why?"

D. C. Boxing Bill Passed By House

Favorable Vote Seen by Senate; Will Set Up Commission.

THE three-year campaign to legalize amateur boxing in the District of Columbia neared a successful conclusion yesterday with the passage by the House of Representatives of the Hartley bill to permit the charging of admission to supervised amateur bouts in the Capital.

A companion bill to the Hartley measure is expected to be voted on in the Senate at the next District day, on February 20, with little opposition anticipated, inasmuch as a similar bill was passed overwhelmingly in the Senate last year, although it was permitted to expire with other legislation in the House.

Under the terms of the Hartley bill amateur boxing is distinguished from professional prize fighting which is prohibited under the penal code of the District, and admissions may be charged to all bouts under the supervision of a commission of three which will be set up, one commissioner to be representative of the Police Department.

District A. A. U. Backs Bill.

Chief among the proponents of the bill were representatives of the Washington Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, whose boxing rules providing for four three-minute rounds with gloves weighing not less than 8 ounces were used as a model for the measure.

Passage of the bill by the Senate is expected to mark the start of an unprecedented boom in amateur boxing here which has been conducted by various schools, colleges and clubs on a no-charge, invitation basis. The first effects are expected to be the revival of boxing as a varsity sport at Georgetown, Catholic University, and perhaps George Washington University.

Most active in behalf of the Hartley bill was Edward J. Rosenbloom, of the Jewish Community Center and A. A. U. committeeman, who led delegations from the American Legion, Knights of Columbus, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Boys' Club and other organizations in the fight.

May Decide Amateur Titles Here.

If, as is expected, the bill is passed in the Senate next week, it is probable that an announcement will follow outlining plans for the first District of Columbia A. A. U. boxing tournament ever staged in the Capital. For the past two years the District amateur championships have been staged in nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Revenue from the boxing bouts will aid materially the sponsoring of full athletic programs of the A. A. U., including basket ball, wrestling, swimming, hand ball and track.

D. & H. Five Near Center Section Crown

Delaware & Hudson tightened its grip on the lead in section B, Community Center League, last night, winning over its most dangerous rival, Griffiths, by a score of 33-26 in a spirited battle before a crowd of several hundred fans at Roosevelt High School. In another section B fray Anacostia Business Men defeated their neighborhood rival, Congress Heights, 24-21, while in section A, Atlas hung a 28-21 defeat on the Northern Preps.

France May Bar Amateurs From U. S. Open Net Play

PARIS, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—The proposed United States Open Tennis Tournament is illegal and French players probably will not be allowed to compete, the French Tennis Federation, through its president, Pierre Gillou, said today.

It was, however, pointed out by the International Tennis Federation that it was powerless to prohibit such a tournament this year. Study of tennis rules showed that play may be allowed among amateurs and professionals if a national federation permits such play.

The International Federation meets in May, and while the matter is certain to come up for discussion, no ban on the proposed United States tourney could be made to be effective this year.

Provisional plans for open play were made in Saturday's meeting in New York of the U. S. L. T. A. This tournament, if held, would take place at the Germantown (Pa.) Cricket Club, probably early in October.

London, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Although the British Lawn Tennis Association refused to comment officially on the United States Lawn Tennis Association's approval of open tournaments, from a well-informed unofficial source the Associated Press today learned that there was no ruling which would prevent amateurs, who competed against professionals, from playing at Wimbledon.

According to the International Federation code, each country rules on its own players and other countries accept the decisions.

"I can not comment until we have confirmation," said H. A. Sabelli, secretary of the English governing body. "It may be nonsense. I've heard nothing about it officially."

H. Roper-Barrett, nonplaying captain of the British Davis Cup Team, also wanted official confirmation before making any comment.

PETE SARRON IN FISTIC FEATURE

Meets De Angelo at Portner's Tonight in 8-Rounder.

PETEY SARRON, Birmingham featherweight and holder of the titles of the South, Australia and New Zealand, steps into the ring at Portner's Arena tonight to meet the untitled but equally rough Frankie De Angelo, whose toughness will be tested in the eight-round feature bout of the program.

Featherweights have provided the Alexandria Fight Club with its outstanding attractions during the winter and the Sarron-De Angelo affair boasts all the earmarks of another bruising battle with the Birmingham Syrian's reputation for whirlwind tactics guaranteeing a plentitude of action, for De Angelo's backward steps are few—and far between.

De Angelo is essaying his first task in the ring since his defeat on points by Benny Schwartz two months ago and the followers of the local featherweight have been heartened by reports of his assiduous training. In Sarron, he will be facing a puncher instead of the boxing talents of Schwartz, and the bout promises to present the old stand-by attraction of the slugger vs. the boxer, for De Angelo is the greatest of the modern-day boxers developed in the Capital.

Rushing Tactics vs. Counter Punches.

Sarron's rushing tactics, which almost netted him a decision over Fidel LaBarba last spring, will be met by De Angelo's straight counter-punching, which can inflict no little damage, for the local lad is a stiff puncher on his own account, beautifully built for his inches. If any single factor is to mar the bout, it will probably be De Angelo's aversion to steady fighting, for in past performances here he often has fought only when he felt like fighting.

Of chief local interest is one of the six-round supporting engagements that brings together Young Van and Walter Kirkwood, each eyeing the other as a stepping stone to feature spots at Portner's.

Van's swath among the middleweights of this vicinity, rudely interrupted last season by two one-round knockouts, was resumed in his first 1933 outing three weeks ago when he stopped Billy Vermillion in three rounds with a terrific uppercut, but in the gangling Kirkwood, Van meets the stiffest test of his two-year career. Kirkwood, a superior boxer with height and reach in his favor, rules the favorite to interrupt Van's ambitions again.

Taylor and Antonelli in Semifinal.

The six-rounder that occupies the semifinal spot on the program will bring together Bucky Taylor, Baltimore lightweight, and Nick Antonelli, of Washington. The third six-rounder sends Billy Schwartz, Alexandria's pride, against Soldier Bennett, a Fort Washington product. The preliminaries match Phil Silvers, of New York, and Johnny Mays, of Walter Reed; Barefoot Green, of Fredericksburg, and Young "Tuffy" Griffith, of Alexandria, in four-rounders.

BOXING BITS SELECTIONS—Sarron to beat De Angelo, Taylor to beat Antonelli, Kirkwood to beat Van, Green to beat Griffith, Schwartz to beat Bennett and Mays to beat Silvers.

CAMPBELL'S CAR IN TEST RUN TODAY

Speed Ace May Seek New Auto Record Tomorrow.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 13 (A.P.).—A test run tomorrow and possibly an official trial Wednesday was the program mapped out tonight by Sir Malcolm Campbell, of England, here for an attempt to crack his own world automobile speed record of 253 miles an hour.

The 48-year-old driver inspected the beach speedway at low tide late this afternoon, pronounced it in only fair condition and ordered his crew of mechanics to tow his Bluebird racing car into the course about 3 p. m. tomorrow.

"The beach is not in such good condition," Campbell said, "but I am anxious to take the car out and test out the clutch. I probably won't go over 150 miles an hour. Wednesday I want to test out the motor at around 200 miles an hour. If everything is all right then I will be ready to make my official trial at the record."

Condition of Beach Important.

Whether Campbell makes his official trial Wednesday when he tests out the motor will be determined by the performance of the machine and the condition of the beach. If they are not suitable then, it will mean further delay.

Low tide, the only time it is possible for him to race, occurs about 5 p. m. Wednesday with a corresponding low ebb at about that hour Thursday morning. It occurs approximately an hour later each day.

If Campbell is unable to make his official trials before Thursday, racing officials said it would be necessary for him then to wait several days until a suitable morning low tide prevails.

On the inspection trip today, Campbell found the beach contained many ripples and irregularities in the hard-packed sand, in addition to numerous conch shells, which would likely cut his tires, and some debris.

With Campbell's decision to make a test run tomorrow, racing officials prepared to set up the timing apparatus to clock the car on its runs.

Loughran Outboxes Cobb; Takes Decision

Philadelphia, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Tommy Loughran, former light-heavyweight champion, punched out a ten-round decision over Walter Cobb, of Baltimore, in the feature match of a boxing card tonight.

Loughran gave 36 pounds to the giant from Maryland, but used his skill to win the decision in a rough and mauling contest.

Georgia Coleman Plans Diving Tour as Pro

Los Angeles, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Georgia Coleman, tenth Olympiad woman's spring board diving champion, will turn professional, she informed friends here today. Miss Coleman is winding up an exhibition tour as an amateur in Florida.

It is understood here Miss Coleman intends to team with Mickey Riley, men's Olympic spring board champion, for a professional tour. Riley recently announced his intentions of leaving the ranks of the simon pures.

Contest Facts In Brief

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Baseball Club, will select in The Washington Post of March 19 his all-time, all-star team from among the clubs that represented Washington during the years from 1912 to 1932 inclusive.

The fan who submits the selection that matches or most nearly matches Griffith's selection will be adjudged the winner of the contest.

One man is to be selected for each of the infield and outfield positions with four pitchers and two catchers.

To the winner The Washington Post will award eight box seats to the 1933 opening game between Washington and Philadelphia.

Second place will net four box seats, with third place earning two box seats.

Entrants may use the accompanying coupon for their selections, although the use of the coupon is not necessary for entrance in the contest.

The contest will close March 15.

Each entrant is limited to one selection.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—The country's football coaches and officials today gave a prompt and sweeping vote of approval to the action of the national rules committee in making only two changes in the gridiron code for 1933, both calculated to improve the sport as well as further reduce possible causes of injury to the players.

The Associated Press found coaches in all sections particularly pleased with the new side-line zone rule as an aid to the offense. Their own rules group had recommended it beforehand and the general response today revealed little opposition to the new regulations, which automatically provides for the ball to be brought in 10 yards whenever it goes outside or is downed within the side-line zone.

Jones Differs From Most Coaches.

Capt. Lawrence ("Biff") Jones of Louisiana State, the former West Point coach, objected on the ground the new sid-line zone "lowers the value of strategy and kicking accuracy," but W. A. Alexander, of Georgia Tech, countered with the assertion it "adds strategy" and this was the generally accepted view.

Expressing the majority attitude, H. C. ("Curly") Byrd, University of Maryland head coach, said: "The new side-line rule will open up play along the side lines, stop pulling and tugging to push the ball carrier outside and will make side-line play safer, besides giving the quarter back better opportunity to display his field generalship."

Dozens of others shared the belief of Dick Hanley, of Northwestern, that this rule also will speed up the game, heretofore delayed by the wastage of a play every time a team was bottled up along the side lines.

Wallace Wade, of Duke, listed three prime benefits, as follows:

Wade Lists Three Prime Benefits.

"First, it makes possession of the ball more valuable since it provides better opportunity for a sustained march down the field; second, it will strengthen the defense since it will improve punting, virtually eliminating the danger of slicing kicks out of bounds without material gains, and third, it removes the quarter back's vital problem of keeping the play away from the side lines, thus simplifying generalship."

Endorsements along similar lines came from Jack Meagher, of Rice Institute, who also mentioned the benefit from the spectator's angle; Tom Lies and Bill Spaulding, both in Los Angles; Gil Dobie, of Cornell; Ossie Solem, of Iowa; Chuck Collins, of North Carolina; Clipper Smith, of North Carolina State; Sam Willaman, of Ohio State, and Lou Little, of Columbia.

While sharing the general view, Ernest Beary, of Washburn (Kansas), also expressed the hope that the old fumble and dead ball rules be restored, explaining: "I don't like to see play halted when a player slips and falls when he is out in the clear."

Bernie Bierman, of Minnesota, who advocated the new clipping rule in the recent coaches' meeting in New York, shared the general belief that reduction of the penalty from 25 to 15 yards for cutting down a player from behind will prompt officials to enforce this rule more strictly. Billy Laval, of South Carolina, said he had seen the old 25-yard penalty "called" only once in seven or eight years.

Babe Ruth Qualifies In Tourney With 85

Bellair, Fla., Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth qualified today with a card of 40—45—85 in the Bellair amateur golf championship and figured he had landed in an easy-enough match-play field to have a chance of winning the tournament.

Garret A. Hobart, of Arcola, N. J., won the medal with a round of 39—38—77.

Ruth found himself in sixth place in the medal scoring. He three-putted the first two greens, took a five on two short holes and two sevens. Aside from these mishaps, he played well. On the tenth hole he dropped a 20-footer for a birdie three, giving Mrs. Ruth and his daughter an opportunity to cheer from the sidelines.

Nats' 1927 Club Hard Hit By Johnson's Broken Leg; Speaker Was in Outfield

Club Beset by Illness and Injury Finished in Third Place.

(Herewith is the seventeenth of a series of articles in conjunction with The Post's baseball contest.)

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

IN his previous three seasons as skipper of the good ship "Nationals," Bucky Harris had been able to cope fairly well with the opposition furnished by opponents on the playing field, but in 1927 a relentless jinx made a concerted attack on both Harris and his mates and this proved too much for him to overcome. As a matter of fact, a series of mishaps had him yelling "There ain't no justice" even before the season started.

On March 10, to be exact, the Nat leader let out his first yelp when a hot grasser from Joe Judge's bat hit Walter Johnson on his left leg while the "Old Master" was pitching in batting practice at the Tampa camp. For a day, it was thought that the injury was one of those ordinary run-of-the-mine ones, but an X-ray was later taken, it showed a broken bone, and Johnson not only was out until late May but, when he did return to duty, he found his stuff missing and one of the most brilliant careers in baseball ended that season. His record was five wins and six losses. Johnson was given his release by President Clark Griffith so that he could accept the managership of the Newark Internationals.

Harris Fractures Finger.

Less than two weeks after Johnson's injury, Harris broke the index finger of his throwing hand in an exhibition game with the Cards at Avon Park. He was out of action for several weeks. This was the beginning of a series of accidents and illnesses which hit practically every player on the squad throughout the entire season.

Washington's preseason prospects had loomed bright indeed. Tris Speaker had been signed for an outfield berth and, although Joe Harris had been turned loose, Red Barnes, Nick Cullop, Foster Ganzel and Sam West promised lots of additional help to the hold-over regulars, Goslin, Rice and McNeely. Grant Gillis and Minter (Sonny Boy) Hayes' brought infield utility strength, while Garland Braxton, Bobby Burke, Irving Hadley, Horace Lisenbee and Hollis Thurston bolstered the mound staff.

But all of this added talent could not pull the Nats through. Soon after Johnson was declared "out," Stanley Coveleskie's arm became dead, leaving only Marberry among the so-called veterans. Thurston, Braxton, Lisenbee and Hadley made good, but injuries and illnesses began to come in droves and the best the Nats could do was to finish third in the flag race. The Yankees won, the A's were second, and Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland, St. Louis and Boston trailed the Harrismen in that order.

One of the greatest disappointments was Speaker. Despite the fact that he finished second among the Nats to Goslin in both batting and driving in runs, he showed he had slowed down greatly as a fielder and did not hit his batting stride until too late to do the Nats much good. As he was a high-salaried player he was given his release shortly after the season ended.

Nats Second for Six Weeks.

The Nats were second from July 1 to mid-August, but then dropped back, although never lower than fourth. On September 10 they climbed into the third hole and remained there until the end.

Peckinpaugh had been released to the White Sox during the off-season and hawing the rookie Buddy Myer at short did not help much, as he did not seem to fit into the picture. Seeing a possible chance to get somewhere with the shortfield bolstered, Harris traded Myer to the Red Sox for the veteran Emory (Topper) Rigney, but, despite his record and reputation, he proved little better than the rookie. Still later, Crowder was traded to the Browns for "Ole Tom" Zachary.

Braxton knocked Marberry's nose out of joint as regards pinch-pitching, participating in 58 games to 56 for the Texan. Braxton won 10 and lost 9 to 10 and 7 for Marberry. Lisenbee turned in the most Nat victories, 18 out of 27 decisions. Hadley won 14 of 22 and Thurston broke even in 26 decisions.

Fourth was the best rating the Nats could draw in batting, with Goslin, as usual, showing the way with .334. Speaker, Tate, Judge and Ruel alone topped the .300 mark, with Rice, ill much of the season from infected teeth, dropping to .297.

In fielding, the home players finished third, with Judge, Harris and

TRIS SPEAKER was regarded as a valuable addition to the Nats when he joined the club in 1927, but the veteran outfielder was released the following season despite a batting average of .327.

Fight Career Of Bostonian In Balance

Paralysis Is Believed Overcome as Left Arm Moves.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Delicate brain surgery, lasting through three hours, today gave Ernie Schaaf, blond young Boston heavyweight, an even chance to recover from the effects of a thirteen-round knockout he suffered Friday night at the ponderous hands of the giant Primo Carnera.

Relief from an intracranial hemorrhage became so imperative shortly after noon that Dr. Byron Stookey, noted brain specialist, and three other surgeons and neurologists operated in Polyclinic Hospital on the boxer. They removed an edema, or swelling, deep-seated in the motor area of the brain.

Schaaf has been in a semicoma since admission to the hospital immediately after the fight.

The operation, ordered when Schaaf's condition became worse this morning, relieved the paralysis along the left side that had been evident from the time he was carried from the Madison Square Garden ring, knocked out by a left jab to the nose, with the cries of "fake" from 20,000 throats booming through the arena.

Patient's Condition Still Critical.

"An operation to relieve intracranial pressure was done under local anesthetic," said the bulletin issued over the signature of Dr. Stookey, and the assisting surgeon, Dr. Harold Meeker; Dr. William V. Healy, house surgeon, and Dr. Philip Goodhart, professor of neurology at Columbia University. "The patient stood the operation well and afterward moved his left arm, which previously had been paralyzed. The patient's condition is still critical."

The operation, if one was necessary to prove the point, removed any last lingering idea from the minds of the skeptical that Schaaf had "taken a dive" in the thirteenth round to insure Carnera a title match with Jack Sharkey, who owns half of Ernie's contract. The experts still wagged their heads, however, over the ineffectual methods Schaaf adopted in his weak attempts to stop Carnera's attack.

"Evidently he was knocked out on his feet," said Dr. Stookey, a giant of a man himself. "It can be said with certainty that his injury was suffered during this match.

Dr. Stookey said that the next 24 or 48 hours would determine Schaaf's chances of regaining his normal health, and that in the meantime it would be foolhardy to speculate on the outcome of the operation. He refused to speculate on Schaaf's chances of fighting again, even though recovery is complete.

Ruptured Blood Vessel Not Located.

Hope that the blood vessel or vein that had ruptured, causing the hemorrhage, might be found in the tissue covering the cranial cavity was dissipated as the surgeons trepanned the skull on the right side of Schaaf's head and laid back the pereosteum in what is known as an osteoplastic flap. Dr. Stookey found the edema, or swelling, of the blood clot, deep in the motor area of the brain tissue.

Doctors explained that Schaaf's chief hope of averting permanent paralysis lay in the probability that the bleeding from the ruptured blood vessel had stopped of its own accord. Dr. Goodhart said the vessel from which the clot came had not been found.

"His condition is better than before we operated," Dr. Stookey said. "As soon as the pressure was relieved he

Gilbert Rides Double at Miami

Worthington Repeats in Third, Beating Move Faster.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 13 (A. P.).—Johnny Gilbert, the Kansas cyclone, rode his twentieth winner of the meeting and his second of the day in the featured Rock Ledge Purse of 1 mile here this afternoon. America's ace rider for 1932 was astride G. W. Ogle's Mountain Elk, the heavy favorite, and saluted the judges with four lengths to spare over the Greentree Stable's Semaphore. N. E. Stanton's Action was beaten two lengths for the place. Mountain Elk paid $3.70 and his time was 1:37 3-5.

The winner was easily best. Gilbert broke the 5-year-old son of Apprehension on top out of the mile chute and, taking a snug hold, nursed his mount along as Semaphore vainly tried to cut down the pace-maker's advantage. After entering the stretch, Mountain Elk increased his lead and had plenty left at the end. Action was being hard pressed to save the show from Scoutmaster.

Irene's Bob Scores Handily.

Irene's Bob made the field in the opening contest look mighty bad, leading by a wide margin the entire 6 furlongs to win as Jockey Bellizzi pleased. Hamilton took the place five length back and two spans before Surepop. The winner drew away in the first furlong and with little contention left no doubt as to the result. Judge Primrose tired chasing the pace and it was Hamilton which came from well back in the last quarter mile to take the runner-up position. Irene's Bob returned $2.80.

Field players were successful in the juvenile event, Even Play winning the purse and Erebus, another fielder, landing the show. Her Hero split the pair. Her Hero held a slight advantage over Even Play until inside the final furlong, where Gilbert put up a strong finish on Even Play to register by a length and a half. Her Hero lasted to beat Erebus by a like distance for the place. The winner paid $3.80.

Worthington Wins Second in Row.

Alfred Robertson gave Worthington a fine ride to bring the gelded son of Wrack his second score in a row in the third race. Move Faster lost the decision by a half length and saved the place from Frigate Bird by a slightly wider margin. Jaffa, a fast filly, cut out the running to the stretch, but "Robbie" had Worthington primed for the kill all the time. He sailed around the lead entering the stretch and using the whip all through the stretch staved off Move Faster's challenge. Worthington returned $6.30.

Long Chance gave Owner G. M. Odom and Jockey Bellizzi a double when he closed with a tremendous rush in the final strides to record a neck victory in the sixth contest. Everfair took the place by a length from Our Trouble. The winner, favorite at $5.20 for $2, was pinched right back at the start, went wide around the first turn and then was in close quarters. Everfair took the lead from Our Trouble in the stretch, but Long Chance, finally getting clear in the drive to the wire, made a thrilling last-minute spurt to win going away.

Dodgson lasted just to nose out Lucky Racket in the nightcap number. Partisan was third three parts of a length behind. The winner paid $8.70.

AT THE POST

DEAR AL:

It's just possible that the elusive "around the corner" that we have all been waiting for is here. At least the rough spots are wearing off the depression at this course. For a while the boys in the press box were content to view the increased crowds as just increased crowds—out to see and not to wager. However, as the meeting has rolled by, the mutuel play has steadily increased. Of course, some of the people have money all of the time. Mutuel handlers, however, say the cash is well distributed at the various windows with the cheaper tickets making up the bulk of the play. Two winners for Bennings today.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—SKY HAVEN, principal half of the Widener entry, seems to have a lock on this purse. Has done about everything asked hereabouts and needs only able handling. BANK SHOT and KATE are both in excellent condition and should battle it out for the show.

SECOND RACE—MACADAM has speed, as that alst testifies, and will be the one to beat among these babies. BIG DIPPER, another one with a lot of foot gets the place edge over CHIEF A.

THIRD RACE—PERIODICAL may upset the dope. Has been nursed along and I understand the hustling signal will be out today. RALLY ROUND, the probable favorite, should be no worse than second. LIQUEUR is a consistent money animal.

FOURTH RACE—DON LEON'S last was so impressive that I can't pass him up even with a field of this sort. MR. SPONGE comes back to the sprint he loves and may let loose with one of his copyrighted races. LEROS looks best for the third end.

FIFTH RACE—FAIR IMAGE, the lightweight of this party, is better than shown. Has worked excellently and has good races as recommendations. RAPSCALLION was the talk of the paddock late today. There's always the possibility of ESPINETTA coming through with a slashing exhibition.

SIXTH RACE—GARLIC seems well-placed here and might annex his second win of the year. GENERAL COURT and BILLY CHAMP for the rest.

SEVENTH RACE—NOSE IN drops down a couple of pegs and should have little trouble here. NUTLET and ST. CHRISTOPHER are placed ahead of the others.

G. U. Frosh Tossers Are Easy for Eastern

Eastern High School belted the Georgetown Frosh all over the gym yesterday to gain a 38-25 victory in a loosely played game. The Light Blue started with a rush and amassed a 22-4 lead in the first half, with Tom Davis and Jack Bayliss most prominent in the scoring list.

Parrack Is Crops' Hero As Investigation Bows

Wick Parrack and the Crop Production team jumbled the Government League standings when the Farmers trounced Investigation at Bolling Field last night, 26 to 23. Sunday, the Cropmen knocked the G. P. O. quint out of a tie with the Sleuths; last night they brought the Sleuths down to G. P. O.'s level.

Investigation's two games this week have been postponed until later, due to a strong Community Center League slate, while it was announced that league officials will inaugurate an investigation of Parrack's eligibility, recently protested.

SCHAAF UNDER KNIFE; CONDITION CRITICAL

moved his left arm voluntarily. Whether that is temporary or permanent relief we won't know for 48 hours."

Hospital authorities said no further bulletins would be issued until 10 a. m. tomorrow.

In the storm of discussion that followed the knockout, and the increasing realization of the seriousness of Schaaf's condition, despite the fact that Carnera never before had caused any one severe injury, some new evidence came to light.

Schaaf Faltered in Fifth, Say Doctors.

Johnny Buckley, manager of Schaaf, and in constant attendance at the hospital since Friday night, said Schaaf had trained only ten days for the match after apparently recovering from an attack of influenza that put him in a Boston hospital. Doctors who saw the fight said Schaaf showed signs of distress as early as the fifth round, but seconds in his corner said he went out to start the thirteenth round apparently in fine condition. He talked lucidly with his handlers before the start of the last round.

Carnera said that he thought that people misjudged the strength of his punches, and that the final jab he hit Schaaf had a twist to it that would have knocked over any man.

Schaaf's mother and two sisters remained at the hospital. Members of the homicide police squad reopened investigations to determine if criminal negligence entered into the fighter's injury in any way.

The bulletin on Schaaf's condition following the operation was telegraphed to Jack Sharkey, who left for Miami early Saturday morning without learning the serious aspect of his stablemate's condition.

Sharkey Notifies Friends Of Return Trip Today

Boston, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Jack Sharkey, heavyweight champion and co-manager of Ernie Schaaf, tonight notified Boston friends he had made reservations on a train leaving Miami, Fla., early tomorrow morning, and would arrive at the injured boxer's bedside in New York late Wednesday.

RAMBLERS IN VICTORY.

With Daly in the star role, the Ramblers defeated the Standards last night, 30-25.

G. W. Freshmen Win, 46-18, as Kane Stars

With Barney Kane showing the way, the George Washington University freshmen defeated Washington-Lee High School by a score of 46-18 in a one-sided game yesterday at Ballston. The Colonial Cubs rolled up an 18-10 lead in the first half which they increased to more comfortable proportions in the final two periods of play.

Walsh, forward, and Troupe, center, looked good for the winners, while Good, Bunch and Williams were outstanding for the home team.

Hitting the Headpin

HERBIE DERN equaled the season's set mark in the Typothetae League at Lucky Strike last night with a score of 401, while his team, Big Print Shop, hung up a new team mark for the current season with a score of 1,750. Johnson's All-Stars took two from the printers, nevertheless. Greene's 149 game was high while the team game honors went to the Johnson boys, who had 605.

Chick Heltman knocked off a triple-header strike in his final game, running his score to 154 for a 389 set as his Petworth teammates finished on the short end of a 2-to-1 count in their District League match with Georgetown on the latter's alleys. Jack Talburtt had a 148 game and Dave Burrows a 364 set.

Temple's match with Columbia in the District League was postponed out of respect to George Honey, of Temple, who was absent because of a death in his family.

King Pin, with Brad Mandley bouncing the pins around for a 391 set, and Joe Harrison pounding out a 142 game, outrolled Ye Old Tobacco Shoppe three times in the National Capital League at Lucky Strike. The winners had games of 838, 582 and 625 for an 1,845 set.

Davis, of Navy Yard, rolled 151, and Barnard, of G. P. O., 393, to lead the individual scoring in the Men's Federal League at Arcadia. G. P. O. copped team honors with a 635 game and 1,812 set.

Silver Spring rolled a set of 1,632 and Silver Spring Electric walloped the maples for a 583 game, to lead the North Washington Loop at Silver Spring. Jack Schrieder had a 136 game and Howard Parsons a 371 set.

Tom Bradford's 158 and 369 scores headed the individual scoring in the Sanico League at Convention Hall. La Belle's 576 and 1,633 topped the teams.

George Russell rolled 136 and 350, to bag both individual prizes in the Merchants League at Convention Hall, while Barber & Ross took home the team awards with its 588 game and 1,692 set.

Frank Donaldson's 379 set, and Ingemand Lund's 144 game were high in the Odd Fellow's combine at Convention Hall. Amity No. 1 outdistanced the teams with 576 and 1,678.

Russell Emory's 131 and 345 was high as S. Kann's took the final block of its special match with Merchant's Transfer & Storage at the big hall. The winners rolled 560, 525, 570 to their opponents' 480, 483 and 478.

Galt No. 1 had a 572 and 1,651 in the Jeweler's League at Lucky Strike. Violland's 356 and 140 led the individual scoring.

Gladys Cox had a 116 game and Ida Weinberg a 315 set in the Ladies Commerce League at Lucky Strike. Mines rolled 493 and Domestic Commerce 1,392.

DOUGLAS A. C. WINS.

The Douglas A. C. five defeated Ingram in the latter's gym, 22-20. For games with the winners call Manager Taylor at Atlantic 6260.

VIRGINIA RING TEAM FACES NAVY

Hardest Test of Year Due Saturday; Lists 2 Court Games.

Special to The Washington Post.

UNIVERSITY, Va., Feb. 13.—Virginia's boxers, who have won ten victories since their last ring defeat, face opposition as strong as the Nation offers next Saturday night when they meet Navy in Annapolis.

The match with the Middies is the last dual meet on the Cavaliers' regular schedule. On February 24 and 25 they defend their championship of the Southern Conference in the seventh annual title tourney to be held in the Memorial Gymnasium here.

Demand for Tickets Heavy.

Undergraduate enthusiasm over the meet with Navy is running so high that the first block of 300 reserved seats for the Annapolis match has been sold out. Others have had to be ordered.

Virginia's hope of defeating the Tars in their own ring, something no other team has been able to accomplish, rests largely in the lower divisions. At least this is the opinion of some who have seen both teams in action.

Bobby Goldstein, Cavalier captain and national collegiate lightweight champion, showed by his victory over Archie Harris, of the 'Gators, that he is returning to his oldtime form. Goldstein has not been in the best of condition since he was forced to spend several days in bed nursing a deep cold.

Goldstein Promised Real Battle by Miller

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 13.—Highly elated over the unexpected decisiveness of the victory over Louisiana State University's boxers Saturday, "Spike" Webb, veteran mentor of Navy mitt slingers, today began to lay plans for the campaign against the University of Virginia, Southern Conference champions, on the coming Saturday.

The overwhelming triumph has lessened to a marked degree the concern hitherto entertained by Webb over the outcome of the Virginia battle. Midshipman Miller probably will have the toughest assignment on his hands, as he will be pitted against the veteran Bobby Goldstein, captain of the team, who is boxing in the lightweight class this year, and who has a long string of victories to his credit. But Miller's defeat of Glaze, of Louisiana State, one of the cleverest lightweights ever to perform in the Academy ring, demonstrated that it will itake a mighty good man to gain a verdict over the middie. Miller generally carries the fight to his opponent, hits hard and fast, and is a bear for absorbing punishment.

Scissors Tourney On Mat Thursday

Jones-Grobmeier Meet at Auditorium; Winner Faces Stecher.

Joe Turner, the rassling promoter, conceived the diabolical and highly original idea yesterday of staging a scissors tournament among the three heftles who earn their living by the odd habit of fastening their legs around the ample middles of their confreres and compressing them, boa-constrictor like.

Two of the three meet Thursday night, when Fred Grobmeier hooks up with Paul Jones as the feature of a card of five bouts. Turner announced yesterday that the winner of Thursday night's bout will meet Joe Stecher, the daddy of all the scissors, who popularized the hold back some years.

All the boys specialise on a leg lock called the figure four scissors. The guy that's going to lose the bout, for instance, finds the scissors ace has jumped up on his back, entwined his legs around his stomach and brought his right foot up until it is locked in the angle behind the left knee. The victim is impaled therein.

Other bouts Thursday night bring together Jim McMillan, and Ernie Dusek, Abie Coleman and Jacques Humberto, Milo Steinborn and Frank Buresh. One more bout will be added.

Rixey Signs With Reds; Lucas Balks at 2 Cuts

Cincinnati, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Eppa Rixey, dean of the pitching staff of the Cincinnati Reds, signed his contract today for his twenty-first season of major league baseball.

But, while Rixey signed, President Sidney Weil had more trouble with Charles Lucas, of the Reds pitching staff.

Lucas arrived here today from his home in Nashville, Tenn. "I was at least expecting my 1932 salary," he said.

"I pitched the best ball of my career last season. I was in the van in earned runs and in the number of complete games pitched. If I had real support I believe I would have won 25 games at least. I think I am entitled to consideration. I took a cut of $2,500 for 1932, and now I am supposed to stand for another cut of $2,500. I asked Mr. Weil to trade me and he told me he wouldn't."

A. A. U. FIVES FACE LAST CHANCE

Registering to Close Tomorrow for Tournament.

ONLY a decided slump in the number of applications being received daily at the sports department of The Post can prevent the 1933 A. A. U. basket ball tournament from reaching record-breaking proportions. More than a score of clubs, all anxious to try for a city championship, have obtained player registration and team entry blanks. The majority of leagues operating in the city will enter 100 per cent strong.

Tomorrow marks the close of registrations. Those not lined up with the A. A. U. before midnight will be ineligible to compete in the mammoth tourney, which gets under way March 2 at Tech High School under the sponsorship of The Post.

While repeated warnings of the brief time remaining to register have brought results from boys' teams, the girls have not been prompt in responding to the call. It was announced last night that girls not registered by tomorrow night will be barred.

Must Register for This Year.

Many teams have the impression that cards issued last year are sufficient to qualify them for this year's tournament. This is not so. To be eligible every player must be signed for the ensuing year.

Playing under ideal conditions, on the spacious Tech High School gym floor with approved board officials in charge of the games, the tournament offers every team in the District a fair chance to win the city championship. They match wares with the best and the worst teams.

The fact that many teams have been organized only a brief period leads some to believe that they stand no chance of going farther than the first round in the tourney. But this theory was exploded with a roar that still resounds by the War Department A. G. O. 150-pounders last year.

Managed by enthusiastic but unassuming Harold Slusser the A. G. O. quintet (Adjutant General's Office) played through the season enjoying mediocre success, but it entered the tournament.

Drawings for the first round revealed St. John's Victors, a heavy favorite in the class, as A. G. O.'s opponent. Included in the Victors' roster were Fred Scheele, Buddy Gallagher, Joe Perusso, Pete Mulvihill, Mike Scanlon, Ed Quigley and Dicky Fitzgerald, or the cream of the crop. All experienced and skillful court performers, the Victors looked for an easy triumph against the untried and supposedly green A. G. O. five.

A. G. O. Fought Way to Title.

But the little band of gangling young Government clerks had something St. John's completely overlooked, fighting spirit. From the opening whistle A. G. O. was all over the floor, peppering the Cadets' basket with shots, clinging to their men on the defense like leeches.

Cecil Bugg, center, and Fred Ertell led the assault that produced 46 points and enabled the team to win when St. John's could muster only 37. After hurdling this first, and supposedly most difficult obstacle, A. G. O. went on to win the title to the surprise of most fans.

This year the team will seek the honors in the 145-pound division.

GOLF COMMITTEE MEETS.

The executive committee of the District of Columbia Golf Association met last night at the home of Clyde B. Asher. Nothing definite was decided upon, the committee merely lining up things to be acted upon at the annual meeting of the main body, listed at the Racquet Club on March 9.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

DID Cheerio, like Amos 'n' Andy, get lost in Radio City during the broadcast Sunday afternoon? Anyway, he was missing from the program. The broadcast was represented as an innovation, based upon the Albert Hall, London, Promenade Concerts, but, as in the case of Ed Wynn, who promises McNamee weekly, "This opera is going to be different tonight, Graham," the Radio City show seemed to be pretty much the same, except not so good as when Cheerio was presiding.

But for the elimination of the title, "Roxy's Gang," it seemed exactly as heretofore, with vocal numbers alternating with instrumental, a staff announcer being used instead of Roxy or Cheerio. The substitution of the announcer probably was made to effect an economy.

The announcer gave readings with choral background along the line previously introduced by Cheerio in the program. It was Cheerio's material evidently, but what become of Cheerio?

"The Townsend Murder Mystery," a new detective serial written especially for radio presentation by Octavus Roy Cohen, will be heard over WMAL at 7:45 o'clock tonight. The drama will be an original adventure of Cohen's popular character, Detective Jim Hanvey.

Hanvey will be portrayed by Thurston Hall, veteran stage and screen actor. He will be supported by John Hamilton, who was in the original "Lightnin'" company for five years; Frank Wilson, who played the lead in "Porgy," and Ernest Whitman, the inmate of Cell 13 in the original production of "The Last Mile." The program will be heard each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at the same time.

It is sponsored by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. and is another of the WJZ network programs being presented by WMAL.

Odd bits about radio artists: Annette Henshaw can't read a note of music. . . . Irene Taylor, Paul Whiteman warbler, who is just 5 feet high, wears black to appear taller. . . . An admirer sent Jessica Dragonette a photograph of a parrot, autographed with the bird's claw. . . . D. W. Griffith, noted movie director, always wears his hat when he broadcasts.

Maria Jeritza, Viennese soprano, who was one of the first guest stars to sing in the Five Star Theater's Tuesday night concerts, will return to the scene in the broadcast at 10 o'clock tonight over WJSV. The orchestra will be directed by Josef Bonime.

The program follows:

Overture, "Barber of Seville" (Rossini), orchestra; "Aria di Santuzza," from "Cavalleria Rusticana" (Mascagni); "The Brownies" (Leoni), Maria Jeritza and orchestra; intermezzo and menuetto from "Pagliacci" (Leoncavallo), orchestra; "Ce soir, ce soir, cherie" (Francois); excerpts from "The Gypsy Princess" (Kalman), Maria Jeritza and orchestra; "Scene de la Czardas" (Hubay), orchestra.

RADIO JOE will not be on the air tonight, having changed his time to Thursdays at 8 o'clock over WMAL. The program this Thursday will be dedicated to Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, chairman of the old clothes committee of the District of Columbia committee on employment.

Only the day and hour have been changed. Radio Joe's program setup will remain the same as heretofore.

"What Is Money?" is the topic of an address by United States Senator Burton Kendall Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, to be heard over WJSV at 11 o'clock tonight.

Julia Sanderson has always been a victim of stage fright, but says she has never been frightened at the microphone. In the studio she works at a microphone near her husband, Frank Crumit, and declares she always sings to him, although she does picture her audience while on the air.

Miss Sanderson is 5 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 126 pounds. Her complexion is fair and her hair is golden.

The greatest compliment ever paid her, says Miss Sanderson, was Charles Frohman's remark that "I wish there were two Julia Sandersons!"

Leonard Hayton, youthful conductor-arranger-pianist of the Chesterfield program, will be heard at the keyboard in a special medley from "Girl Crazy" during his St. Valentine's Day broadcast over WJSV at 9 p. m. Romantic melodies, given the Hayton sympho-rhythmic treatment, will comprise the balance of the program, including "Isn't It Romantic," "Blue Danube" waltz, "Where Are You Tonight?" and "Moonlight and Roses."

Col. H. L. Roosevelt, a cousin of the President-elect and vice chairman of the parade committee, will be interviewed by Betty Jean Evans on "Parade Plans for the Roosevelt Inaugural" over WJSV at 6:30 o'clock tonight in the first of a series of talks by members of the Presidential inaugural committee to be presented over Columbia.

Subsequent broadcasts in this series will be heard on February 21 and March 2.

WHEN Richard Connell wrote a burlesque operetta, "The Something Girl," he persuaded Sigmund Spaeth to supply the tunes. After turning out several melodies the Tune Detective began applying his own methods of analysis and discovered, to his chagrin, that his waltz tune was a combination of "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain," "The Blue Danube" and the "Merry Widow," while another number echoed "Stardust" and "I Guess I'll Have to Change My Plan." He abandoned both for entirely new melodies.

The Old Philosopher

SAYS:

Question: Are you, as an old philosopher of life, in favor of mixed marriages?

Answer: When you say mixed marriages, I assume you mean from a religious standpoint. If you mean from an international standpoint or from the standpoint of an American marrying one from the Far East, my answer may be different.

From a religious standpoint, I think it makes little difference, provided the parents of children are broad enough to take a wholesome view of life and not be too orthodox in the matter. It has its dangers, however, and this should be clearly understood prior to marriage.

Intermarriage with the Anglo-Saxon has little danger, nor do I see much danger with the marrying into the Latin races. Some adjustments are necessary, but they are not of paramount importance.

With the East and the West the situation is different. There are centuries of ideas and ideals to break down; differing Gods to worship, and the mode of life is so far removed from one another that one is tempted to say not to intermarry East and West.

The important thing of course is love. Love can and will overcome much, provided it is founded on friendship and not upon passion. But as I say, it is difficult. The glamour of intermarriage does not last long—it has its color and romance, but I ask the question, is it sufficient to bind hearts together to face the many problems of parenthood and life?

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL, at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

By H. I. PHILLIPS

HOME, STEEL HOME.

("An all-steel, two-family house just completed in Solon, Ohio, may be the forerunner of mass production of fabricated steel homes in America."—News item.)

'Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home;
A joy and contentment we thrill to and feel
In knowing it's builded of sectional steel.
Steel! Steel! Fabricated steel!
There's no home like steel! There's no home like steel!

II.

An exile from home, splendor dazzles in vain.
O, give me my sturdy steel cottage again!
Each beam and each bolt has a place in our hearts—
How treasured in memory all the spare parts!
Steel! Steel! Fabricated steel!
There's no home like steel! There's no home like steel.

III.

The day that we picked it right out of a book—
The short space of time that delivery took—
The rat-tat-tat-tat of the riveters all—
The skeleton shapes of the sun porch and hall!
Steel! Steel! Fabricated steel!
There's no home like steel! There's no home like steel!

IV.

How pleasant the sight of each girder and beam!
Each bolt, screw and nut helped bring true a fond dream;
We phoned to the steel mill, and, as we supposed,
The units soon came with "directions inclosed!"
Steel! Steel! Fabricated steel!
Home can only be home when constructed of steel!

V.

How comforting, too, if a leak e'er appears,
To know a home's "serviced" for three or four years—
That if any part of the house isn't tight,
Replacements will come from the mill overnight!
Steel! Steel! Fabricated steel!
You take your frame house, boy, but make my home steel!

VI.

To thee I'll return when I'm burdened with care;
The heart's dearest solace will smile on me there;
The birds singing gayly a sweet thernody
Steel! Steel! Cellar to dome!
It takes mass production to make a house "Home!"

GOING UP!

England is reported to favor a settlement of her debt to the United States for 10 cents on the dollar. Well, that's about 9½ cents more than France offers.

Douglas Fairbanks is going to Africa to hunt big game. At last the elephants, lions, tigers and black panthers are going to realize what terrible condition they're in physically.

THE REAL TEST.

Mussolini and Hitler are acting as if they were very dear friends, but the real test will come the first time the question of priority rights during the taking of newsreel pictures arises.

It seems that the Artichoke King didn't pay his income tax. Perhaps he didn't know just what was deductible at the sauce.

Congress Heights Seeks Playground

Wants St. Elizabeths Hospital Farm Converted to Use of Public.

Resolutions asking that St. Elizabeths Hospital farm grounds at Nichols avenue and Fourth street southeast be turned into a public playground were adopted last night at a meeting of the Congress Heights Citizens Association.

The association went on record as opposed to a bill before Congress which would discontinue the use of two incinerators recently put into use by the District on the grounds that the incinerators were constructed at great cost and that their discontinuance would throw several men out of employment. They are located in Georgetown and Southeast Washington.

The association voted a resolution opposing the passage of the District relief bill calling for a $2,500,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation on the grounds that the surplus in District funds should be called into use to take care of present relief measures.

Capital Boys Named Editors at Catholic U.

Two Washington high school graduates have been named to the editorial staff of the Cardinal of 1934, student yearbook at Catholic University.

Ivan J. Alfaro, a graduate of Western High School, will be assistant editor, and Paul H. Otto, a graduate of McKinley High School, will be art editor.

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

Considering the icy streets and the inclement weather of the past few days, Washington motorists did very well in keeping the accident figures down to a minimum.

Only twelve injuries due to auto accidents were reported over Saturday and Sunday. This is the lowest mark recorded under like conditions in a long time.

| | 1932 | 1933 |
|---|---|---|
| Injuries | 439 | 417 |

$764,017 ESTIMATE OF CITY DEFICIENCY IS GIVEN TO HOUSE

Hoover Asks $175,000 for Junior High School in Southeast Section.

District deficiency estimates totaling $764,017 were forwarded to the House yesterday by President Hoover on recommendation of Budget Director J. Clawson Roop.

The estimates, most of which will be embodied in the second deficiency appropriation bill, provide $650,990 for general District purposes and $113,027 to pay claims and suits settled by the District for erroneous assessments under the Borland paving assessment law.

High School Funds.

An appropriation of $175,000 was asked, to be added to an existing appropriation of $225,000, for the construction of a junior high school at Nineteenth street and Minnesota avenue southeast.

It was stated that construction of the building can begin June 1, and budget officials have succeeded in bringing down the total cost of the structure from $450,000 to $400,000.

Some $45,000 out of funds unexpended for Wilson Teachers College repairs would be made available for improvement of the central heating plant for the M Street Junior High School and the Douglass-Simmons School.

$23,250 for Hospitals.

Another $90,000 was provided in the estimates for a new heating plant at the Occoquan workhouse. It was stated that the plant will save about $7,000 a year in coal.

Altogether, $23,250 was provided to compensate Children's, Emergency and Casualty Hospitals for handling emergency cases.

Benefit for Musicians Will Be Heard Tonight

The first of a series of six concerts for the benefit of needy musicians of Washington, will be given at 8:30 o'clock tonight at the Sulgrave Club, 1801 Massachusetts avenue, northwest, under the sponsorship of the Ten o'Clock Club.

The artists will include Sylvia Meyers, harpist of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, and Florence Yocum, soprano of Washington. George Cornwell, pianist, will accompany Miss Yocum.

Insurance Urged For Taxicab Men

Blanton and Stafford Hit Operation by Irresponsible Drivers.

The House District Committee yesterday was asked to pass a bill requiring taxicab operators to take out liability insurance, in a floor address by Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas.

Representative Blanton said a taxicab surety provision was in the District appropriations bill until "pressure" was brought to bear to take it out. Representative Stafford (Republican), Wisconsin, joined with him in assailing alleged operation of cabs by irresponsible drivers.

"The claim is made that it will force a lot of cabs off the street," said Representative Blanton. "What if it does? I want cheap taxicab service but I want safe service."

He said street car companies here should be forced to meet original charter provisions for a 5 cent fare, declaring they would double or treble their present receipts.

Laundry Branch Holdup Nets Lone Robber $18

Entering on the pretext of obtaining change for a $5 bill, a colored man held up Miss Louise Hitchens, manager of a laundry branch at 2827 Fourteenth street northwest late yesterday and rifled the cash register of $18.50.

When Miss Hitchens opened the register to get the change, the man thrust his hand into his coat pocket as though grabbing a revolver and ordered her to hand over the contents of the register. After pocketing the money he forced her to hide behind the counter and walked out.

Hillcrest Citizens Meet.

Members of the Hillcrest Citizens Association, meeting at the East Washington Heights Baptist Church, were entertained last night with the presentation of several movie reels depicting the future park system of Washington. Although the organization discussed several legislative issues, no action was taken.

POLICE DEPARTMENT GOAL HELD REACHED

Brown Is Praised by Crosby at Joint Trade-Yacht Groups' Meeting.

"The Police Department is in better shape than at any time since I became Commissioner," Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby declared last night at a joint meeting and oyster roast of the public order and membership committees of the Washington Board of Trade at the Capital Yacht Club.

"In Maj. Brown," Commissioner Crosby told the Trade Board members, "we have a superintendent who knows the police game. He is even more progressive than I had imagined."

Commissioner Crosby said that when he looked over the Police and Fire Departments when he came into office he decided that the former needed improvement in the personnel and the latter improvement in equipment. The Police Department has gained the objective, and the Fire Department is rapidly approaching the prescribed goal, he added.

Representative William P. Holaday, of Illinois, who also spoke briefly, expressed the opinion that the District is fortunate in its tax rates. Local taxpayers, he said, get more for their money than citizens of any other community in the country.

A tribute was plad to the memory of the late Joseph D. Rogers, the District coroner, who died last year, by Dr. Stephen E. Kramer, first assistant superintendent of schools. Odell Smith, chairman of the public order committee, and Robert J. Cottrell, executive secretary of the Board of Trade, also eulogized the deceased official.

Members of the membership committee, headed by Elmore T. Burdette, served the oyster supper. Fred White was in charge of the repast.

Policeman Shinault's Alleged Slayer Escapes

Tipped that Willie Bullock, colored, alleged slayer of Policeman George Shinault, was hiding in a home at Deanwood, a squad of picked police, armed with tear gas and machine guns, yesterday afternoon rushed to the address given, but a search of the premises revealed no trace of the alleged slayer.

Shinault was shot and killed last August 14 when he responded to a riot call.

$500,000 Suit Filed By Disbarred Attorney

Edward B. Dean, sr., wealthy real estate operator, was sued for $500,000 in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Norman S. Bowles, disbarred attorney.

In his suit, Mr. Bowles charged that Mr. Dean recently filed a suit against him for the purpose of "harassing" and "annoying" him. Dean's suit, which was dismissed last month, charged Bowles and others had conspired to extort money from him.

COURAGE OF LINCOLN STRESSED AT RITES

Senator Glenn Is Speaker at Program Held Under G. A. R. Auspices.

"With disloyalty rampant and dangerous forces fanning the flames of discontent," it is imperative that the leaders of the Nation follow Lincoln's trail of sanity, vision, courage and charity, Senator Otis F. Glenn, of Illinois, said last night at a gathering at the First Congregational Church celebrating the Civil War President's birthday anniversary.

The senator's address was the climax to a program of music and addresses under the auspices of the Grand Army of the Republic by the patriotic organizations of the Department of the Potomac. His eulogy of Lincoln was preceded by a tribute by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of Public Buildings and Public Parks.

Marine Band Overture.

Everett F. Warner, past department commander of the Sons of Union Veterans, was chairman of the services, which opened with an overture by the United States Marine Band. The invocation was delivered by the Rev. Allen A. Stockdale. It was followed by the presentation of the colors by Percy Parker, color sergeant of the Department of the Potomac, who was escorted by the Woman's Relief Corps, Daughters of Union Veterans and Auxiliary to Sons of Union Veterans.

William Tyler Page recited his "The American's Creed." There were songs by George B. Cowles, E. Albert Lang and the Treble Clef Trio, composed of Gertrude Lyons, Hilda Nelson and Martha Woolley. John H. Shepherd, commander of the Department of the Potomac, was introduced to the audience. Benediction was by the Rev. William S. Abernethy.

Representative Arthur M. Free, of California, made the principal address at a similar commemoration held at the Sears-Roebuck Galleries by Kenneth Nash Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary. Mrs. Lillian K. Urban, president of the auxiliary, presided.

Lincoln Letter Is Read.

Those who participated in the musical program were Miss Virginia Sellars, Miss Hetty Harkness, James Akers and Miss Phila Belle Burk. Mrs. Joseph H. Mims, national rehabilitation chairman of the Legion Auxiliary, read Lincoln's letter to Mrs. Bixby, Mrs. Egbert E. Corwin, president of the District Department, read an "Estimate of Lincoln."

In the Senate yesterday, Senator Reed Smoot said that the spirit of liberty which Lincoln preserved and handed down "to us is scorned as a priceless heirloom in the hands of yokels." Simultaneously, Representative James M. Beck, of Pennsylvania, was telling his colleagues of the House that popular Government throughout the world "seems to be in more serious danger than at any time since Jefferson."

Kalorama Citizens Join War Against Starlings

Agreeing that something should be done about the starling, the Kalorama Citizens Association decided last night to join with the DuPont Citizens Association in the movement for their extermination. It is proposed to offer an amendment to the law making the District of Columbia a bird preserve, allowing the killing of starlings.

The association protested to the street cleaning department about the condition of streets and sidewalks in that section of the city, and also asked the traffic department to change the signs at Lanier place and Ontario road northwest from "slow" to "stop."

Dredging Is Begun At Reservoir Basin

More Than Four Months to Be Required for Work at Dalecarlia.

The United States Engineering Office yesterday began the task of dredging the Dalecarlia water reservoir basin of the tons of silt that has settled to the bottom during the last five years.

More than four months will be spent in this work as a 6-inch hydraulic dredge will have to be assembled on the reservoir lake. The Dalecarlia plant is located near the Maryland line on Conduit road.

About 13,000 cubic yards of silt are pumped out from the reservoir each time it is cleaned. This earth is sent back into the Potomac River through an overflow basin.

LOCAL CRIMES FALL 25 PER CENT AFTER ADDED PATROL WORK

Brown Says Police Record Is Commendable in View of Depression.

The additional patrol work ordered by Superintendant of Police Ernest W. Brown has resulted in a 25 per cent reduction in the number of crimes reported this month as compared with the corresponding period last month.

In addition, figures at Maj. Brown's office disclosed, there was a decrease in felonies reported in January of this year as compared to January, 1932, while the number of felony cases cleared last January were 67 per cent, or 21 per cent higher than in January, 1932, and 12 per cent higher than December, 1932.

"The decrease this month," Maj. Brown said, "shows a very good record for the men. In spite of the depresion and the number of idle men roaming the streets, we have been able to show a reduction in crime. The decrease may be attributed to the preventive influence exercised by the additional patrol duty ordered."

82 Housebreakings Reported.

For the first thirteen days of February the following crimes were reported: Housebreakings, 82; robberies, 24; grand larcenies, 26; stolen automobiles, 83; larcenies from automobiles, 37. For the corresponding period of last month the following were reported: Housebreakings, 101; robberies, 40; grand larcenies, 17; stolen automobiles, 102, and larcenies from automobiles, 75.

For the first seven months of the fiscal year, beginning July 1, there were 5,778 felonies, compared with 6,138 felonies during the same period of the 1932 fiscal year. In January of this year there were 797 felonies, as compared with 838 in January, 1932, and 795 in December, 1932.

Record of Cases Cleared.

The most notable record of cases cleared was made in the class of unauthorized use of automobiles where in which cases cleared numbered 302, which was four more than the number of automobiles reported missing during the month.

The following are the felonies reported and per cent of felonies cleared in January, 1933, as compared with January, 1932.

Assaults with dangerous weapons, January, 6 reported, 83 per cent cleared; January, 1932, 9 reported, 55 per cent cleared. Attempted robberies, January, 21 reported and 29 per cent cleared; January, 1932, 10 reported and 1 per cent cleared. Grand larcenies, January, 85 reported and 22 per cent cleared; January, 1932, 100 reported and 23 per cent cleared.

12 Murders Reported.

Housebreakings, January, 361 reported and 57 per cent cleared; January, 1932, 285 reported and 14 per cent cleared. Manslaughters, January, 2 reported and cleared; no manslaughters in January, 1932. Murders, January, 12 reported and 91 per cent cleared; January, 1932, 6 reported and 100 per cent cleared.

Criminal assault, January, 2 reported and both cleared; January, 1932, one reported and uncleared. Robbery, January, 108 reported and 37 per cent cleared; January, 1932, 93 reported and 26 per cent cleared. Unauthorized use of automobiles, January, 398 reported and 100 per cent cleared; January, 1932, 329 reported and 92 per cent cleared.

Tax Rise Fought In Stanton Park

Passage of Relief Bill Is Urged at Meeting of Citizens' Group.

Resolutions objecting to the levying of additional taxes in the District and passage of the District relief bill were adopted by the Stanton Park Citizens Association at a meeting last night at Peabody School.

During a discussion on the contracting situation in the District, Harry Stull, chairman of the law and legislation committee, advocated that the wage scale to employes be written in the contract before the contract is let. This applies also to subcontractors.

A report was given on the traffic light situation in Stanton Park in which it was disclosed that the association hopes to have the four lights operate as a unit for the safety of school children going to and from the Peabody School. It was voted that an entertainment program be given at the next meeting. William Monroe, president, and Mrs. L. H. Brown, secretary, presided.

Paul Junior High Addition Is Urged

Takoma Park Citizens Take Action on Congestion in That School.

Following a discussion on the crowded condition of the Paul Junior High School, members of the Takoma Park Citizens Association, meeting at the Takoma branch of the Public Library, last night adopted a resolution urging that an addition be built to the school.

Although the school was built to accommodate a maximum number of 940 students, the school committee of the association reported that there were more than 1,200 students enrolled at the school at present. An additional number is expected to enroll in September, it was stated.

The citizen group also discussed the price of milk in the District. They adopted a resolution objecting to the retail cost, but advocated that the farmer should not be paid less than he is now receiving. Capt. Boyer, vice president of the association, presided at the meeting.

Piney Branch Citizens Opposing R. F. C. Loan

The proposal to borrow $2,500,000 for unemployment relief in the District was strongly opposed last night by the Piney Branch Citizens Association.

Representative William P. Holaday, of Illinois, was thanked by the Association for his opposition to the proposal, and commended for his advocacy of the purchase of the District Building by the Federal Government.

POWER SUBMETER ARGUMENTS TODAY

Litigation Over Reselling of Electricity to Be Aired in Appellate Court.

Arguments against the submetering of electricity will be aired today in the District Court of Appeals by People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech, William A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel, and S. R. Bowen, counsel for the Potomac Electric Power Co.

Involving the question of whether a meter company can operate in Washington independently of the power company and without supervision of the commission, the litigation goes back five years. The present appeal was taken by Myron P. Lewis et al., promoters of the meter company, after the District Supreme Court had sustained the action of the commission in approving the power company's refusal to furnish current for the purpose of submetering.

The people's counsel, the commission, and the power company contend that the resale of electricity by a meter company would permit rebates and discriminations in violation of the public utility law and would take away from the utilities body its proper right to supervise utility rates.

The case started in the spring of 1928 when the meter company sought to enter into contracts with a number of apartment house owners to sell them electric current for their own use and to resell to their tenants. At first the commission tried unsuccessfully to stop the practice directly; then the power company refused to enter into any submetering contracts, and the commission sustained this action.

Fire Extinguishers Net 300 Days in Jail

His troubles in making a collection of fire extinguishers, five of them in all, got Samuel Perry, colored, into serious difficulties in Police Court yesterday when he was sentenced to serve 300 days in jail.

Perry collected the extinguishers from an apartment house at First and I streets northwest. Robert W. Giles, janitor at the apartment, was acquitted of the charge of assisting Perry when Judge John P. McMahon directed a verdict for him. The sentence was 60 days in jail for each extinguisher missing.

Chief Running Buffalo Bonded in Police Court

Chief Running Buffalo, a full-blooded Oklahoma Indian, yesterday fared well when he was tried in Police Court on a charge of having imbibed too freely of "fire water." The Indian, who is 40 years old, had his personal bond taken not to repeat the offense.

Garbed in a portion of his native costume, the chief was arrested Sunday by Second Precinct policemen. He told them he had come here for the inauguration.

CITIZENS DENOUNCE SCHOOL CONDITIONS

Northeast Group Decides to Investigate Series of Charges Voiced.

Judging by discussions at the Northeast Washington Citizens Association meeting last night, Washington's school system is far from what it should be.

It was charged the school buildings generally are not properly heated; the study periods are too short; the campuses and playgrounds are neglected; too much theory and not enough practical things are taught; the schools are overcrowded, and the entire school system needs reorganization. The association decided to make a thorough investigation of the schools with a view to making specific recommendations for improvements.

Resolutions were adopted recommending the establishment of a city college and the construction of an addition to the Eastern High School Building.

The association also approved the proposed loan of $2,500,000 for relief of distress, but suggested that a clause be inserted in the bill making the relief fund available for home owners out of employment and who are denied relief from local relief organizations because they own property.

Telephone Box Theft Charged

Man Held for Grand Jury Action in $500 Bond.

James C. Fitzpatrick, 63 years old, yesterday was haled into Police Court on a charge of stealing a telephone pay station box and its contents of $14.

Fitzpatrick, according to Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh, had just completed a short term for vagrancy when he was arrested in a locksmith's place as he sought to have a duplicate key made. The locksmith, James C. Parker, recognized the key as being one that would unlock telephone coin boxes, and he held Fitzpatrick until police arrived.

A charge of vagrancy was placed against Fitzpatrick and he was taken to the station house. Then his room was searched and the telephone box was found, police said, and the lock had been smashed to get an impression for a key. The man was held under $5,000 bond for the action of the grand jury.

Assault Suspect Held for Jury.

Held on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, Almond D. Lovett yesterday was remanded for the grand jury when Judge John P. McMahon was told that the victim, Andrew J. Ford, is in the hospital in a serious condition. Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh said almost 100 stitches were required to close Ford's wounds.

1,200 NEW YORKERS WILL BE IN FOURTH DIVISION OF PARADE

Oklahomans Join Increasing Ranks of Special-Train Delegations.

New York City's delegation in the Roosevelt inaugural parade took the lead in numbers yesterday, when it was learned that the marchers from the Society of Tammany, New York Democratic Club and the New York Democratic County Committee will include 1,200 persons and that an equal number of grand stand seats have been purchased by the New Yorkers to accommodate their wives and other members of their families. The numerical strength of this New York group means that it will occupy about one-seventh of the space allotted to the fourth division of the inaugural parade.

The appointment of a dance music committee, of which Miss Helen Coolidge, daughter of Senator Marcus Coolidge, of Massachusetts, is chairman, and Miss Helen Lee Eames Doherty is vice chairman, was announced by Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, chairman of the inaugural ball committee. The committee will be selected by these two society girls and will supervise and direct the selection of orchestras for the ball. A call for a meeting of the committee at inaugural ball headquarters, in the Hill Building, will be sent out later in the week. Mrs. Dougherty announced yesterday that sale of box seats was progressing so rapidly that it would not be long before all such tickets would be disposed of.

Delegation of Oklahomans.

Scott Ferris, national committeeman for Oklahoma, informed Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the inaugural committee, yesterday that a special train of Oklahoma citizens was being organized by John F. Kroutil. Present indications, Mr. Ferris said, were that it would include a delegation of several hundred persons.

Chief clerks of all Government departments have been invited to attend a meeting of the ticket sales committee of the grandstand ticket committee at headquarters in the Washington Building tomorrow morning. William J. Hobbs, chairman of this committee, plans to enlist the aid of these Government officials in the sale and distribution of tickets.

Miss Mary E. Hughes of the general entertainment committee yesterday obtained the cooperation of the Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian pastors of Washington for Inaugural Sunday, March 5. The ministers consulted by Miss Hughes agreed readily to arrange special services for that day.

Special Traffic Arrangements.

Traffic arrangements for the general public local transportation companies and the out of town bus companies covering the inaugural period have been virtually perfected by the inaugural committee on transportation, of which Mr. Thomas B. Littlepage is chairman, and will be submitted within the next few days, to the District authorities for ratification. The proposals fall into three groups—the limits of the no-parking areas on inauguration day, the augmentation of local transportation facilities, and the disposition of out-of-town buses bringing special parties to the inauguration.

The closed parking area which had been recommended follows: E street to Union station; F street should be closed to all traffic except transportation vehicles between Sixth and Fifteenth streets, and, if possible, should be cleared on over to Union Station. There should be no parking south of F street between Thirteenth and Ninth, or from Union Station to E street on Thirteenth or Twelfth; Massachusetts avenue from New York asenue; New York avenue to Union Station Plaza; Capitol Plaza and First street to First and B southeast; B street between Second and First southeast; H street between Fourteenth and Seventeenth northwest; Thirteenth and Twelfth south of New York avenue; East Capitol between First and Second; Seventh street north of Constitution avenue as far as Pennsylvania avenue; M street from Pennsylvania avenue to the Key Bridge; Pennsylvania avenue southeast from Sixth street to the bridge.

Concert Tickets Moving.

Local transportation companies have agreed to furnish the special service made necessary by the curtailment of certain routes during the parade and also to see that facilities are provided for inaugural visitors who may be occupants of parked special trains.

Interstate buses coming from the South will be parked at the Airport after discharging passengers at Fourteenth street and Constitution avenue, and buses coming from the North and East will converge on Logan Circle.

Sale of all the $1.50 seats at Garfinckel's for the inaugural concert at Constitution Hall on the night of March 3 was announced by the general entertainment committee in charge of this feature. A heavy demand for higher priced seats continued at the National Symphony box office, which is handling the sale. An opportunity to hear Tibbett, Ponselle, Zimbalist and the National Symphony Orchestra all on one program has created wide interest.

Barry's Ouster Forces New Inaugural Tickets

New tickets for the Capitol inaugural ceremony are to be printed, and they will not bear the name of the sergeant at arms of the Senate.

A reprinting of the tickets was deemed necessary by the joint congressional committee because the original tickets bore the name of David S. Barry, discharged sergeant at arms.

Victory Banquet Held By Life Insurance Men

Dentist Robbed of $300 in Gold.

Gold valued at $300 was reported stolen from the office of Dr. Elliott A. Hunt, dentist, 1001 I street northwest, yesterday by burglars who jimmied a door.
